In addition, there is an 18-hole golf course and fields for sports grounds.
The buildings as they stand are ideal for such a purpose, and would require no alteration or modification. Electric light and hot and cold water installation throughout.
The advertiser would be pleased to hear from parties who might be interested in the initiation of such a proposal.—Write Box F.1918, The Times, E.C.4.

THE ST. LEGER

VICTORY OF SINGAPORE

(FROM OUR RACING CORRESPONDENT)

Lord Glanely's Singapore, a colt by Gainsborough out of a Tetrarch mare, Tetrabbazia, ridden by Gordon Richards, and trained by Captain Hogg, won the St. Leger at Doncaster yesterday by a length and a half from Parenthesis, with Rustom Pasha, three-quarters of a length away, third. Ut Majeur was fourth. The second horse belongs to Lord Woolavington, and the third and fourth are owned by the Aga Khan. Rustom Pasha carried the distinguishing red cap, but under the new rules no declaration was made as to which was the first string. The first and second shared favouritism at 4 to 1, while Rustom Pasha started at 20 to 1.

There is, it seems to me, very little that needs to be written about the preliminaries for this race. The conditions were good, for the going was not too soft to be used as an excuse for any of the 13 starters. The light was reasonably clear and the weather fine. Apart from the fact that Grand Salute was not started, the field was composed exactly as was anticipated. Paddock inspection on such an occasion is not an easy matter. They were, on the whole, not a very distinguished looking field, with Singapore certainly the best looking. He is, indeed, a very good-looking colt, and a great credit to his trainer, who has waited and waited until he could get him fit and well. Rustom Pasha is also good-looking, and there is much to like about Parenthesis, but he does not fill the eye as a Classic colt. But then, with very few exceptions, none of the children of Son-in-Law do, although he always gets good, honest horses, and as a stayer is a sire of whom I am very fond.

The parade and the canter to the start went off without incident. Once at the start there was little trouble, although Iliad and Seer would not, for a few moments, go up to the gate. Iliad and Algonquin wore hoods, always a disfigurement and especially so in a Classic race. The start was one of Captain Allison's best efforts and the field went away in a line. The first to break the line were Christopher Robin and Algonquin, who were followed by Diolite. Fairy Prince was soon last. All round the far side of the course Algonquin and Christopher Robin were in front. I thought at the time that Prince Paradise was third, but Templeman, who trains him, tells me that the third horse was Diolite. After all it was easy to confuse the colours, which, at a distance, look almost exactly the same. Algonquin and Christopher Robin came into the Straight in front, with Diolite third. Soon after reaching the Straight Christopher Robin was beaten and Parenthesis began to improve, as did Rameses the Second and Singapore. Rather more than two furlongs from the finish Parenthesis and Singapore were up with Algonquin and Diolite, and at once Diolite lost his place. I cannot say that he failed to stay, for he came in badly cut about as if he had been cut into. Almost as soon as he was beaten Algonquin also fell back, and as Rameses the Second had not gone on with his run the race was left to Parenthesis and Singapore. From that time I never had any doubt about the result. Here was the case of a Classic colt racing with a very good handicapper, and there is never any other but one result to such a race. Singapore, admirably ridden by Richards, slowly but surely drew ahead, and, in the end, won by a length and a half from Parenthesis, with Rustom Pasha third and Ut Majeur fourth. The third and fourth ran through some beaten horses at the finish, but never at any time threatened to beat the first and the second.

I had carefully made a handicap of these horses, and had come to the conclusion that Singapore would win from Parenthesis, and that the difference between them was 4lb., which was almost exactly right, for 4lb. is about a length and a half. Rameses the Second failed to stay, as did most of the others in the race, some of whom would be hard put to it to win a high-class handicap with very little weight. It only remains to congratulate Lord Glanely on his plucky purchase—he gave 12,500 guineas for the winner at the Doncaster Sales two years ago—Captain Hogg on the patience and the skill with which he has trained this horse; and Gordon Richards on the admirable manner in which he rode. The win was deservedly very popular. It is to be hoped that Singapore will remain sound and win the Gold Cup at Ascot next year.

THE OTHER EVENTS

The afternoon's racing had been begun with the Cleveland Handicap, which I had thought might be won by Mr. J. S. Austen's Gashmu, who had won his last race easily at Hurst Park, and before that had been rather unlucky when beaten at Ascot. He won yesterday quite decisively from Templario, with the well-backed favourite, Weary Willie, third. Gashmu started at 100 to 8 and Templario at 20 to 1, long odds in both cases when it is considered that each had a good chance on the handicap. Weary Willie might have had a better chance if he could have had stronger handling. Canfield may not be as good as he was, for he is getting old, but he is still a useful sprinter, and if the Milton Selling Plate had been a handicap he would have had to give weight away all round. He was quite properly well backed, and won by a head from the also well-backed Thunder Squall. Golden Legend was third. Whatever chance Water Rose may have had vanished at the start.

The St. Leger, with which I have dealt already, was followed by the Bradgate Nursery, which was won easily by Banned, who made light of his penalty incurred at Birmingham. Alexis, owned by the owner of Gashmu, was second and the York winner, Venturer, third. After this race the Stewards of the meeting ordered that the saliva of the first and second should be examined. This is often done, and quite rightly so, in accordance with the Rules of Racing, and means no reflection on anyone concerned with the horses so examined. For quite a long way it seemed that the Epsom winner, Maid of the Marches, would win the Tattersall Sale Stakes, but she just failed to stay home, and was not only beaten but was even beaten out of a place behind Estate Duty, who won from Armagnac and Gallini. The winner is a well-grown colt by Legatee, who was a good horse, but could never run in any Classic race owing to the death of his nominator. I had thought that The Bastard would win the Rufford Abbey Handicap, a race run over two miles and a quarter, which has in the past often suggested to us the possible winner of the Cesarewitch. Success in yesterday's race does not entail any penalty for the Newmarket event. The Bastard, when he failed in the Ebor Handicap, was not, I thought, quite at his best. He ran much better yesterday, but just failed to win, Arctic Star beating him by inches. This pair had the race to themselves a long way from the finish, Arctic Star having the rails, and it may have been this fact which just enabled him to win. Apart from this, The Bastard was balked when he tried originally to come through on the rails, and had to be pulled back and make another challenge on the outside. The meeting will be continued this afternoon.

TO-DAY'S PROSPECTS

2.30.—Rous Plate (6f.).—Runaway Match has some useful form, but surely has too much weight compared with an animal like Pisa, who ran so well at York. Formentor showed distinct promise at York and should have been improved by that race. The well-bred Oban has not run for a long time. I believe that he has done very well in his recent work, and if there is any market move in his favour it might not be wise to ignore it. Pisa or FORMENTOR should win. My preference is for the latter, who was second to Portlaw at York, and Portlaw has won since at Doncaster and, over his own distance, may be the best of his age and sex.

3.5.—Portland Handicap (5f. 152 yards).—Tag End has won this race twice in the past two years, and seems even rather better handicapped this time than he was on either previous occasion. He won easily at York, and on that form Oak Ridge, good as he is, should not beat him to-day. Tag End did not run in the Stewards' Cup at Goodwood, but at the weights he had appeared to me to be well handicapped. He is just as well handicapped this afternoon. Le Phare has not run since Goodwood, but on that form has a chance here, as, perhaps, has To You. Reedsmouth won last time out and has been dropped in the handicap. Still, on Newmarket form, he should not finish in front of Tag End. Friarvine seems to have trained off, while, in my opinion, Polar Bear will not get the distance of this race. Devonie and Sargo seem to have good outside chances. TAG END is certainly my selection. If he does win he will have created a very wonderful record.

3.40.—Alexandra Handicap (1½m.).—Bachelor's Date won last time out and is not without a chance, while if Coster Boy did his best he would also have a chance. Burnside ran his usual gallant race at York, but even at the altered weights should not beat the Goodwood winner, Brother-in-Law. Noble Star is not harshly handicapped. Sunnier, after winning selling plates, has shown himself to be rather better than a plater, so that with 6st. 11lb. he must be considered well in here. At the weights and on his Goodwood form I like best the chance of BROTHER-IN-LAW.

4.10.—Princess Mary Stakes (5f.).—Lampeto is very much improved, and even with 8st. 13lb. does not seem at all badly handicapped on her York form, when she was only just beaten by Four Course, whom she puts in this race with a most attractive weight. Mots d'Or filly must be useful on recent form and has, I suppose, a chance. There may be here some animal low in the handicap of whom the best has not yet been seen. For that reason this is a dangerous race with which to deal. On known form the winner certainly seems to me to be LAMPETO.

4.40.—Wharncliffe Handicap (7f.).—LOVAT SCOUT was a very pronounced favourite to win at Newmarket in the summer when he was not placed. He has been handicapped here almost as if that running was his best form, and, judging from some handicaps made by Mr. Dawkins, he has got too little weight here. On his two-year-old form he is very well handicapped. He is down to run, and I do not see anything else in the race so well handicapped. He must, therefore, be my selection.

5.10.—Scarbrough Stakes (1m.).—THE RECORDER is down to run, and as, in my opinion, he is the best of his age over a mile, he must, in spite of his big weight, be my selection.

NEWMARKET PROSPECTS

(FROM OUR NEWMARKET CORRESPONDENT)

In the Rous Plate Oban showed to advantage in a gallop on Saturday, and he is probably one of the best of the Green Lodge two-year-olds. However, he may not be so good as PISA, a filly who has very fine speed and who will be suited by this course.

For the Portland Handicap Fleeting Memory is at his best and he always runs to form, but he may not be at home on this fast course. He requires a little more to do to show his true form. All the same he might win. Doch-an-Doris will, I believe, prove better than his stable companion, Casserole. Strongbow is fancied, but I doubt if he will beat FRIARVINE, who has been showing to great advantage in recent gallops.

In the Alexandra Handicap the change in the going has come a bit late for Mint Master, but Quarter Sessions is fancied. I like best the chance of SUNNIER. Junior Counsel will run well.

In the Princess Mary Stakes OH FOR A MONOCLE is one of the best two-year-olds trained by Walter Griggs and I have not seen her go better than she did in her gallop on Saturday. It is with confidence that I select her to win. Waif, The Nile, Tetaru, and Mischief will also run.

The Wharncliffe Handicap may also go to Walter Griggs by the aid of DANDIE DINMONT, who has been showing good form in recent gallops.

The Scarbrough Stakes will go to SILVER FLARE if he only does his best.

SALE OF POLO PONIES IN AMERICA

The official returns of the sale of the Australian Goulburn team's polo pony stud, held at East Williston, Long Island, New York, were received in London yesterday. The 25 ponies owned by the brothers Ashton were all sold and realized an aggregate of $77,600 (£15,934), an average of $3,104 (or approximately 607 guineas).

Top price of $10,000 (£2,054) was paid for Isobel, a second season six-year-old bay mare, by J. C. Cooley, who also took three others for $7,600. Major Avery was the heaviest buyer of the day, taking five for a total of $21,700 (£4,456) on behalf of English players, while W. Guest, who played back for the successful American team at Meadowbrook last Saturday, gave $5,100 for Coaster, a ten-year-old bay gelding.

CRICKET

DEATH OF MAJOR G. A. FAULKNER

Major George Aubrey Faulkner, an international cricketer of great repute, was found dead in London yesterday morning. Born in the Transvaal on December 17, 1881, Faulkner later became, not only one of the dominating figures in South African cricket, but also one of the finest all-round cricketers in the game.

Perhaps his greatest merit on the field was his versatility, for as batsman, as bowler, and by his magnificent fielding he was regarded always as a match-winning factor. He was one of the early exponents of the googlie, although he differed from other bowlers of that type in frequently sending down quite a fast ball, almost a yorker. When at his best his faultless length, his ability to turn the ball both ways, and his puzzling variation of flight defeated some of the wolrd's greatest batsmen.

At the beginning of his career, particularly at the time when he first became prominent in South African inter-State cricket in 1906, he was of little value as a batsman, but, as the years passed, he became almost as great a batsman as he was a bowler. His style rather conveyed the impression of awkwardness, and he could not, at any time, be described as a free, forcible bat. Nevertheless, very few men made runs with more assurance, and he was a most difficult batsman to dislodge. Probably his finest innings in this country came after he settled down here in residence, when at Eastbourne in 1921 he virtually gave victory to an England XI. by a wonderful innings of 153 against the Australians, who, at that point, were an unbeaten side.

Many will remember his great bowling at Leeds in 1907, when, playing for South Africa in the second Test Match of that series against England, he dismissed six men in the course of 11 overs for 17 runs. His career was full of remarkable performances; in that same season of 1907, he, in all matches for the South Africans, scored 1,288 runs and took 73 wickets. When South Africa visited Australia in the season of 1910-11, Faulkner headed the Test Match batting averages with 732 runs and an average of 73.20. In all matches during that tour he scored 2,080 runs, taking 60 wickets, and charmed Australian critics by a splendidly hit 204 in the Test Match at Melbourne.

When the time came for him to retire from the game he gained much distinction as a coach, though possibly no coach has been so freely criticized by reason of the methods employed. Faulkner followed a theory entirely his own when he established the first cricket school known in London, and at the time of his death the school had earned world-wide fame. Among the many distinguished cricketers who were his pupils at some time or other are K. S. Duleepsinhji, R. W. V. Robins, Bakewell, a Northamptonshire batsman for whom a great future has been predicted, and Wellard, the fast bowler of Somerset. Many counties have sent players to the school for instruction.

Faulkner devoted the greater part of his time to the school, though he found opportunity to write many articles on the game. During the War he served with distinction with the R.F.A. in Salonika, Egypt, and Palestine, gaining the D.S.O. in 1918 and the Order of the Nile.

THE FOLKESTONE FESTIVAL

The third match of the Folkestone Festival, that between the Gentlemen and Players, was begun yesterday, when the Gentlemen, who batted all day, scored 267 in their first innings. D. N. Moore played another very fine innings, and was well supported by Lord Tennyson and A. H. H. Gilligan. At one time the score appeared likely to be much larger, but after tea the side collapsed against some good bowling by Thomas and Nichols.

Brown, who captained the Players, won the toss and put his opponents in on a wicket rather on the slow side. D. N. Moore and R. C. Robertson-Glasgow opened the innings to the bowling of Nichols and Thomas, but, with only six runs scored, the fast bowler gave way to Boyes, who soon got Robertson-Glasgow leg-before-wicket. Freeman, who went on for Thomas, bowled W. G. Lowndes with a leg-break at 25, but Moore defended with great patience against some very sound bowling and keen fielding. Only 27 runs were scored in the first hour. A. H. H. Gilligan was not very comfortable with Freeman, but he and Moore stayed together until the interval, when the score had reached 62.

Runs came quicker after luncheon, though a wicket soon fell, Gilligan being bowled by a ball from Thomas which came back quickly to take his off stump. Gilligan made some clean drives in an innings which was of more value to his side than the actual score indicates. Lord Tennyson and Moore played capital cricket, not taking risks, but hitting the occasional over-pitched or short ball very hard. Moore was not afraid to go right in to drive Freeman, and he reached his 50 with a fine on-drive off that bowler. Hearne was severely treated by both batsmen. Lord Tennyson reached his 50 in just over an hour, and the 200 was passed, both players showing the utmost confidence and making splendid strokes all round the wicket. When an adjournment was made for tea the score had reached 213, and Moore needed seven runs only for his second consecutive century.

This, however, he was not destined to make, for he added only two runs before being caught at short leg off Thomas. Before this the partnership for the fourth wicket had been broken by a brilliant one-handed catch at second slip by Croom, which dismissed Lord Tennyson. R. W. V. Robins only stayed long enough to make one pretty late cut off Thomas before being bowled by him, and six wickets were down for 228. A. P. F. Chapman made two fine square cuts off Nichols before being caught at the wicket. F. T. Mann and F. S. G. Calthorpe brought up the 250, the former making two powerful on-drives before he was caught at third slip off a ball from Thomas which got up sharply. Seven wickets fell after tea for an addition of 54 runs.

THE SCARBOROUGH FESTIVAL

AUSTRALIANS LAST MATCH

In spite of the use of sawdust, the match between the Australians and Mr. H. D. G. Leveson-Gower's XI., at Scarborough yesterday could not be begun until 12.45. V. Y. Richardson then put Mr. Leveson-Gower's XI. in, and at the close of play they had scored 218 runs for the loss of nine wickets.

There had been a lot of rain in Scarborough on the Tuesday, but the pitch, which had been covered from end to end, was not affected enough to justify Richardson's decision. He may have had hopes of strong sunshine, but on that point any local fisherman would promptly have disillusioned him. The more reasonable explanation is that he was intimidated by the sight of the names of Rhodes and I. A. R. Peebles on the score card. Whatever his reasons, however, Mr. Leveson-Gower's XI. immediately showed a just appreciation of the favour bestowed on them. The pitch was actively at enmity with a bowler like T. Wall, since it took yards off his pace; C. V. Grimmett, with an injured hand, was only able to bowl one over; A. Fairfax could find no sort of a length; and only once before luncheon did P. M. Hornibrook, in whom Richardson probably placed a good deal of his trust, bowl that ball which might have made him glad of his decision.

From the beginning runs were always coming easily and smartly enough. Both Hobbs and Sutcliffe quickly found the boundary, Sutcliffe with a square cut off A. Hurwood, and Hobbs with an off drive off Wall. Hobbs looked as though he intended to make his hundred before luncheon, but he tried to hook a long hop from Fairfax, did not hit the ball as he meant to do, and W. A. Oldfield took a catch on the leg side too easily to be fair to himself. K. S. Duleepsinhji did not time the ball as he would have wished to do when he first came in, but he and Sutcliffe were together at luncheon, when the total was 71 runs for one wicket.

Afterwards Fairfax bowled two or three really bad overs and, after Sutcliffe had driven him for two 4's in one over, K. S. Duleepsinhji forced a short ball off his right foot through the covers. Sutcliffe brought up the hundred by turning Fairfax to the boundary at very fine leg, but then three wickets fell quickly. K. S. Duleepsinhji at 102 was caught on the leg side by Oldfield off Hornibrook, and three runs later Sutcliffe was out in much the same way as Hobbs had been, only in his case the mis-timed hook stroke was off Hornibrook, and it skied the ball to second slip instead of glancing it to the wicket-keeper.

Leyland had to look round and see whether the second ball he received had bowled him, but he drove Hurwood firmly past mid-off for four and generally looked as though the field would have to spread out for him, when he lashed out at Hornibrook, skied the ball to point, and Oldfield won the open handicap race that began immediately the stroke was played. With R. E. S. Wyatt and Sandham in together the pitch began to look twice as difficult as it had done before. Their diffident and uncertain batting, however, was not so responsible for this as the fact that Hornibrook was beginning to find the ball that is dangerous on any wicket. Both Wyatt and Sandham were his moral victims, and at 143 Wyatt became his actual victim by being leg-before-wicket, and one run later Tate was brilliantly caught and bowled by Hurwood, who took a ball that came hard back at him low down on the left-hand side.

Larwood hit one lovely 4 through the covers off Hurwood, but at 165 he was caught off Hornibrook by D. G. Bradman, who ran back from extra cover-point, and Richardson had at this point a justification in the score board. Sandham, who had by this time entirely recovered from his shaky start, and Rhodes, however, put on 51 runs towards the end of the day, and did much to retrieve the situation. Wall, however, took two quick wickets in the last few overs, and if rain falls in the night there should be some interesting cricket to-day.

RUGBY FOOTBALL

BRITISH TEAM BEATEN IN AUSTRALIA

SYDNEY, Sept. 10.—The British Rugby touring team were decisively beaten by New South Wales in the return match on the cricket ground here to-day by 28 points to three.

After 10 minutes' play the New South Wales forwards got away, and Cercutti crossed the line for a try which Ross converted to give his side the lead. The British played up strongly after this and Spong, at stand-off half-back, vainly tried to get his forwards going, but New South Wales scored again. Towers, the right centre three-quarter back, got the ball from a line-out, and, running strongly, scored his side's second try. Ross again converted. After a period of touch kicking only a brilliant tackle by Ross, who pulled Spong down almost on the line, prevented Britain from scoring. Just before half-time Prentice scored a fine penalty goal, and the interval arrived with the score at 10—3 in favour of New South Wales.

New South Wales continued to press hard after the interval, and within 10 minutes Crossman got over for a try which Ross failed to convert. Towers obtained the ball from a line-out in the British half, and passed to Ford, who made a brilliant run of 40 yards and got over between the posts. Ross converted. Ten minutes from the end Spong and Ivor Jones combined in a fine movement which looked very dangerous, but Ross relieved with a splendid tackle. After this, White got through easily to score between the posts, Ross again converted. Almost immediately afterwards Crossman gathered a cross-kick and got over in the corner. Ross, whose kicking had been a feature of the match, converted with a brilliant kick.

The teams were:—

BRITAIN.—G. M. Bonner, back; A. L. Novis, T. C. Knowles, H. M. Bowcott, and J. T. Morley, three-quarter backs; R. S. Spong and H. Poole, half-backs; F. D. Prentice, G. R. Beamish, Ivor Jones, B. H. Black, C. S. Jones, J. McD. Hodgeson, H. Rew, and H. O'Neill, forwards.

NEW SOUTH WALES.—A. W. Ross, back; O. C. Crossman, C. H. Towers, Egan, and W. White, three-quarter backs; S. C. King, five-eighth; S. Malcolm, half-back; J. Breckenridge, D. Telford, L. Palfreyman, G. Storey, J. K. Ford, W. H. Cercutti, J. A. O'Connor, and M. R. Blair, forwards.—Reuter.

Salford beat St. Helens in a match in the Rugby League at Salford yesterday by 11 points to five; Castleford beat Hull at Castleford by 16 points to four.

POLO

MEADOW BROOK, SEPT. 10

England lost the second game for the Westchester Cup here this afternoon by 14 goals to nine after a fine, hard, and exciting match, in which the English team gave a fine display of dashing polo. For a long time they held the lead, and it was only towards the end of the sixth chukker that the game was lost.

Until then England had held their own and were more often in the lead than their opponents, but three decisive minutes then gave America a lead of three goals, which they did not lose in the two succeeding chukkers. The better mounts of the American players decided the issue, for at that period Hitchcock and Pedley could give the English players several yards in 20, and either get clear away or get back to save their side.

The Cup thus remains in this country until Hurlingham makes a new challenge, perhaps in three years time. Lacey was easily the outstanding player to-day. The American side were more even than previously, but Pedley only touched his best form in the last three chukkers. The English suffered from the lack of an experienced No. 1, and, though Balding was more reliable than on Saturday, he was clearly not the man for the position.

Beaten, but not disgraced, the English team may learn the lesson of training and schooling faster and more vigorous ponies, and picking their team early and sticking to it. Only by long continued and assiduous practice together and with first-class ponies can the English team succeed in regaining the Cup, which in past years they held so often.

The game was played in perfect weather and under a cloudless sky. It was cooler than on Saturday, but the sun beat down at its strongest. Both teams, as announced, were the same as on Saturday, though there had been some talk of Lacey and Balding changing places, or of George playing No. 1. The crowd was slower in assembling, but there was a steady stream from 3 o'clock onwards filling up the stands. The ponies were paraded again at 3.45, with bands leading, the crowd rising bareheaded as the national flags were carried past. At the start of the game the stands were almost filled, the attendance being estimated at nearly 40,000.

THE PLAY

America attacked at the start, but the ball went behind. Hitchcock hit at goal from far out, just missing. Balding then got away, but missed the ball, and Roark missed also. Lacey carried on, but miss-hit near goal. Pedley then got clear away and scored the first goal. Roark, after a fine gallop, made the scores equal. Then Lacey, getting the ball in mid-field, after Hitchcock had missed, came right down and scored the second goal for England, Balding riding off Guest cleverly. From the restart Lacey got away again and scored with a long shot. Roark made another long run, but the ball was stopped by Guest's pony, and at the end of the first chukker England were leading by three goals to one.

England's fine start aroused great enthusiasm among the spectators. Hitchcock, riding his best mount, Katrina, was quickly away in the second chukker, and scored with a long shot. After some even play, Pedley met a weak clearance by Guinness and hit through, making the scores level again. England's hitting at times was weak and uncertain. America hit over the line and then the umpires, J. D. Nelson and Captain Wesley J. White, had a long consultation and went off to discuss the matter with the referee, Louis E. Stoddard. A 60-yards free hit was given to America, but Hitchcock failed to score. England went away again, Guinness placing the ball well, but Balding missed his shot at goal. America then shot wide twice from a long range. In the third chukker Guinness made three fine hits, taking the ball the length of the field, and Balding, who was well placed, scored the fourth goal. Another fine hit by Guinness got the ball well up the field, bounding high off an American pony, and Lacey, following up, scored the fifth goal. Lacey got away again and tricked Guest, but the ball went behind. Then Guinness missed the ball in front of his own goal and Pedley shot. Guinness saved, but could not clear, and Hopping scored. A similar goal was obtained at the other end, Pedley shooting and Lacey stopping on the line, and Hitchcock coming up and hitting through off the goal-post. The score was then again even at five goals all.

The American shooting was poor and they were frequently hitting over the line. America got the lead for the first time midway through the fourth chukker, Guest hitting through from over 80 yards. A 60-yard free hit for England, taken by Guinness, was stopped in front of goal. A foul then given against Roark for crossing was taken by Hitchcock and stopped by Balding. At the end of the chukker Moneda, ridden by Lacey, collapsed. The pony, suffering greatly, was with difficulty taken from the field wholly crippled in the right fore-leg. The game up to half-time had been even. Neither Pedley nor Hopping was playing as well as he did on Saturday. Roark was not so good as he was then, but Lacey was irresistible, and by far the best man on the field. Guinness was hitting splendidly, but was at times uncertain when pressed. Balding was riding well and showed improvement on his display in the last game. Guest was also hitting well, his weight and fine mounts giving him a distinct advantage. Hitchcock was unable to cope with Lacey, who was much his superior.

On the restart Roark was quickly away, but missed the ball as he was ridden off and Guest cleared, but Balding met the ball and scored, making the score again even. Hitchcock missed with a long hit from over 80 yards. Guinness was badly crossed by Guest in making a long run, and Roark scored from the 40 yards' penalty, England again leading at 7—6. Play was very evenly contested, each side attacking in turn. The game became rather strenuous with much bumping and charging. Guest's poney fell with him, but he fell clear. Play was stopped while Guest reco vered from the effects, but after a few minutes he was able to walk to a new mount. Hopping scored after a run with Pedley when play was restarted. Lacey then cleared on the goal-line and made a long run down field, but America were soon attacking again. Roark and Lacey took the ball quickly to the other end and had hard luck in not scoring. Guest, with long hits, took play to the other end, but missed with his final shot. Pedley had an open goal from a fine hit up by Hitchcock, but the ball went inches wide. The

LAWN TENNIS

THE SOUTH OF ENGLAND CHAMPIONSHIPS

H. W. Austin, H. K. Lester, H. L. Soni, and J. F. G. Lysaght joined R. Miki, N. Sharpe, M. D. Horn, and C. H. Kingsley in the last eight of the South of England Singles championship at Devonshire Park, Eastbourne, yesterday.

Austin beat G. Greville by 6—3, 6—1 and Lester beat K. C. Gandar-Dower by 6—2, 6—4. An unexpected resistance was offered by S. F. Hepburn to Lysaght, who only won by 1—6, 6—4, 7—5. So exhausted was the loser at the end of the match that he had to retire in a Doubles later in the day. In order to reach the semi-final Austin now has to oppose Miki, and this match should prove a most entertaining one.

The results were:—

SINGLES.—THIRD ROUND.—H. W. Austin beat G. Greville (6—3, 6—1); H. K. Lester beat K. C. Gandar-Dower (6—2, 6—4); H. L. Soni beat J. C. Masterman (7—5, 6—1); J. F. G. Lysaght beat S. F. Hepburn (1—6, 6—4, 7—5).

WOMEN'S SINGLES.—THIRD ROUND.—Miss J. Sandison beat Miss F. James (5—7, 6—3, 6—2); Miss M. Heeley beat Mrs. J. B. Pittman (holder) (6—4, 3—6, 7—5); Miss J. C. Ridley beat Miss I. M. Boothroyd (6—3, 6—0); Miss P. E. Mudford beat Miss C. Tyrrell (6—2, 6—1).

DOUBLES.—FIRST ROUND.—H. R. Beauchamp and D. Brown beat P. Witkowski and L. H. T. Cliff (6—2, 6—4); C. H. Kingsley and C. G. Eames beat M. Temple and I. C. Maddock (6—2, 6—1). SECOND ROUND.—Captain G. Bright-Holmes and Captain G. S. Hatton beat M. D. Horn and S. F. Hepburn (6—0, 2—6, 4—2, retired). THIRD ROUND.—N. Sharpe and C. L. Malfroy beat W. Radcliffe and W. A. Ingram (4—6, 6—3, 6—1).

WOMEN'S DOUBLES.—FIRST ROUND.—Miss J. C. Ridley and Mrs. J. B. Pittman beat Miss P. I. Burt and Miss I. S. Howitt (6—3, 6—3); Miss M. Heeley and Miss F. James beat Miss F. S. Ford and Mrs. H. F. Cobb (6—0, 6—0); Mrs. Beamish and Miss F. K. Scott beat Miss L. E. Bull and Miss N. L. Kelman (4—6, 8—6, 7—5).

MIXED DOUBLES.—FIRST ROUND.—R. J. Ritchie and Miss Bull beat K. C. Gandar-Dower and Miss N. B. Milner (6—4, 6—4); W. A. Ingram and Miss C. Tyrrell beat J. C. Masterman and Mrs. Beamish (6—0, 6—2). SECOND ROUND.—R. Miki and Miss P. E. Mudford (holders) beat J. J. Lezard and Miss O. B. Manser (6—0, 6—4); C. F. Scroope and Miss F. James beat C. E. Malfroy and Miss M. Heeley (0—6, 10—8, 6—3); M. D. Horn and Mrs. Holcroft-Watson beat C. O. Tuckey and Mrs. Tuckey (6—2, 4—6, 6—1); C. G. Eames and Miss E. H. Harvey beat P. H. Sidney and Miss V. Eeley (6—3, 6—1).

AMERICAN SINGLES

FOREST HILLS, Sept. 10.—F. J. Perry, one of the British representatives in the Singles of the American Lawn Tennis Championships, was beaten in the fourth round here to-day by J. Van Ryn, after winning the first set. The score was 4—6, 6—3, 6—4, 6—1.

Other results were:—

H. G. N. Lee (England) beat J. Lang (U.S.A.) (6—3, 6—4, 6—2); J. S. Olliff (England) beat K. Werner (U.S.A.) (6—4, 6—2, 6—0); J. Van Ryn (U.S.A.) beat G. Gledhill (U.S.A.) (6—2, 6—4, 6—1); W. T. Tilden (U.S.A.) beat E. D. Feibleman (U.S.A.) (6—1, 6—1, 6—0); F. T. Hunter (U.S.A.) beat E. R. Avory (England) (4—6, 8—6, 6—2, 6—2); Gregory Mangin (U.S.A.) beat J. Hennessey (U.S.A.) (6—2, 6—0, 1—6, 6—2).—Reuter.

hitting on both sides was becoming rather wild and it became inaccurate in front of goal. Pedley eventually got the ball and scored the eighth goal for America. Balding went away from the throw in, but was outridden by Hitchcock on Katrina. A hit up and centre by Hitchcock next gave Guest the chance to score. Another goal was added before the chukker ended, Hitchcock making the longest hit of the game and Pedley scoring. America were now leading by 10—7.

In the seventh chukker Roark, playing at his best, twice just missed scoring. He was not long to be denied, for he scored a fine goal after beating three opponents to get into position. Guinness made a fine run and only just missed the goal. Towards the end of the chukker America attacked and Pedley scored with a high lofted shot. America were still three goals ahead at the start of the last chukker and were in a winning position. They had a great chance of increasing their lead when Guest missed the ball with an open goal in front of him and Pedley, following up, shot wide. Pedley got the ball near the goal-line, but was only able to tap it, and Guinness cleared. However, Pedley got the goal a second later, when the ball was returned. From the restart Lacey got away and scored. Pedley then hit another goal to make the victory more sure for America. England's hopes were then gone, and America's play was almost irresistible, and they scored once more, to win by 14 goals to nine.

The teams were:—

ENGLAND.—G. Balding, No. 1; L. L. Lacey, No. 2; Captain C. T. I. Roark, No. 3; and H. P. Guinness, back.

GOLF

THE IRISH AMATEUR CHAMPIONSHIP

(FROM OUR GOLF CORRESPONDENT)

DUBLIN, SEPT. 10

An epidemic of 19th holes swept over Portmarnock to-day. I call them 19th holes, but that is only a general term, for one went to the 20th, another to the 22nd, and the greater of all to the 26th.

This was a really wonderful match between J. Burke, the close champion of Ireland, and A. W. Briscoe, a really good golfer, who lives in the wilds of Connaught, and is only able to get anything like a match when he emerges, perhaps twice a year, for a championship. He certainly ought to have won this match, for he played the first eight holes in exactly the par figures, and stood five up. At the ninth he missed a putt, and that was down to four. It did not seem to matter then, but it just gave Burke the start he wanted. He began to play well, and Briscoe made mistakes. Still, when Briscoe was 6ft. from the home hole in three, and Burke 12ft. away in four, it seemed as if the quarry would just elude the hunter. After all, however, Burke holed his putt, Briscoe not unnaturally missed his, and the real match began.

The first extra hole was holed in four; so was the second, but only after both parties had been in the rough, and Burke had holed another neck-saving putt. So was the third, quite beautifully played by both parties. Both made a slip at the fourth, and then returned to par again for the fifth and sixth. The seventh Burke had in his hands, but he let his chance slip, and then came the finish at last, and the most unlikely possible finish. The eighth hole is of the length of a drive and a pitch, and the green is perched on a plateau. Burke hooked away into rough ground; Briscoe hit a beauty, ruled on the pin. Burke then played as fine a shot as could be seen on a summer's day, high, firm and bold to within three yards of the flag. Granted that he had a fortunate lie, it was a great shot, the sort of shot that wins matches, and it won this one. Briscoe was tempted to be greedy, for he pitched straight to the hole, ran over the plateau and into the rough grass. It was all over; Burke had two for the match, and did not take leave of his senses. He had holed those eight holes in 34 strokes—fine fighting golf—and it was just four hours since he had first struck off from the first tee.

Eric Fiddian lost to a very good steady Scottish golfer in Dickson at the 19th. He ought not to have gone so far, for he was two up with two to play, but he could not get a 4 after that, and Dickson got three highly meritorious ones in a row. J. S. F. Morrison had to go to the 20th against Neill, and he was not unlucky to go so far, for he laid his enemy the deadliest and most impossible of stymies at the 18th hole. Neill is an attractive player, with a style that seems to be modelled on that of George Duncan. It is a fine swing, but I think he carries the sincerest form of flattery too far in the pace at which he plays. Malcolm, the three handicap player, who beat Tulloch yesterday, continued his victorious career at the expense of Darwin. Sutton had to work hard to beat Bentley, a stray young man from Lancashire, and Dr. McCormack played just as well as he had against Hezlet to beat Walter Carroll.

In the afternoon the crowd went out in the hopes of seeing a mighty display of hitting between Dr. McCormack and Dr. Moore, who had gained a good win over yet a third doctor, A. R. McCallum, in the morning. It was an entirely disappointing match, for McCormack won easily enough despite one small lapse in the middle of the round. He nearly always drives well and has struck a good vein of putting, which he attributes to his pretending that there is no ball to putt, and his least dependable shot is with an iron. If that does not betray him it is hard to see who can beat him. Sutton is playing splendidly, doing nothing brilliant, but doing nothing stupid. He was given a hard fight by Hennigan, another of these three-handicap players from Portmarnock.

Malcolm was just beaten by Jackson, of this year's Oxford team, and he was rather cruelly used at the 17th. He had put a grand second pretty close to the hole, and then Jackson holed out. At the last hole Jackson got down in two from a bunker, admittedly with two very fine shots.

The local celebrity, M. Crowley, was beaten by G. D. Hannay at the last hole after all sorts of vicissitudes. Up to the turn Hannay played well, while Crowley was playing much more quickly and less confidently than usual, and looked thoroughly uncomfortable. Coming home Hannay began to play down to Crowley's level and all sorts of odd things happened. Hannay was dormy three, but lost the next two holes, one through Crowley's good play and the other through his own bad play. To the Home hole Hannay cut his second into a bunker, but Crowley went one better and put his into a hedge over the bunker, and that was the end of it.

Burke was treated by Morrison much as he himself had treated Briscoe in the morning. After being four up and dormy three he was pulled down until he was in grave jeopardy. Morrison won the 16th in a great four, and the 17th in a scratchy but courageous five. Burke here missed a very, very short putt, and it was clear that those eight extra holes in the morning were beginning to tell. Morrison was unlucky at the last hole, where a splendid recovery shot was bunkered. He had a putt which might have saved his life, but he missed it, and so Burke passed on. With a good night's rest he will be difficult to beat.

The results were:—

FOURTH ROUND

M. Hennigan (Portmarnock) beat J. A. Rogan (Portmarnock) by 3 and 2.

W. Sutton (Timperley) beat H. G. Bentley (Hesketh) by 2 and 1.

G. D. Hannay (Berkshire) beat S. C. Ferguson (Royal County Down) by 4 and 3.

M. Crowley (Portmarnock) beat J. Cochran (Glasgow University) by 7 and 6.

G. R. Malcolm (Portmarnock) beat B. Darwin (Rye) by 3 and 2.

G. P. Jackson (Chislehurst) beat H. Fogg (Royal Liverpool) by 4 and 3.

Dr. J. D. McCormack (Hermitage) beat W. J. Carroll (Portmarnock) by 4 and 3.

G. J. Moore (Beau Desert) beat Dr. A. R. McCallum (Castle Bromwich) by 2 holes.

D. A. Fiddian (Stourbridge) beat D. Wilson Smyth (Royal County Down) by 5 and 4.

R. G. Chittenden (Royal St. George's) beat A. M. Stuart (Royal Portrush) by 4 and 3.

J. A. Barr (Royal County Down) beat S. Gill (Tandridge) at the 22nd hole.

H. M. Dickson (Glasgow) beat E. W. Fiddian (Stourbridge) at the 19th hole.

J. S. F. Morrison (Sunningdale) beat R. Neill (East Renfrewshire) at the 20th hole.

J. Burke (Lahinch) beat A. W. Briscoe (Castlerea) at the 26th hole.

A. S. Anderson (Hindhead) beat H. S. McCulloch (Glencruitten) at the 19th hole.

W. F. French (Rosslare) beat W. J. Gill (Sutton) by 3 and 2.

FIFTH ROUND

Sutton beat Hennigan by 3 and 1.
Hannay beat Crowley by one hole.
Jackson beat Malcolm by one hole.
McCormack beat Moore by 5 and 3.
Fiddian beat Chittenden by 3 and 1.
Dickson beat Barr by 7 and 6.
Burke beat Morrison by one hole.
French beat Anderson by one hole.

OLD BRADFIELDIAN G.S.

The autumn meeting of the Old Bradfieldian Golfing Society will be held on September 20 and 21, over the course of the Royal Cinque Ports Club, Deal. All Old Bradfieldians, whether members of the Golfing Society or not, who would like to attend and who have not already received notices of the meeting, should communicate with the Hon. Secretary, A. R. Topping, 16, Southampton-street, Bloomsbury-square, W.C.1.

THE CALCUTTA CUP

MORE CLOSE MATCHES

ST. ANDREWS, SEPT. 10

To-day saw the third and fourth rounds decided in the Calcutta Cup Tournament over the New Course, and in conditions that are commonly known as Calcutta Cup weather. The wind had veered round to the south-east during the night, and a steady drizzle fell almost incessantly throughout the day, which made St. Andrews appear a grey and ghostly city when viewed from the far hole. It also had much to do with the disappearance of all but the backmarkers, for the course played too long for the handicap couples and rather upset the calculations of the handicapping committee.

The result of it all is that H. E. Taylor and Lieutenant-Colonel P. G. M. Skene (scratch), P. A. Young and R. E. Waterston (1), and Major G. C. Campbell and Major R. S. Lambert (1) survive until to-morrow morning. Therefore, Taylor and Lieutenant-Colonel Skene will play Young and Waterston in the morning, giving them one stroke at the long eighth, and, unless they halve, the winners will meet Major Campbell and Major Lambert, who received a very welcome bye, in the final round after luncheon. This morning there were five matches, all but one of which were excellent games. In the first, Taylor and Colonel Skene lost the first three holes to Lord Balfour of Burleigh and D. Irvine Robertson, who received four strokes, but after that they gradually wore them down, and won by two and one. In the second match Dr. J. A. Neilan and D. F. Fulton (3) caught Colonel H. H. M. Harris and Lieutenant-Colonel A. O. Boyd (5) off their game, and polished them off by six and five, but after that came three real struggles.

First of all, in a match as full of incident as it was of attack and counter-attack, Young and Waterston just got home on the last green from Captain G. A. Rusk and W. A. Sievwright, who many thought would figure in the final round. Then came the meeting between the Sandemans and Major Campbell and Major Lambert, in which P. W. Sandeman was the hero of the occasion, but which eventually finished in favour of the Army golfers on the 17th green. Lastly, Dr. W. G. Alexander and Robert Park (7) disposed of the last long handicap couple, Dr. W. C. Johnson and J. G. Meilersh (1) at the same point.

That left three matches for the afternoon, and all were as close as good matches can be and typical of foursome play in its most entertaining form. First of all Taylor and Colonel Skene, giving a third to Major-General Sir Colin Mackenzie and H. L. Boyd, got a flying start and were four up with six holes played. Then, however, came a sudden change, and Sir Colin Mackenzie and Boyd seized their chances, won the seventh, 10th, 11th, and 12th, and the match was all square. At the short 13th Skene holed a long putt for a 2 on that curly green. This gave him and his partner the lead again, which they hung on to until the match ended on the home green.

The match between Young and Waterston and Dr. Neilan and Fulton was a desperate struggle. The first three holes were halved in 4, 4, 5, which are par figures. Young and Waterston won the fourth hole, but Neilan and Fulton took the short fifth with their stroke. All square. The sixth and seventh holes were halved. Neilan and Fulton won the long eighth, but Neilan topped his drive to the ninth, which cost him and his partner the hole, and the match turned all square. Young and Waterston won the 10th, Neilan and Fulton the 11th. The 12th, 13th, and 14th were all halved. Young and Waterston won the 15th, but were twice bunkered going to the 16th, lost it, and, once more, the match was all square.

The 17th proved to be the decisive hole. There Neilan and Fulton were stone dead in three, but that was not good enough, for Young and Waterston accomplished a fine three between them, and made no mistake in getting the necessary half at the home hole.

The match between Major Campbell and Major Lambert and Alexander and Park was decided on the putting green, Lambert holing four beautiful putts—two of them really long ones, and one of the others an apparently dead stymie, and Campbell supplying another long steal on the fourth green. That really was the story of a match in which Park played extraordinarily well.

To-morrow morning's match should be a really interesting encounter, and all that is wanted is fine weather.

The results were:—

THIRD ROUND

H. E. Taylor and Lieutenant-Colonel P. G. M. Skene (scratch) beat Lord Balfour of Burleigh and D. Irvine Robertson (4) by 2 and 1.

Dr. J. A. Neilan and D. F. Fulton (3) beat Colonel H. H. M. Harris and Lieutenant-Colonel A. O. Boyd (5) by 6 and 5.

P. A. Young and R. E. Waterston (1) beat Captain G. A. Rusk and W. A. Sievwright (2) by 1 hole.

Major G. C. Campbell and Major R. S. Lambert (1) beat P. W. Sandeman and Sir N. S. Sandeman (6) by 3 and 1.

Dr. W. G. Alexander and Robert Park (7) beat Dr. W. C. Johnson and J. G. Mellersh (12) by 2 and 1.

FOURTH ROUND

Young and Waterston beat Neilan and Fulton by 1 hole.

GIRLS' CHAMPIONSHIP

The Girls' Open Golf Championship was begun at Stoke Poges yesterday.

The best match in the morning was that in which Fräulein Dorothea Weyhausen (Zur Vahr, Bremen) was beaten by Miss Peggy Whitfield (Rushmere), one of twin sisters who had entered for the championship. Miss Whitfield, however, had several anxious moments before she won on the home green. To begin with, she seemed to be rather nervous, particularly on the greens, and some poor putting was almost entirely the cause of her being four down at the 10th hole. From that point, when all seemed lost, Miss Whitfield showed better form, and Fräulein Weyhausen began to make mistakes. The youngest entrant, Miss Pauline Doran (North Surrey), who is only just 15, went out in 38 and won five of the first nine holes in her match with Miss Kathleen Merry (Templenewsam), who was beaten by five and four. The two Australian girls met in the first round, and Miss Katharine Rymill beat Miss Alison Milne by four and three, after being all-square at the turn.

There were some close matches in the afternoon, and in one of them Miss Peggy Whitfield beat Miss Lulu Esmond (St. Cloud), a sister of the Girl Champion of 1926, at the 20th hole. Miss Esmond, who had made a weak start by losing the first hole, seemed at one time likely to win, for she was two up at the turn and three up at the 10th. Finding herself, for the second time in one day, in a dangerous position, Miss Whitfield once more recovered and won three successive holes—the 13th, 14th, and 15th—to square the match. Miss Esmond won the next hole to become dormy, but took three putts on the home green. Both missed short putts at the 19th, which was halved, and then Miss Whitfield, who had played several good strokes on and near the green, chipped from a bunker at the 20th and holed her putt from the edge of the green for a 4, the hole, and the match.

The results were:—

FIRST ROUND

SECOND ROUND

Miss Rymill beat Miss Hough by 1 hole.
Miss Franklin beat Miss Bennett by 2 and 1.
Miss Doran beat Miss Lashmore by 6 and 5.
Miss Greaves beat Miss Rieben by 2 and 1.

SHERINGHAM MEETING

The Sheringham autumn meeting was continued yesterday, when the first and second rounds of the match-play tournament for the Douglas Reid Cup were played. Those who qualified to play in the third round were:—

Captain C. T. Whinney (2), N. A. J. Cohen (2), Lieutenant-Colonel R. Barry-Smith (16), E. C. Laws (1), C. Pearse (6), R. Deterding (3), R. H. Toller (10), Lieutenant-Colonel E. C. Packe (16), Legh Barratt (6), the Hon. R. S. Mansfield (5), G. Daniell (5), A. L. Mathews (13), D. B. Davies (4), Lieutenant-Colonel F. J. Radford (10), S. L. Robinson (11), and Sir Algernon Osborn (2).

"NEWS OF THE WORLD" TOURNAMENT

THE SOUTHERN QUALIFYING COMPETITION

The Southern Section of the Professional Golfers' Association decided the first half of a qualifying competition for the News of the World £1,040 tournament at Woodcote Park yesterday. Eighteen holes were played yesterday, and at the end of another round to-day 29 players will qualify to take part in the match-play stages of the tournament at Oxhey on September 23.

The scores returned yesterday suggested that such well-known players as Harry Vardon, G. Gadd (Roehampton), E. Ray (Oxhey), and J. Braid (Walton Heath) will be faced with the necessity of accomplishing particularly good scores to-day to be certain of qualifying. Meanwhile, the members of the younger school were paying tribute to the splendid condition of the Woodcote Park course by the ease with which they obtained the correct figures. The heavy overnight rain, which stopped before play began, had made the fairways and greens easy-paced, and C. A. Whitcombe showed his appreciation with a brilliant round of 70, which equalled the seven-year-old record which stood to the credit of F. Ball, who is now in America, and C. Gray. Two hours later T. H. Cotton joined Whitcombe as a holder of the record, and he would have beaten 70 with a little more luck on the greens. During the round he had seven putts of about four yards each, but holed only one—at the 17th. His only mistake through the green was at the 10th, where his approach shot was pulled among the trees and he took 5. W. H. Wooler (Hollingbury Park), requiring a 4 at the last hole for a score of 68, put his second shot into a bunker, reached the edge of the green with his recovery, and then took three more to get down, so equalling Whitcombe's and Cotton's score.

J. Donaldson (Cuddington) later joined the ever-increasing band of those who had equalled record, but 70, which had been shaken all day without falling, was broken at last by Abe Mitchell, who returned the remarkable score of 67. He had no figure worse than a 4 or better than a 3, and so accurate was his approach play that he seldom left himself more than a yard from the hole.

The leading returns were:—

73.—J. J. Taylor (Potters Bar), W. T. Twine (Bromley and Bickley), E. R. Whitcombe (Meyrick Park), W. E. Brown (Broxbourne), S. Trapp (Romford), Bert Hodson (Chigwell), C. W. Thomson (Royal Eastbourne), A. Herd (Moor Park), S. Field (South Beds), A. Compston (Coombe Hill), H. C. Kinch (Woodcote Park), C. Easterbrook (Marlborough).

74.—J. E. Field (assistant) (Worplesdon), P. Baxter (Northwood), R. G. Wilson (Croham Hurst), A. Perry (Leatherhead), L. Batts (Barnehurst), G. Faulkner (Bramley), A. Tingey, jun. (Frinton), A. J. Lacey (Selsdon Park), H. Brown (Beckenham), A. H. Padgham (assistant) (Royal Ashdown Forest).

75.—W. G. Oke (Fulwell), C. Parsons (East Brighton), H. C. Jolly (Foxgrove), W. B. Smith (Hadley Wood), T. B. Jolly (Royal Guernsey), G. M. Turner (Guildford), F. J. Bradbeer (Canterbury), L. T. Cotton (Coulsdon Court), E. A. Haynes (Tyrrells Wood), C. S. Denny (Thorpe Hall), W. C. Thomas (Royal Blackheath).

76.—R. A. Herd (Molesey Hurst), F. M. Dean (Wyke Green), C. F. White (Burhill), Harry Vardon (South Herts), George Gadd (Roehampton), W. Hammond (assistant) (Sudbury), G. T. Adams (Hampstead), Claude Gray (Willingdon), D. A. Plumbridge (assistant) (Upminster), H. Amos (Portsmouth City), W. E. Peters (Brookmans Park), F. H. Frostick (St. George's Hill), S. H. Dennis (Thorndon Park), J. B. Batley (Pinner Hill), Stewart Burns (Hendon), H. A. Sales (assistant) (Sunningdale).

77.—L. V. Baker (assistant) (Woodcote Park), A. J. Young (Sonning), J. S. Fernie (Old Fold Manor), E. McInnes (Mote Mount), H. A. Gaudin (Wanstead), T. Trapp (Shirley Park), F. Robson (Cooden Beach), J. Crombie (Malden), J. Ockenden (North Middlesex), R. Cox (Saffron Walden).

78.—A. Ashby (Letchworth), A. F. Hockey (Enfield), M. Daragon (South Lodge), Hugh Roberts (Stoke Poges), A. Wells (Hartsbourne Manor), G. Charman (Prince's, Sandwich), W. M. Watt (R.A.C., Epsom), P. Newbery (Sudbury), D. Curtis (Queen's Park, Bournemouth), F. Hedges (West Byfleet), R. K. Dalby (Finchley).

79.—E. Ray (Oxhey), J. Randall (Sundridge Park), W. E. Hitchins (asst.) (Richmond Park), D. G. Twine (Rochester and Cobham Park), L. Holland (Gerrards Cross), W. Marks (Waterloo, Belgium), J. R. Smith (Hayling), A. W. Willmott (asst.) (Potters Bar), S. J. Jones (Ifield), A. G. Wallis (asst.) (Addington), A. Cook (Andover).

SEMI-FINAL ROUND

Howell beat Lloyd by 2 and 1.

LORD HAWKE'S TRIBUTE

The Australian cricket team and Mr. H. D. G. Leveson-Gower's XI. were the guests of the Mayor and Corporation of Scarborough at the Jubilee dinner of the Scarborough Festival last night.

LORD HAWKE said that Mr. Bradman had come to this country and robbed Yorkshiremen of record after record. They did not mind that. He was a wonderful and brilliant player and at the end of a series of five Test Matches had an average of 139. He did not believe Bradman had played his finest innings yet. He congratulated Grimmett on having got 29 wickets in the Test Matches. They had heard a nasty rumour that four of that splendid team were thinking of retiring—Woodfull, Ponsford, Grimmett, and Oldfield. He hoped it was baseless. There was no better quartet. They had never had a finer skipper in this country than Woodfull. The Australian team played the game right up to the hilt, both on and off the field.

MR. KELLY, manager of the Australian team, spoke with gratitude of the hospitality that had been showered on them and the wonderful sportsmanship which had been shown to them.

RATING OF ROADSIDE TELEPHONE BOXES

The Central Valuation Committee have sent a circular letter to all County Valuation Committees, County Borough Councils and Assessment Committees in England and Wales (outside London) in which they give their valuation, for rating purposes, of the roadside telephone boxes belonging to the Automobile Association and the Royal Automobile Club. They say that the A.A. and the R.A.C. have agreed to pay, as from April 1, 1930, rates on their roadside boxes in accordance with the following scale:—

Type	Gross value	Rateable value
A.A BOXES
A	£5	£3
B	£3	£2
W	£3	£2
R.A.C. BOXES
All types at present in existence	£2	£1

SUNDAY FLYING

In consequence of repeated protests from residents of Cramlington, Northumberland, against Sunday flying, the Newcastle Aero Club have instructed all pilots to avoid the neighbourhood of churches and chapels, and to refrain from flying over villages during Sunday trips. At the Wesleyan District Synod at Newcastle yesterday it was stated that, as the result of numerous complaints, the Aero Club had written to the Air Ministry station at Cramlington that they had issued instructions to flyers to avoid chapels and churches. The Air Ministry had replied that, as other forms of transport were not restricted on Sundays, it was not practicable to seek power to prohibit the flying of aircraft on Sundays.

ASSOCIATION FOOTBALL

ARSENAL WIN AGAIN

Unfortunately the weather broke just before the kick-off, and 28,000 people saw the match begin in heavy rain and end in semi-darkness. The game was not a great one, and it will be remembered chiefly by those who would like to see a goal awarded when a back deliberately handles in the goal-mouth. It was in that way that Arsenal won the match.

Arsenal hardly played like future champions, for there was too much individualism and not enough teamwork. Allowances must be made for the absence of James, who was suffering from an injury received on Saturday, but even so the substitution of Johnstone for James can hardly be held responsible for the regularity with which the whole side kept the ball in the air, or for the complete domination of Jones over Hulme. Lambert now and again tried to crash his way through a very solid defence, but he was given surprisingly little assistance.

The half-backs were sound enough, and the backs, of whom Parker was the better, saved Keyser so much trouble that he hardly had an anxious moment after saving a penalty kick taken by Hutton in the first 10 minutes. By that time Arsenal had already taken the lead, for in the first two minutes Jack had passed across the goal and Bastin had easily scored from close range.

Soon afterwards Puddefoot steadied a centre from Bruton, who was Blackburn's most dangerous forward, and sent in a shot that Keyser never saw, but which Hapgood saved by diving to his left and fisting the ball away. Hutton took the penalty kick, but he shot straight at the goalkeeper, who easily cleared. Bruton, however, gave Blackburn a well-deserved goal when he took a nice pass from Bourton and shot it past Keyser as he rushed out of goal.

Blackburn looked the more likely to go ahead after they had drawn level, but Johnstone put Arsenal in front just before half-time, heading the ball in from Bastin's corner. Half an hour from the end Bastin took advantage of a miss-kick by Hutton to score on his own after Binns had saved his first shot, and, after an Arsenal defender had nearly put through his own goal, Puddefoot scored from close range.

The teams were:—

DESTROYER BUILDING AT PORTSMOUTH

The keels are due to be laid at Portsmouth Dockyard to-morrow of the destroyers COMET and CRUSADER, and the NIGHTINGALE, tender to the mining school. This will be the first time that destroyers have been built at Portsmouth, as ever since the introduction of the class nearly 40 year ago it has been one in which private firms, such as Thornycroft and Yarrow, have specialized. The allocation of two destroyers to Portsmouth is by way of compensation for the loss of an order for a cruiser. In the original programme of 1929 there were three cruisers, which were to have been built, two at Portsmouth and Devonport and one by contract. In January last, the number was reduced to one, the LEANDER, which was laid down last week at Devonport. Instead of eight destroyers, all to be built by contract, the revised total is four, of which two are allotted to Portsmouth and the other two have been contracted for with Vickers-Armstrongs, Limited. The keels of the COMET and CRUSADER will be laid by Lady Keyes, wife of the Commander-in-Chief, Admiral of the Fleet Sir Roger Keyes, and Mrs. Donaldson, wife of the Admiral-Superintendent, Vice-Admiral L. A. B. Donaldson. That of the NIGHTINGALE will be laid by Mrs. Bridges, wife of the commanding officer of the VERNON torpedo school, Captain H. D. Bridges. This vessel will be of 255 tons displacement, with a length of 100ft. She will have engines of 400-horse power, with coal-fired boilers, and her speed will be 10 knots.

GIBRALTAR DESTROYERS' CRUISE

The destroyers TOURMALINE, Commander E. P. Vivian, and SPLENDID, Lieutenant-Commander J. A. McCoy, of the Gibraltar Local Defence Flotilla, are ordered to carry out the following autumn cruise:—San Lucar, September 22-26; Huelva, September 26-30; Gibraltar, September 30-October 3; Oran, October 3-9; Algiers, October 9-16; and Iviza, October 16-20; returning to Gibraltar on October 21.

REGIMENTAL ALLIANCES

The King has approved of the following alliances:—The Saskatchewan Border Regiment, Non-Permanent Active Militia of Canada, to The Border Regiment; 10th Light Horse Regiment, Australian Military Forces, to The Warwickshire Yeomanry.

FLYING TRAINING DISTINCTION

Flying Officer (Mate, R.N.) Leonard E. Ricketts has been awarded the special assessment, "distinguished pass," in accordance with paragraph 377 of the King's Regulations and Air Council Instructions, on the completion of a course of ab initio flying training at the R.A.F. Base, Leuchars, Fife. This officer, who began his course in January last, was formerly second-in-command of the destroyer VANOC, tender to the torpedo school at Portsmouth.

CHRISTIAN UNITY

THE TESTIMONY OF LAMBETH

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES

Sir,—It is natural in the retrospect of the Lambeth Conference to consider what light the Conference has thrown upon the position of the Church of England, especially in the far parts of the world. No feature of the Church's recent history has, I think, been more significant than the relation of the Church to other Christian Churches, alike in the West and in the East. Where would it be possible to discover so impressive a spectacle of Christian unity as in the assembly of representatives, sent by all the Churches of Christendom except the Church of Rome, to the enthronement of the Archbishop of Canterbury in his Cathedral, and again to the Lambeth Conference?

Such an assembly of "men of good will" may not unreasonably be held to afford, if not a promise, yet a prospect of one great ultimate federation, embracing not only the Church of England and the Churches in communion with her but the other Churches, both Episcopal and non-Episcopal, in Europe and in the United States of America, and above all the Holy Orthodox Church or Churches of the Near East. Whether the basis of the federation should be reunion or intercommunion, it is not altogether easy to decide. The Bishops at the Lambeth Conference were inclined apparently towards reunion, but a policy of actual reunion may prove to be difficult, if it is taken to imply that the Churches which assent to it agree in doctrine and ceremony; whereas intercommunion would rather mean that, although they did not agree, yet they would not and could not regard their points of disagreement as cutting them off from all common action in moral and social reform and from common worship, whether private or public.

An Englishman, who is a member of the Church of England, may be tempted to over-rate the importance of his own Church. But after some experience both at home and abroad, I do not think I am wrong in saying that no Christian Church enjoys in so high a degree the widely spread confidence, not only of Christians generally, but of non-Christians as the Church of England. There are other Churches which are her equals and rivals, perhaps even her superiors, in the examples of Christian enthusiasm and self-sacrifice; but no Church is more generally trusted for the equity and charity of her attitude towards religion in all its many forms. How far the opportunity of the Church is due to the fact that she is the Church of the nation, and therefore, in some sense of the Empire, I cannot tell; but the sympathetic temper of the Church of England, while it best accords with her character and her history, may well prove to be the most valuable of all assets in the reunion or intercommunion of Christendom.

The centuries which have elapsed since the Reformation, and still more since the division between the Eastern and the Western Churches, may be taken to show that the hope of uniformity, and indeed of unity, among the Churches will not within any measurable period of time be realized. It may be better that a Church should aspire to be the friend of all the Churches than the dominant mistress of them all. There is, indeed, reason to hope or think that some problems of modern ecclesiastical life will be more easily solved in the far parts of the world than at home; and no prayer can lie nearer to the heart of all true Christians than that the Church of England may maintain, and even augment, such beneficent influence as belongs to her upon the life of the nations throughout, and even beyond, the range of Christendom itself.

I remain, Sir, your obedient servant,
J. E. C. WELLDON.

AIRSHIP AND LINER

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES

Sir,—I trust I may be permitted to call attention to one very serious and misleading mistake which Mr. Geoffrey Lloyd makes in his letter on the subject of "Airship and Liner," published in your issue of to-day.

In the case of an airship making a round trip in a continuous current of air, Mr. Geoffrey Lloyd supposes that the retarding effect of an adverse wind in one direction will be "correspondingly" compensated for by the assistance of a following wind in the other direction. This, of course, is not the case. To take the extreme example of an airship having a speed through the air of 70 miles an hour making a round trip of 6,000 miles in a continuous windstorm of 69 miles an hour it is obvious that the journey against the wind, at a speed of one mile an hour over the ground, would occupy 3,000 hours. The return journey at a speed of 139 miles an hour with the wind following would take about 21 hours, or for the round trip, 3,021 hours, equivalent, at 70 miles an hour, to 211,470 miles through the air.

Similarly, in a continuous windstorm of 60 miles an hour the distance travelled through the air on the round trip would be 22,610 miles, and it would, therefore, in such case be very much shorter, both in time and mileage through the air, to start round the world in the opposite direction.

The figures given in my letter published in your issue of September 5 for the cases of a continuous gale at the rate of 40 miles an hour and a continuous breeze at the rate of 30 miles an hour are perfectly correct and take into consideration the effect of both the adverse and the favouring winds on the round trip. They make evident one of many serious disadvantages under which an airship service must always operate.

The fares by, and performances of, aeroplanes referred to by Mr. Geoffrey Lloyd do not appear to have any special bearing on the subject, except in so far as they demonstrate the superiority of the aeroplane over the airship.

Your obedient servant,
BRADFORD LESLIE.

TEA—A CONTRAST

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES

Sir,—Mr. A. S. Judge's letter is a gross aspersion on tea dealers. In effect, it means they are getting some 8d. per lb. profit out of workhouse contracts. I myself tendered for two large ones recently, where the fixed price was 1s. 6d. The blend in each case was composed of all British-grown tea, Indians and Ceylons, bought by me in the Mincing-lane tea auctions at many pence above the War Office price. The soldiers got far better tea to drink when the War Office bought blended tea supplied by tenders submitted by the big tea dealers.

TEA DEALER.

SUBSIDIZED FOREIGN FLOUR

INCREASED IMPORTS

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES

Sir,—While there are signs that the widespread protest against the dumping in this country of subsidized French and German flour is having its effect, the reaction is too late to give our farmers a fair price for this year's wheat crop. Their return is actually lower than for any year since before the War; during the first seven months of the year home-grown wheat was selling at 8s. 7d. a cwt. compared with 9s. 10d. last year, and 10s. the year before that.

There seems to be no reasonable doubt that this fall in the price is the result of the dumping of flour made from Continental wheat, which is soft like ours, and therefore competes directly with it.

During the first six months of 1928, when English wheat was selling at 10s. the cwt., 44,728cwt. of flour was imported from France. Next year the quantity imported rose to 79,367cwt., and the home price fell by 2d. This year the "dumped" total has gone up to the colossal figure of 747,329cwt., and I suppose that the lustier Cobdenites will now assure the English farmer that he should be thankful his price has not fallen by more than 1s. 3d. the cwt.

Yours, &c.
J. W. BANFIELD, J.P., General Secretary, Amalgamated Union of Operative Bakers, Confectioners, and Allied Workers.

OVERSEAS TRADE

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES

Sir,—Sir Ernest Glover says in your issue of September 2 that in order to give more chance of arriving at a wise decision it is desirable to agree on a common jumping-off ground for the discussion. His final conclusions are:—

1. That we are driven at every point to the cost of production, which must be on a basis to enable us to compete with our world competitors; and

2. That the Australian mistake is the counterpart of what some protectionists are advocating for this country.

Is not the Australian mistake primarily that of borrowing beyond their means for national development purposes? So far as their import duties are concerned, these have been levied for the purpose of developing manufactures for their own home market, there being no purpose in view of carrying on a world export trade in such protected articles, the staple Australian exports obviously being so-called raw materials. The position in England is diametrically opposite. Our great problem is to foster the export of manufactured goods. In order to put the cost of production on a basis to enable us to compete with our world competitors our manufacturers must have the same possibility of steady output as their foreign competitors enjoy, and that steady output cannot be obtained while the foreign competitor has free access to dump his surplus products in our home market while his home market is safeguarded against us. We must be safeguarded equally if we are to compete equally.

Yours faithfully,
ELLIS A. D. KISCH.

RESTORATION OF OLD BUILDINGS

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES

Sir,—As the recent correspondence on the proper treatment of old timber framed buildings, including Mr. Powys's letter of August 15, arose on a letter from myself which you were good enough to publish on July 17 last, will you kindly grant me space for one or two observations.

From the particulars of similar cases mentioned from time to time in the Annual Reports of the Society for the Protection of Ancient Buildings, one realizes the impossibility of attempting to lay down a hard-and-fast rule governing the varying problems which continually arise. Here are one or two instances. In two of my company's houses—the White Hart, Dorchester, Oxon, and the Rose and Crown, Chippenham—some unusually interesting heavy oak floor-joists have been revealed by the removal of the ceilings of some of the ground-floor rooms, plain honest plaster work of a later date. Would the Society rule that this plaster should have been left undisturbed? In your issue of July 28 last there is an illustration of a perpendicular window in Bicknoller Church, Somerset, with the tracery nearly perfect, which had been completely blocked up. Would it be contended that this should not have been restored to view? In the Builder of August 22 there is a note on the timber framing beneath the modern plaster work of the upper portion of a Tudor house in Dartmouth, which has been recently exposed with the approval of no less an authority than Mr. William Weir. The only conclusion is that every case must be considered and decided on its merits, subject always to the condition that such work should never be taken in hand except under the guidance of an architect well versed in the proper and reverent treatment of ancient buildings.

Mr. Powys appears to claim that the uncompromising position he takes up is that of the Society as a whole. That it is far from representing the unanimous opinion of the general body of members has been made very clear during the course of the correspondence. A principle, however sound, can be pressed to absurd lengths. One of the recent Reports summed up the whole question in a remark on a parallel case, "The matter is one of common-sense."

In the instance at the King's Arms, Salisbury, it is perhaps to be regretted that Mr. Powys, when writing to you, did not take the opportunity of withdrawing one or two unpleasant suggestions as to my board's motives in carrying out the improvement, and of correcting certain inaccuracies which had been pointed out to him in his earlier statement.

I am, yours obediently,
T. C. USHER.

ST. KILDA COLDS

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES

Sir,—In the latter part of the last century the Chatham Islands, situated in the South Pacific, 500 miles east of New Zealand, were served by a small sailing ship from Lyttleton, which called about every three months. On the arrival of the ship all the people were seized by violent colds called murry-murry. There was no regular communication between the sheep stations and small villages and sometimes the first intimation of the arrival of the ship to people living 20 or 30 miles from Waitangi, the first port of call, was an attack of murry-murry. Probably the explanation of murry-murry and the St. Kilda colds is that on remote and isolated islands, thinly populated by small and widely scattered settlements breathing only pure ocean air, antitoxins become demobilized after a time, leaving the system defenceless against the attack of germs carried by the passengers and crew of the newly arrived ship.

Yours faithfully,
R. N. LYNE.

"IN OVID'S COUNTRY"

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES

Sir,—In your issue of September 1 Mrs. Huntington contributes an interesting note on the extent and antiquity of the use of woven baskets or pots for cheese which I had mentioned in my article on Sulmona. May I add a little more? They can be taken back to an earlier age even than that of Euripides. When Odysseus watched the Cyclops at his dairy work in the cave, he saw him make cheese and put it in woven baskets, πλεκτοῖς ἐν ταλάροισι (Hom. Od., 9, 246-7). According to M. Bérard the Cyclops lived in the Phlegraean Fields to the north of the Gulf of Naples. The first sight of these cheeses "embedded," as I said, so firmly in their cases immediately reminded me, not indeed of Ovid, but of the scene in Aristophanes (Frogs, 549) where the landlady and her maid recall Heracles's outrageous greed when he put up with them. Among other enormities he had swallowed the cheese αὐτοῖς τοῖς ταλάροις—baskets and all. It is just what an impatient hero with an heroic digestion might do.

I am, &c.,

LAND VALUATION

I cannot help thinking that Mr. Pedler is a little rash in assuming from the wording of the Land Valuation Bill that it is in the landowner's interest to have his site value fixed at a high level. The wording of Clause 2 (6), to which he refers, seems to me to be intended to give the referee a power, similar to that already possessed by Commissioners of Taxes in respect of income-tax assessments, where he thinks an appeal is unjustified of not only refusing any relief by reduction, but of remedying any under-assessment he may consider to exist by increasing the assessment under appeal. If the next few words of the clause are read it will be seen that it is proposed also to give the referee power to decrease the cultivation value in the case of agricultural land on appeal. It may, therefore, well be that the landowner's true interest will be to secure a low site value, and a high cultivation value, and all these considerations add great weight to Mr. Pedler's plea that the real object of the Bill should be made clear.—Mr. K. J. DAVIS, Stag Brewery, Pimlico, S.W.1.

REGIMENTAL ALLIANCES

May I supplement the interesting article in your issue of yesterday on the subject of the "alliances" between British and Dominion regiments? Your correspondent says, "the system originated a few years after the South African War." Unless my memory is badly at fault the system was originated in 1902, immediately after the South African War, by Lord Dundonald, who was General Officer Commanding the Canadian Militia.—Mr. IAN MACALISTER, The Athenaeum.

HANGING GARDENS OF BABYLON

Strabo (xvi. 1.5) states that the "hanging garden" of Babylon "consists of vaulted terraces, raised one above another." This statement, in a measure, supports the view advanced by Dr. Hodges. Diodorus Siculus (ii.10.2-6) describes these gardens as being square, measuring 400ft. each way, and rising in terraces provided with earth enough to accommodate trees. Berosus (260 B.C.) tells us that Nebuchadnezzar II. erected for the gratification of his Median wife this remarkable structure, which the Greeks called κρεμαστὸς παράδεισος, or οἱ κρεμαστοὶ κῆποι.—The REV. ALGERNON WARD, Church Lawford Rectory.

SCHOOLBOYS AT LORD'S

On September 1 I took 22 Oxford elementary schoolboys to Lord's to view the Surrey and Middlesex match. Mr. W. Findlay was most kind in every conceivable way and showed them features of historical interest in the Pavilion, mainly by reference to the wonderful collection of pictures which adorn its walls. The oil painting of the Grand Old Man was singled out by Mr. Findlay, who emphasized the straight way in which he held his bat and evinced the hope that all his juvenile listeners would follow in his footsteps and thereby develop into W. G. Graces, or words to that effect. The boys were intensely interested. Every boy who makes the trip to Lord's has to write an essay on the day's outing for prizes to be subsequently awarded at a big function in the Oxford Town Hall. One of them must have been tremendously impressed with all that Mr. Findlay said of the Grand Old Man, because in his essay he states as an absolute fact that "W. G. Grace was the man who started cricket as a game, and was the first president of the Marylebone Cricket Club." I take this opportunity of publicly thanking Mr. Findlay for his sincere and thorough interest in the Boys' Cricket Movement.—Mr. J. R. F. TURNER, 199, Iffley-road, Oxford.

THE SMELL OF MUSK

In 1903 we lived in Surrey, and under the windows of the front of the house was a bed of musk. That year the musk came up scentless, though it had given off a heavy scent for the three previous years. On inquiring among my friends and neighbours, I found that the same thing had happened to their musk. Perhaps some of your other readers may be able to remember when exactly their musk lost its scent. At first I thought it was only local, but I was never able to get musk with any odour.—Mrs. E. A. GARDNER, Recess, Boyn Hill, Maidenhead, Berks.

CONTINENTAL SANITATION

Mr. Albert J. Offer hardly states the whole facts; he omits to mention that, in the majority of French hotels at any rate, the waste pipes of baths, basins, &c., discharge straight into the soil pipes, instead of into an open gully, as is compulsory in England. Accordingly, the unsealing of a trap by siphonic action leaves the basins or bath waste pipe in direct communication with the drainage system. Nor is it sufficient to turn on the water (to re-form the seal of the trap) only when one hears the gurgling sound of a trap being siphoned, for this may well take place when one is asleep or out of the room. Unless one is satisfied that bath and basin waste pipes are not connected with soil pipes—and generally it is impossible to make sure as to this—it is absolutely necessary to leave a tap always dripping, so that, if the trap becomes unsealed, it is quickly sealed again. Of course this precaution is not necessary in the rare event of the traps being protected by a "puff pipe."—Mr. PERCY HOLLAND, 1, Sloane-court, S.W.3.

THE BURMESE LILY

The Burmese lily, rightly praised in The Times of September 6, is here quite hardy, never protected or sheltered in any way. It is the most beautiful of all the lilies I have seen.—Mr. W. ROBINSON, Gravetye Manor, East Grinstead, Sussex.

ANOTHER SUFFOLK EPITAPH

As a contrast to "poor gentle Bridgett's" epitaph, I enclose the brief and dignified lines engraved in exquisite lettering on a mural stone at Coddenham in memory of an eighteenth-century vicar.

Solid in Divinity
Laborious in his Ministrie.
Heavenly in Societie.
A Mirror of sound Pietie.

—LADY HARRIS, Lindfield House, Lindfield, Sussex.

LITTER

As a large part of the litter in parks and beauty spots consists of cigarette and sweetmeat cartons and papers, may I suggest that a useful purpose might be served if manufacturers of such commodities would have printed on the cartons and wrappers an appeal that they should not be left about as litter?—Mr. H. D. CONWELL, 8, Motcombe-road, Eastbourne.

IMPROVING TRAFALGAR-SQUARE

Mr. C. F. Lincoln Field is surprised that business men should approve of the idea of increasing the attractions of Trafalgar-square. It may be that business men in London have a closer appreciation than he has of the value of an attractive Metropolis to the catering and other retail trades which embrace so large a proportion of its ratepayers. Every other capital city in Europe spares no pains or expense to attract visitors from all parts, realizing the immense commercial value of beauty in their public places. Trafalgar-square is a place which nearly everyone coming to London probably sees in the first 24 hours of his or her visit. It has already been improved by Mr. Lansbury in the provision of more public seats, and the suggested lawns, &c., would add to the amenities of what has been well called the finest site in Europe.—Mr. J. LANDFEAR LUCAS, The Mount, 11, Eastbury-road, Northwood, Middlesex.

POINTS IN COUNTY CRICKET

With a view to finding a simple solution of this vexed question, may I suggest that two extra points be given for a win, the points for a first-innings win, &c., remaining as at present? This, it appears to me, would put a desirable premium on winning and should induce county clubs to go all out to secure the extra points.—Mr. W. R. HALE, 75, Copers Cope-road, Beckenham.

FLEUR-DE-LIS

I am shocked by the incongruous suggestion that the fair Lilies of France were originally toads. The figure of Clovis in the Franciscan church at Innsbruck is a sixteenth-century affair made to adorn the tomb of Maximilian I., and cannot, therefore, be used as evidence of Merovingian practice. It is well known, however, that fleur-de-lis were commonly used by Merovingian kings to adorn their sceptres and crowns. At first they appear to have been used on the Royal shield with great profusion, but—as a heraldic device—their number was reduced to three by Louis VII. It became usual in France to brand galley-slaves with fleur-de-lis, and I imagine that our own broad-arrow is derived from that custom.—Mr. C. E. CARROLL, Mount Lee Lodge, Egham Hill, Surrey.

BATS IN CHURCHES

Your correspondents have given information how to prevent bats from getting into churches; but can anyone state how to get bats out of a church where they have established themselves in the old inside roof for at least 40 years or more, and apparently inhabit the church all the year round? It will be helpful to know this.—Miss M. E. BURROWES, The Old House, Maids-Moreton, Buckingham.

Book of the Day

ROBERT HUDSON

A GREAT ORGANIZER

SIR ROBERT HUDSON: A Memoir. By J. A. Spender. (Cassell. 7s. 6d. net.)

Mr. Spender has done well. In writing a life, or even a "memoir," of Sir Robert Hudson he undertook a delicate and difficult task. There must be at least fifty people alive each of whom feels himself to be the only one who really knew "Robert" well and was fit to appreciate him as he deserved. (In guessing fifty we are being as cautious as Hudson himself would have been over some estimate of money or votes in the darkest years of his political party.) That does not mean that the biographer has fifty people waiting to pounce upon him for any omission or misrepresentation, because it is hard to think of jealousy or malice between friends of Robert Hudson; but it means that he has to explain, directly or indirectly, how the light of a single nature could shed so many different rays. Analysis of his character goes far to help, but is full of pitfalls. Say how gentle and full of good will he was and you must recall what sort of steel was found in him by rogues or shufflers. To dwell on his laboriousness, his earnestness, might be to proffer a vision of something smug and dull and to miss his brilliant flashes of insight and the gaiety and delicate mischief of his wit. Talk of his charm (and it is no use trying not to talk of Robert Hudson's charm) might suggest something other than his untainted naturalness; yet beneath his open simplicity lay the reticence of a profound modesty. Record his fastidious integrity, and you may do less than justice to his inspired wiliness. A choiceness and daintiness which none could help observing in his clothes, his books, his way of living generally, could easily seem incompatible with his capacity for mixing in the rough-and-tumble of active life and enjoying it thoroughly so long as his strength would allow. After the Aston Park riots near Birmingham in 1884, when the Liberals "rushed" a gigantic meeting of Conservatives, Robert Hudson was seen "standing, after the meeting had been broken up, on what should have been the speakers' table and—it is to be feared—waving his hat." He was only 20; and Mr. Spender finds it "impossible to think of him as having at any time of his life organized a breach of the peace"; but it is well that that little vision should come early in the book and be remembered all through it. For in this many-sided nature the robustness was equal to the fastidiousness.

Clearly, this is a difficult character for a biographer to see whole; and when he has put in all these and many other facets of a subtle and complex nature, he has still to bring out of their various rays a portrait which those who knew the subject shall recognize as faithful and which shall give those who had not that happiness some idea of what he was in life. One trembles to think what might have been made of Robert Hudson by one of the dashing impressionist biographers, who would choose one aspect of him only. Mr. Spender has relied upon older and more faithful methods. Out of his great knowledge of politics and persons he has put down the gist of what was and what happened; and his true instinct and his warm feeling for his subject have not failed to give life to his work. Among the "Appreciations" which come at the end of the book, those written by Lord Gladstone and by Mr. Birrell each adds a touch or two; and Sir James Barrie, writing six sentences only, says one perfect little thing: "It was always good to know that Robert Hudson was to be there—wherever it was." A letter from Father O'Connor, too, earlier in the book, makes an important point: "Perhaps few men ever could smile as Robert did." But the portrait is not a studio piece or a composite. It is Mr. Spender's doing; and he has done it well.

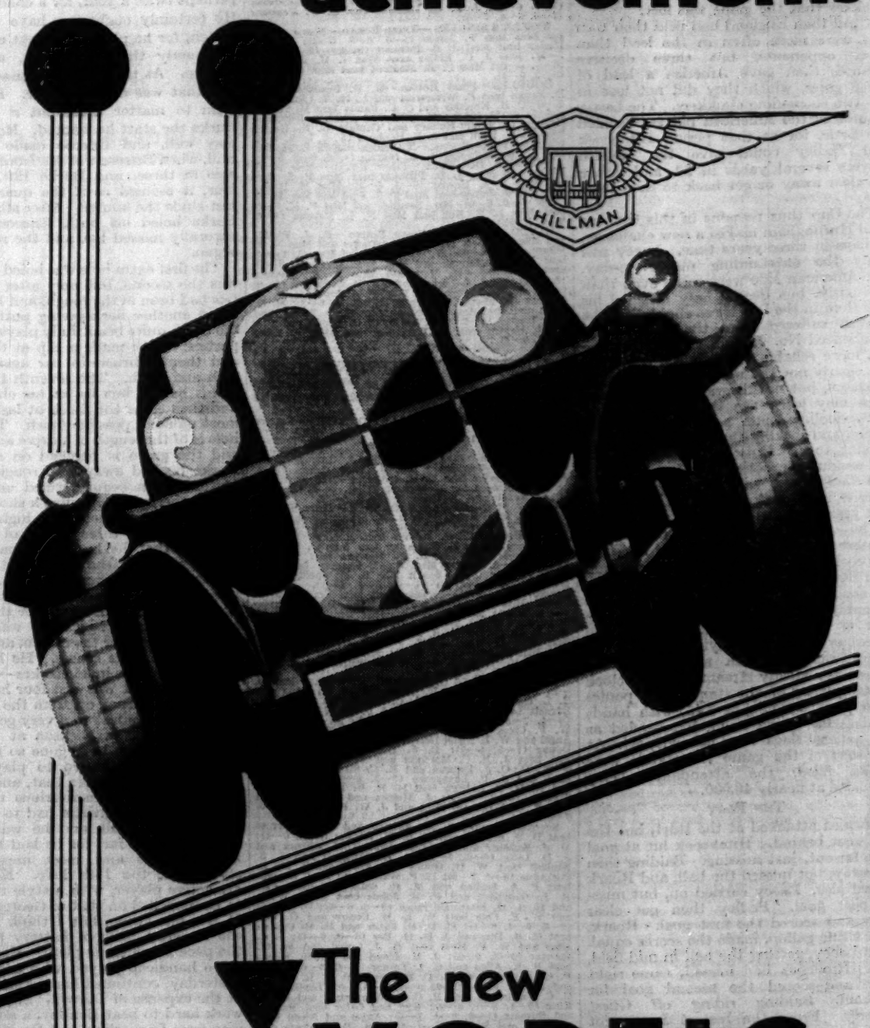

Trained and trusted by Schnadhorst, Hudson, in 1893, at the age of 29, succeeded him both as Secretary of the National Liberal Federation and as Secretary of the Liberal Central Association. He thus became liaison officer between the Federation operating in the country at large, and the Chief Whip whose principal functions lay in House of Commons duties, in conference with the leader of the party, in providing candidates, and in collecting funds.

Hudson held both offices until 1922, when he exchanged the secretaryship of the federation for the treasurership. In June, 1926, he resigned that treasurership, and in January, 1927, he resigned the secretaryship of the Liberal Central Association. "Exhausting labour and baffling uncertainty," "tumult and bitterness," "exasperating difficulty"—such are some of the phrases used to describe the conditions of that time, when, except for the triumph of 1906, the story of the Liberal Party was a story of defeat, of dissension, almost of despair. And during all those years the one man who was constant at his post—and that post the cardinal post, in fact, though by no means the most showy—was Robert Hudson. Prime Ministers came and went; Chief Whips came and went; presidents of the federation came and went: Robert Hudson was there always. It is a marvel that his labours, his responsibilities, and his inevitable disappointments did not wear out his frail physique earlier than they did. But nothing could break his spirit, and nothing could deflect his loyalty to his principles and to the men who represented them. No one would be surprised to learn that, without a second thought, he refused high office under Mr. Lloyd George in 1916; but those who knew him are not likely to forget his bearing during the incredible and heart-breaking difficulties over the party funds in 1926. It is the story of these doings and of Hudson's conduct of his part in them (a story very well and truly told by Mr. Spender) which sets the reader asking himself the always futile question whether Robert Hudson was not in truth a great man, and which compels the admission that at any rate he was a man of extraordinarily fine calibre and nobility of nature.

Leave out all his political career, and his work for the Red Cross in the War would be enough to entitle him to fame. Besides that, there were his services to Westminster Abbey and its Chapter (he would, we believe, like it to be known that through him, as the trusted friend of both parties, came the inauguration of the fund raised by this journal for the preservation of the Abbey—a fund of which he was one of the first trustees). And pages of Mr. Spender's book are rightly given to Hudson's friendships, to the great joys and great sorrows of his home life, to his love of books and music and travel. In this rich and various character the most remarkable element was its power over men, in which lies the true genius for organization. But to know Robert Hudson one must go behind that power over men and discover its secret. We believe that secret to have been nothing but an essential beauty and purity of nature.

Two HILLMAN achievements

The new VORTIC

"Built to make driving easier"

In the new "Vortic" no effort has been spared to build a car that will make driving still simpler, still more pleasurable for the owner driver.

The new "Traffic Top" silent gear in the specially designed four-speed gear box makes crawling at a walking pace as smooth and silent as touring on top. Central change with an "Easy-reach" gear lever allows a silent change down at a touch of finger and thumb. The Servo assisted brakes need only the slightest pedal pressure. Finger-light steering and well designed suspension give an ease of control and a sense of safety on corners that cannot be approached by cars costing twice as much. The engine, of course, is of eight cylinder design for the smoothly silent high speed cruising, effortless climbing and delightful acceleration that only eight cylinders can give. At its price, the Vortic is without doubt the easiest and pleasantest car in the world for the owner to drive.

COACHBUILT SALOON - - £425

and even GREATER VALUE in the Fourteen & Straight "8"

A startling Hillman achievement. This year, the Straight Eight and the famous Fourteen, modified as the result of experience gained by gruelling tests all over the world and brought up to date with still better performance and still more beautiful colour schemes, have yet been greatly reduced in price. New production methods have made these astounding reductions possible. With all the traditional Hillman features—finger-light steering, wonderful suspension, exceptional beauty and comfort of coachwork—a Straight Eight or Fourteen at its new price is definitely and indisputably the best value that can be obtained in the motor market to-day.

AIR ATTACK ON THE FLEET

LESSONS OF THE EXERCISES

IMPORTANCE OF SPEED

PORTSMOUTH, Sept. 10

The air attack on the Atlantic Fleet south of the Isle of Wight last night was an argument both for and against the policy of concentrating old and rather slow but highly reliable aircraft at points where they might readily take part in naval actions. There was not a high-speed machine in the operations; yet the Air Force gained notable successes, especially in the early stages when the Fleet was without its main anti-aircraft defence. The great torpedo attack on Nelson and Rodney was even more successful than could have been expected. The Fleet had very little warning of it, and the ships selected as targets had been harassed before it took place, so that they were probably in no condition to defend themselves and had to rely on manoeuvring to avoid the torpedoes after they had been launched by the Darts.

No manoeuvring can rely upon avoiding torpedoes discharged almost simultaneously from different points and making different courses, and the two great battleships were hit by eight out of the 17 torpedoes sent against them in that raid. It is clear that a body of aircraft, once among the Fleet, must meet with some success if they are not disabled by anti-aircraft fire. This is now becoming a serious danger to slow machines operating near the water or over the ships. The only aeroplanes with any pretensions to speed in last night's raids were the III. F's. The Flycatchers, which were used for machine-gun attacks, would seek security in rapid manoeuvre rather than in fast retreat, and the Darts, with their torpedoes, had perforce to take their chance and rely on imperfect marksmanship among the anti-aircraft gunners.

The machine-gun attack appears to be returning to favour. Even a slow machine can become an almost impossible target at the end of a steep dive over its objective, but it runs serious risks as it retreats. Naval armaments are now taking greater account of aircraft attacks, and speed in attacking machines will, therefore, become of greater importance. This action, on the other hand, proved the vulnerability of battleships to damage by air.

BUSY DESTROYERS

The ships of the Fleet did their best to evade missiles, both above and beneath the water, but no ship can hope to compete with aircraft in handling, and the area in which they might dodge was rather closely defined by the need to remain within range of Cowes. The busy vessels last night were the destroyers, which tore along the line in one direction or another to meet threatened attacks; but they, too, could not keep pace with even the slowest aircraft, nor could they expect to do much damage with their pompoms to high-flying raiders as they came over.

The ships which the aeroplanes were really anxious to avoid on their journeys were those cruisers which carried the most modern anti-aircraft guns; they were expected to make things unpleasant at fairly long range. That is the type of defence which raiding aircraft will have to reckon with more and more, and the best answer to it is greater speed, with a consequent reduction of the chances of a hit. It is obviously no part of naval policy to assume that the Fleet can be deflected from a duty by missiles from the air. Last night it stuck rigidly to its target, though its two biggest ships had been torpedoed and several of the others bombed. It allowed itself an area of movement not more than 10 miles long by five miles wide while it was bombarding Cowes, and it never sought to upset raids by moving into unexpected positions.

This was undoubtedly sound tactics, for the aeroplanes would have thought little of an extra 10 miles in any direction, though they might have had to disclose their presence a little sooner in looking for the enemy. Aircraft in such a situation cannot intimidate a Fleet and put a stop to a bombardment. It can only hope to be effective at all if it operates in large numbers, making the ships continually alter course and frequently interfering with gun laying. Cowes to-day may be reckoned to be very badly damaged by shell fire, though not so badly as it might have been, and it has the satisfaction of knowing that its assailants suffered too.

ARMY TRAINING

THE 4th DIVISION

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT)

During Monday and Tuesday an interesting campaign in the Napoleonic tradition was fought in Suffolk. Eastland, a country which included most of Suffolk, at war with its neighbour Westland, had fought several successful actions against that State. Thereupon, Blueland, a Continental ally of Westland, landed two forces on the night of Sunday at Southwold and Aldeburgh, with the object of relieving the pressure on the Westlanders; and by 8 a.m. on Monday, these forces had reached Henham and Saxmundham respectively.

Both forces had, however, suffered to some extent during disembarcation. Their orders were definite:—To march to Brundish, where a junction of the two forces was to be effected. Once this junction was made the two forces were to become the Blueland Expeditionary Force under the command of Brigadier Stapleton, then commanding the Southwold column, the 10th Infantry Brigade.

Meantime, Eastland had concentrated a superior force at Tannington, eight miles from Saxmundham and 14 from Henham. This force consisted of the 12th Infantry Brigade (Brigadier Sir Hereward Wake), reinforced by the 2nd Medium Brigade, Royal Artillery, a regiment of Cavalry, and one Flight of No. 2 (Army Cooperation) Squadron, R.A.F.

Time was the essential factor in the situation when the operation began to develop at 8 a.m. The Blueland plan of marching inland, effecting a junction, and then proceeding with a superior force, could only be countered by some rapid and effective stroke. Brigadier Wake's plan, based on the Napoleonic model, to hold one column with a small force while he turned on and inflicted a decisive defeat on the other, appeared to offer the best solution. With this object in view, he concentrated his force in the neighbourhood of Peasenhall, an important road junction, and aimed at holding the Aldeburgh column by means of a number of defensive localities while he struck a decisive blow against the Southwold column, who were presumed to be advancing south-eastwards to make a junction. This presumption was not, however, correct. The Southwold Commander had in fact decided to remain in a strong position on the River Blythe, near Henham, until reinforced by his remaining battalions and batteries; and, in the meantime, he was attempting to communicate with the Aldeburgh column, with orders for that column to move due north to Yoxford, to make junction with him there about 2 p.m.

The commander of this column, however, had already advanced from Saxmundham in a north-westerly direction towards Brundish in accordance with his original orders, and had made contact with some Eastland cavalry near Rendham. Shortly after 10.30 a.m. the Eastland force and the main Aldeburgh column had clashed in the same neighbourhood; and in view of a lack of news of an approaching Southwold column, a change of plan was forced on Brigadier Wake. Circumstances now compelled him to launch his chief attack against the Aldeburgh column while he held off any threat from the Southwold column on his northern flank.

A WITHDRAWAL IN DARKNESS

At 11 a.m. Aldeburgh received its wireless sets; and by noon the remaining battalions joined the Southwold column on the Blythe; aircraft (two flights) also became available for Blueland at 11 a.m. Communication with regard to movements became more rapid and effective between the two invading columns, and the Southwold commander now decided to advance on Peasenhall with the object of making a junction, early in the afternoon, with the Aldeburgh column. Meantime, the Aldeburgh column had been fighting against the superior Eastland force and had received a severe handling. Indeed, between 1.30 and 2 p.m. the Aldeburgh column was almost encircled, and, had a further advance of one Eastland battalion (The Seaforth Highlanders) not been checked, the decisive Napoleonic blow might have been struck. As it was, it was touch and go. The opportunity did not return again.

By 3.30 p.m. the two Southland columns had made contact at Sibton Green, near Peasenhall, and henceforward the dice were heavily weighted against the Eastland commander. Throughout the remainder of the afternoon the Southwold column gradually came into the engagement and the opposing lines lengthened out to about six miles from north of Peasenhall to the neighbourhood of Cransford. About 6 p.m. Eastland received orders to withdraw and take up a line through Brandish to Laxfield and to cover the railway, by means of which reinforcements were to arrive for him during Tuesday. At the same time, Blueland was ordered to concentrate with a view to an early advance westwards on Tuesday towards the railway, and to isolate the railhead, Laxfield, and so prevent the arrival of reinforcements.

During the evening Eastland began a skilful withdrawal, fighting delaying actions, and under cover of darkness slipped away to a line of defended localities between Laxfield and Brundish. At dawn contact was renewed. The Rifle Brigade (Aldeburgh) attacked and captured Brundish, and the Blue column entered the railway station at Laxfield. Severe and skilful counter attacks were launched by Eastland shortly after 9 o'clock, but no material alteration in the position had been achieved when an armistice was declared about noon, at which time Blueland was staging a consolidated attack on the centre of the Eastland line.

The scheme was of special interest as an example of manoeuvre in very difficult and enclosed country. The various means of maintaining communications were severely tested, and, perhaps of even greater interest and importance, the value of the time and space factors in mobile warfare were illustrated very clearly. The distances between the forces were perhaps too small for the conduct of a campaign on interior lines, though it was obviously the only one which offered any hope of success. Indeed, the crisis which occurred at 1.30 p.m. on Monday showed how effectively such a plan might be carried out, and how complete and dramatic success might have been attained by Eastland had they been free from attack on their northern flank for another hour. Like the battle of Waterloo—in Wellington's phrase—"It was a d—d near thing."

14th INFANTRY BRIGADE

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT)

CATTERICK, Sept. 10

To-day the 14th Infantry Brigade completed their second brigade exercise. The training area represented an island belonging to Redland, a country some distance south, and the only place where an attacking force can land on its northern coastline is Stainton, a small mining port. The other ports on the east are Hipswell and Scotton, and on the south Bellerby. The island is not occupied by Redland, but contains important mines situated in the vicinity of Walburn Hall. Whiteland, an enemy country some miles to the north, decided to send a small force to destroy Redland's mines at Walburn Hall, and detailed Lieutenant-Colonel Perkins (2nd Battalion, The Hampshire Regiment), with a force consisting of his own battalion and the 1st Battalion, The Durham Light Infantry, one squadron of the 5th Inniskilling Dragoon Guards, one battery of the 21st Field Brigade, R.A., and one Flight of No. 26 (Army Co-operation) Squadron, R.A.F., to proceed from Barnard Castle to Catterick Island and disembark at Stainton, with orders to destroy the mines and take the necessary steps to protect the demolition party. This force had a number of civil engineers attached to assist in the technical arrangements, which it was considered could not be accomplished in less than 24 hours. Redland heard of the contemplated raid and detailed Lieutenant-Colonel Creagh (2nd Battalion, The Leicestershire Regiment), with a force consisting of his own battalion and the 1st Battalion, The Prince of Wales's Volunteers, the 5th Inniskilling Dragoon Guards less one squadron, the 21st Field Brigade, R.A., less one battery, and one flight of No. 26 Squadron, R.A.F., to disembark at the port of Hipswell and proceed with all speed to secure the mines and frustrate Whiteland's raid. Redland were also provided with lorries, which represented steam trawlers, sufficient to transport one battalion, should the Redland commander wish to attempt an outflanking operation on the south coast of the island.

Both forces landed according to schedule, and Redland took advantage of the steam trawlers at Hipswell Harbour to send two platoons of infantry to land near Stainton and create a diversion. For the defence of the mines at Walburn Hall it is essential that the high ground from Barden Fell to Downholme be secured, and for an attack on the Gill Beck area you must first secure the same heights. Curiously enough, to-day neither side attempted at first to secure Barden Fell. Whiteland pushed an attack from Crowhill through to Waitwith Bank, and at the same time Redland attacked Barden Fell from the east. Shortly after this the exercise closed.

Perhaps the chief lesson learned to-day was the value of reconnaissance. The operations were watched by Lieutenant-General Sir Cameron Shute, General Officer Commander-in-Chief Northern Command, and Major-General W. M. St. G. Kirke, commanding the 5th Division.

OPERATIONS ON THE PLAIN

LARGE FORCES ENGAGED TO-DAY

(FROM A MILITARY CORRESPONDENT)

AMESBURY, Sept. 10

In the second exercise, under the control of Lieutenant-General Sir A. A. Montgomery-Massingberd, to be held in the Salisbury Plain area, the frontier between Eastland (Lieutenant-General F. F. Ready) and Westland (Major-General A. E. W. Harman) is assumed to run through Beedon and Newbury to Whitchurch, and thence along the line of the River Test to Southampton Water.

General Harman's force will include all the units engaged in the first exercise (described in The Times of September 9 and 10), except those mentioned below. General Ready's force will include the 1st Division from Aldershot, a composite Household Cavalry Regiment, the 11th Hussars (less one squadron of armoured cars), the 2nd Battalion Royal Tank Corps, and Ordnance units. No. 4 (Army Cooperation) Squadron, R.A.F., acting as day bombers, and No. 13 (Army Cooperation) Squadron will work with the Eastland commander; No. 16 (Army Cooperation) Squadron and No. 25 (Fighter) Squadron with his opponent.

The operations begin at 2 p.m. to-morrow, with the front lines of both main armies in contact on the line Bradford-on-Avon-Warminster-Sturminster Newton-Dorchester. The Eastland Forces actually on the ground were stationed at first in the area Tidworth-Andover-Stockbridge; the Westland Forces in the area Wells-Glastonbury. The operations will be continued through the night, and will conclude on Friday. Eastlanders wear white hatbands, and the Eastland armoured fighting vehicles will be marked as described for Northland in The Times of Tuesday. Eastland aeroplanes can be distinguished by a black band about 4ft. wide, with streamers, on the under side of each plane.

GERMAN BAKERS' DESIRE FOR BRITISH MACHINERY

Seventy German master bakers were the guests of the organizers of the 34th International Confectioners' and Bakers' Exhibition at the Agricultural Hall, Islington, yesterday. Herr Funke-Kaiser, president of the German Association of Master Bakers, told a Press representative that in many ways the British trade was undoubtedly superior to the German, but, on the other hand, they had been able to supply British bakers and confectioners with some good ideas. British machinery was very much in advance of that used in Germany, particularly that for making pies and pastries. They were making arrangements to introduce this type of machine into Germany, but one of the difficulties in the way was the heavy import duty. At a luncheon Mr. A. B. Hutchison, president of the Scottish Association of Master Bakers, announced that they had arranged for an exchange of students with the German Association. During the year four sons of master bakers from Scotland would receive training in Germany, and a similar number of German youths would be trained in Scottish bakeries. If the experiment was a success the scheme would be extended.

LADY CHEYLESMORE'S HOUSE ENTERED

Burglars who entered Cooper's Hill Park, the residence of Lady Cheylesmore at Englefield Green, between Egham and Windsor, during her absence in Canada, committed a good deal of damage without apparently securing any articles of much value. They forced the study window to secure an entry, and damaged several articles of furniture by forcing drawers with chisels and other implements.

A MACHINE RIFLE

TESTS WITH NEW WEAPONS AT BISLEY

BISLEY CAMP, Sept. 10

Vickers-Armstrongs, Limited, gave a demonstration to-day on the National Rifle Association ranges at Bisley of the Vickers-Berthier land service machine rifle and the Pedersen self-loading rifle.

The Vickers-Berthier machine rifle, with its bipod rest, weighs 20lb., as against 28½lb. for that which is now most commonly in use. It is operated by the recoil, and can be used either for single shots or automatically for bursts. It is claimed that 300 rounds can be fired automatically in one minute at a target, and that 90 aimed single shots can be fired. It is simple in design and can be stripped into five main parts in 10sec. The top magazine, holding 30 rounds and shaped like the segment of a circle, can be changed in 2sec. The general shape is similar to that of a rifle with a normal stock. It is air cooled.

All tests with this rifle were made at a range of 100 yards at targets with an 18in. bull. The first test—of single-shot accuracy—was made at slow-fire rate and at a rate of 30 aimed shots in 13 seconds. Both series were well grouped and only two rounds escaped the bull. It was shown that the gun could be fired in any position, even upside down. One hundred and eighty rounds were fired across a target in a horizontal traverse, and all but a few rounds lay in a belt nine inches wide. A vertical traverse made with the use of the back rest was equally successful. The back rest was used only in this test; in all other cases the stock rested in the shoulder. A hot barrel—very hot—was changed in order to prove that it need not be touched by the hand in the process.

More than 1,000 rounds were then fired in fairly rapid succession through one barrel, and the last 300 of these were fired at maximum speed, nearly 800 rounds a minute. After a slight delay a further 30 rounds were fired to prove that the barrel had not lost its accuracy. It was an excellent demonstration of durability. A modification of the Vickers-Berthier permits of the use of drum feed, with drums which hold either 60 or 100 rounds. This gun has normally a short and light barrel, but a heavy barrel—giving the gun the functions of a heavy machine-gun—can be substituted swiftly. In the test of the heavy barrel there was a temporary failure owing to a loose screw, but later it performed admirably.

Tests were made with the normal Vickers-Berthier after the gun had been buried in sand and soil and after it had been submerged in a mud bath. It passed both tests. It was shown also that the gun in its normal form could be used without the bipod, and rounds were fired from the shoulder, the hip, on the knee, and lying down. That it is not an exhausting gun was proved by the comparative freshness of the man who fired it through all its tests. It can be fired at any angle for anti-aircraft work, and this test proved that it is amenable to blank cartridges. By a simple modification the gun can be converted in a few seconds into an aircraft observer's gun (in its drum-feed form). The general accuracy of the gun during these tests was high. There can be few criticisms without long experience of the weapon. The most noticeable to-day was that the rifleman received a certain amount of smoke in the face, but as it did not seem to affect his accuracy the fault cannot be serious. On its performance it is definitely superior to the other light machine guns in common use to-day. More than 17,000 rounds have been fired from one barrel without noticeable loss of accuracy.

The Pedersen self-loading rifle has been designed to provide a light and effective rapid-fire weapon for the infantry. It is claimed that the fire-power of the troops can be increased by from 2½ to three times by the use of this weapon in place of hand-operated rifles. It is not an automatic rifle, and the trigger must be operated for each round, an important psychological point for the soldier. The cartridges are carried in clips of 10, pressed into the magazine. The self-loading mechanism is not gas-operated. Further efficiency is claimed because of the use of special cartridges, of 7mm. calibre, which are lighter and smaller than the standard .303 S.A.A., and ballistically are said to be of sounder design. This is a simple and light weapon to fire. The test was made by three men, who began firing at 500 yards and then ran towards the target, firing again at each successive 100 yards until the 100 yards range was reached. Approximately 180 rounds were fired by each man, and one of them put 85 rounds on the bull and had 53 inners and 37 outers. The worst had 50 bulls, 60 inners, and 43 outers. Rapid fire for one minute from 100 yards was equally successfully, one man scoring in that period 62 bulls, four inners, one outer, and one miss.

The demonstration was attended by representatives of the War Office, the Small Arms School, and other interested institutions.

ECONOMICS OF THE EMPIRE

MANCHESTER TRADERS' SUGGESTIONS

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT)

MANCHESTER, Sept. 10

Suggestions for a more systematic investigation of the economic problems of the British Empire are made in a memorandum drawn up by the Manchester Association of Importers and Exporters and recently forwarded by this body to Mr. J. H. Thomas, Secretary of State for the Dominions, with a view to consideration by the forthcoming Imperial Conference.

The association is a body of Manchester traders formed in 1907 to assist in the development of the sea-borne trade of the Manchester district, to negotiate as a united body with shipowners individually and in conference, and to regulate freight contracts, bills of lading, and other matters of maritime commerce. The first suggestion of the memorandum to the Imperial Conference is that it should appoint an Imperial Economic Conference to consider all economic problems of the Empire. Such conference should be devoid of all political significance, but should be representative of the economic, trade, and finance departments of every Government in the Empire and of employers and employed in the basic industries and of the commerce, shipping, finance, and agriculture of each unit in the Empire. Its business should be to investigate and report on the economic problems of the British Commonwealth of Nations. Secondly, the memorandum suggests the establishment of an Imperial economic secretariat to provide reliable information and data upon all questions coming up, and especially in the formation of an Empire policy. Here, again, it is insisted that scrupulous care would be necessary to avoid party political bias, though the economic needs and inclinations of each separate Dominion should be fully examined and their relative conditions carefully weighed with a view to co-ordinating them. It is urged that the natural and intelligent aspirations of the Dominions to possess full economic life, including all classes of manufacturing, should be nurtured in conformity with the mutually beneficent advancement of all the component parts of the Empire.

The memorandum asserts that this formula implies the principle that economically unsound trades of any kind should be scrupulously avoided and removed, if already existing. Spontaneous reciprocity in all trading operations is urged, apparently in preference to legislative arrangements, and it is suggested that Imperial mergers and combinations should be promoted on a bigger scale, scientific research more closely carried out, and the personal touch strengthened by extension of travel. The memorandum concludes with a recommendation that the Imperial Conference should consider the question of introducing an Empire currency and credit system, uniform throughout the Empire, as a means of stabilizing prices and promoting the exchange of Empire products with the rest of the world.

ACQUITTALS

Lena Kemp, 45, committed from Marylebone Police Court on a charge of obtaining from a London store a bedstead and other articles by false pretences with intent to defraud, was found Not Guilty at London Sessions yesterday, and was discharged. Charles Fielder, 40, commission agent, committed from West London Police Court on a charge of being drunk in charge of a mechanically propelled vehicle, was found Not Guilty, and was discharged; and Harry Etting, 36, a manufacturer, committed from Marylebone Police Court on a charge of receiving a stolen suit case, was found Not Guilty, and was discharged.

CHILDREN'S EYES

SIGHT IN SCHOOL

OPTICIAN'S WARNING TO EDUCATIONISTS

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT)

CAMBRIDGE, Sept. 10

One of the most interesting papers read at the Optical Conference at Cambridge was submitted to-day by Professor H. Pistor, head of the Jena optical school, who spoke on children's eyesight.

He said that, though the question of wearing spectacles by children had always been occupying the attention of the optical profession, it had not, strangely enough, been of much concern to those who were entrusted with the education of children. In these circumstances it might easily be understood that many cases of apparent mental backwardness in children could be traced to defective eyesight and not, as might be erroneously supposed, to laziness, negligence, or obstinacy. Myopia, where not corrected, would prevent the child from following lessons on a blackboard or map, and the child would thus become indolent. In severe cases of myopia, curvature of the spine was often induced by reason of the child leaning over in endeavouring to read. Astigmatism in a child would prevent it writing in horizontal lines, and would also cause it to incline its head on one side when looking at the blackboard, when it would naturally support its head on its hand. Such an attitude, instead of being treated as inattentive or ill-mannered, should first give rise to the question whether it was not a case of existent astigmatism. Nothing could possibly prejudice education more than the unjust treatment of a child in spite of it doing its best to get on, and for this reason greater attention should be paid to the eyes of the children.

Speaking at the National Health Insurance meeting at the afternoon session, Mr. R. J. Davies, M.P., of the Distributive Workers' Approved Society, said that approved societies would not be able as a whole to pay for dental, surgical, or ophthalmic treatment were it not for the interest received on investments made many years ago. The income of the approved societies to-day would hardly pay for statutory benefits, and he urged them to resist the idea of allowing their balances to be used to restore the finances of the bankrupt unemployment insurance scheme.

HIGHWAY ILLUMINATION

A MOTORIST'S PREFERENCE FOR GAS

The annual conference of the Association of Public Lighting Engineers, which was continued at Leicester yesterday, was addressed by Mr. H. Sturgess-Wells, president of the Leicestershire Automobile Club, on public lighting as viewed by the motorist. Mr. Sturgess-Wells said that a motorist felt safer with his own headlights on unlit roads than without them on roads intermittently lighted by public lamps without order as to position or spacing. In a journey of 50 miles the motorist would pass through areas controlled by perhaps 20 different authorities, each of which might have a different scheme of lighting. Uniformity of highway illumination was a crying need of all road-users at present. The Local Government Act, 1929, had transferred to county councils control over highways, but not, apparently, the power to deal with lighting.

Mr. Sturgess-Wells said he preferred gas to electricity for street lighting, because of its better dispersion of light without the concentrated bright patches which sometimes made electric lighting uneven, with dark shadows in the road between the lamps. Gas illumination also appeared to penetrate fog more effectively. He suggested that drivers in a stream of traffic would be assisted if automatic traffic signals were fitted with a loud electric bell, to be rung when the lights were about to change.

ECONOMICS OF POULTRY

The fourteenth annual Poultry Conference at the Harper Adams College, Newport, Salop, opened on Tuesday evening. Dr. Crowther, Principal of the College, presided, and the session was addressed by Mr. A. W. Ashby, Professor of Agricultural Economics, Aberystwyth University, who dealt with the economics of poultry farming. He said the progress of the poultry industry had not been entirely due to technical advance, but to the steadily increasing willingness of the public to pay a good price for a good article. He asked poultry breeders to stir up county authorities to get rid of barndoor flocks, and he also asked poultry farmers to let the economist in their county examine their books, so that more could be learned about the cost of food and housing to produce flock averages of 100, 120, and 140 eggs per annum. At present he would not advise a man owning flocks of 200, 800, or 1,000 birds to aim at more than 120 eggs per annum.

At yesterday's session papers were read by Mr. W. Rhys, research assistant at the National Institute of Poultry Husbandry, on "All-Mash Feeding"; by Miss Molyneux, Institute assistant lecturer, on "Pullets and All-Mash Experiments"; by Mr. J. N. Dowding, of Sussex, on "Battery Brooding"; by Mr. Herbert Howes, Institute assistant director, on "Farm Poultry Management"; and by Dr. Crowther on "Egg-Laying Trials." Dr. Crowther commended as the basis of a uniform system of grading produce the existing scheme of the National Poultry Council recognized trials, subject to the adoption of a minimum 2oz. standard for first-grade and 1¾oz. for second grade at all stages of the trials. He commended as the basis for a uniform system of scoring the Ministry of Agriculture's scheme used in county laying trials, subject to the periodical revision of the scale of points and the addition of a corresponding standard scale of money values.

WOMAN'S FALL FROM A BURNING HOUSE

CORONER'S COMMENTS ON SONS' ACTIONS

An inquest was held at Camberwell yesterday on the body of Mrs. Clara Greaves, aged 64, of High-street, West Norwood, who died in Dulwich Hospital from injuries received during a fire at her home.

Mr. Charles Sidney Greaves said that his wife and he were sleeping in a room above a shop, and on being awakened by the barking of a dog found that the premises were on fire. He endeavoured to persuade his wife to climb through a window, but she ran into another room, where their daughter was sleeping.

William Joseph Greaves, a son, said that he saw his mother at a window through which his sister climbed and got on to the roof of a conservatory. He advised his mother to get out of the window, and in attempting to do so she fell through the conservatory.

The Coroner.—Could you not climb up to help her?

Greaves.—I was practically demented at the time.

Have you ever heard the phrase, "Women and children first"? Don't you realize that if your father had had your help he might have been able to induce your mother to get out?—No.

"Still I should have thought that you could have helped your mother down a bit. Perhaps it is easy to criticize afterwards," added the Coroner.

The Coroner.—You were able to get down without hurting yourself. Why did you not help your mother?

Greaves.—I think it was up to me to get out of the house first.

"Other people might think that it was up to you to get your mother out of the house first," said the Coroner, "but your mother was left with the flames burning her. Did you lose your head?"

Greaves.—No, I went out for the fire engine.

The Coroner, who recorded a verdict of "Accidental Death," said that he had questioned the witnesses closely because it was unusual for a number of men to escape from a fire and a woman to be left in the burning building. It could be said for William Greaves that after going downstairs he returned. Leonard appeared to think that it was his duty to call the brigade. The most common sense was shown by Mr. Charles Greaves. The first instinct of Mrs. Greaves was to endeavour to ensure the safety of her daughter.

TRUE BILL AGAINST LORANG

CHANNEL SWUM AGAIN

SOUTH AFRICAN GIRL'S GOOD TIME

DOVER, Sept. 10

Miss Peggy Duncan, a 19-year-old South African girl, swam the Channel to-day. She arrived at South Foreland at 12.37 this afternoon, having started from Cape Gris Nez at 8.20 last night. This was her first attempt, and she had been in training only eight weeks. The tender Jenner, with 28 people on board, including Mr. J. Costa, the French representative of the Channel Swimming Association, accompanied her. Weather conditions were excellent from start to finish. At 11 o'clock last night the swimmer was about six miles out from the coast. The temperature of the water was then 62deg., but it was falling just after midnight. The South Foreland light was seen, and an hour later the lights of Dover Harbour came into view.

The swimmer now began to feel the effects of the cold, but in reply to a question she said she was quite fit. After passing five miles south of the South Goodwin lightship she took her third meal from the feeding boat. It consisted of beef tea, cocoa, and coffee. At 8.20 this morning she was fighting hard to break the record of 14 hours 34 minutes set up by Miss Gertrude Ederle in August, 1926, her position at that time being two miles off the South Goodwin lightship, and she was being assisted by the ebb tide. Just over an hour later it was calculated that she was 1¾ mile from the shore, and at 10.50 it was realized that she would not break the record. She was now off Dover and the flood tide carried her up the Channel eastward. When she passed the eastern arm of Dover Harbour she was still fighting strongly, and on landing at South Foreland she was able to walk up the beach and embrace her trainer, Jabez Wolfe, who had been in the water with her during the later part of the swim.

In an interview she said she was a little sleepy, but otherwise felt no ill effects. She was sure, she said, she could have beaten Miss Ederle's record if the water had not been so cold, as the low temperature cramped her muscles. This afternoon at the Town Hall a letter from the Mayor of Boulogne, which Miss Duncan had brought with her, was handed over to the Mayor of Dover, who congratulated her on her success. The party left for Boulogne on the Jenner at 4 o'clock. Her official time is given as 16 hours 17 minutes.

The Mayor of Cape Town has sent the following telegram to Miss Duncan:—"Congratulations on behalf of the citizens on your wonderful performance of skill and endurance."

ALLOTMENT-HOLDERS AND LAND VALUES

TO-DAY'S CONFERENCE AND GOVERNMENT POLICY

The annual conference of the National Allotments Society, Limited, will be opened to-day at Hull.

The first annual report, which will be presented, refers with satisfaction to the amalgamation of the two national allotment societies, and says that for many years the need for one strong organization had been felt. There had been a further decrease in the number of allotments, due to continued disturbances and the consequent sense of insecurity which overshadowed the whole movement. For the past 10 years allotments had been disappearing at the rate of 35,000 a year.

The root of the whole trouble was the fundamental unsoundness of the country's allotments policy. Too much attention had been paid to obtaining access to land and too little to keeping it when once it had been obtained. Allotments were diminishing because plot-holders might be dispossessed so easily. If the decline was to be arrested and the cultivation of allotments extended something must be done to strike an even balance as between the landowner and the allotment-holder. The allotments provided by private owners, constituting about half the allotments of the country, were often held under better conditions than those granted by local authorities. The real trouble was with the speculator, who was invariably backed by local authorities because his efforts added to a district's rateable value. When the value of land was increasing rapidly an owner could afford to let it lie derelict for a long time. The interests of allotment-holders might be promoted by improved legislation and by better administration.

NEED OF LEGISLATION

The Management Committee of the society was engaged in completing proposals, which it hoped to lay before the Government soon. Legislation was needed to give additional power to the more progressive local authorities, to bring the more backward authorities into line, and to check abuses. It would seem that the only hope of procuring allotments in areas where land was expensive was to compel local authorities to use the penny rate for the purpose or to arrange for some assistance from the National Exchequer.

It had been abundantly demonstrated that the allotment was capable of mitigating some of the worst consequences of unemployment. Among the benefits accruing to the unemployed in districts where schemes were in force were a marked improvement in the moral of the workers and a revival of cheerfulness and independence. The keynote of success had been organization. The report predicted that the Government would have to consider in the very near future the possibilities of allotment cultivation as an important factor in the relief of distress.

PROPOSED RESOLUTIONS

The estimated number of allotments in England and Wales in 1929 was given as 995,000, comprising 149,000 acres.

The following resolutions will be considered:—

1. This Conference views with anxiety the Government's proposals for the taxation of land values and, whilst expressing no opinion as to its political expediency, desires to call attention to the fact that the rents of thousands of allotments in urban areas will be increased if their site value, as distinct from their letting value, is taxed. It therefore requests the Government to safeguard the interests of allotment-holders in this respect.

2. This Conference deplores the continued decline in the number of allotments as revealed by the recent Report of the Ministry of Agriculture, and expresses the opinion that many of the 335,000 plots which have been swept away in the past 10 years could have been kept under cultivation had they been governed by more equitable laws and if local authorities had made fuller use of the powers vested in them. It therefore calls upon H.M. Government to take immediate steps to improve the tenure and other conditions under which allotments are held and to make compulsory much of the permissive legislation of which advantage is not, at present, taken by the majority of local authorities.

MRS. PITHER RELEASED FROM GAOL

£50 FINE PAID

Mrs. Pither, who recently stated that her baby son had been kidnapped in Edgware-road, W., and who was sent to prison on Saturday for three months in default of the payment of a fine of £50 for the false registration of a child's birth, was released from Holloway Prison on Tuesday, the fine having been paid.

After Mrs. Pither had stated that her child had been kidnapped from its perambulator while she was in a shop, and the police had been called in, she disappeared, and it was later discovered that the child was not hers, and that the real mother, who resided at West Ham, had received the child from Mrs. Pither. A search was made for Mrs. Pither, and she was discovered working as a waitress in Southend. She was charged with giving false information to the Registrar at Paddington Register Office concerning the birth of Stephen Charles Philip Pither. Owing to her inability to pay the fine she went to prison and had been in Holloway three days.

The £50 fine was paid by Mr. Frank Vosper, the playwright and actor, "as a protest against the modern system of sentences." In a statement yesterday he said: "I regard the alternative system as pernicious. I have waited for a long time to get a case aptly illustrating my grievance, and this is the first. I treat the matter on the broad principle. There should either be a sentence of imprisonment or a fine without any imprisonment. It must be one or the other. That is what I want brought forward by the case of Mrs. Pither. I have a purely impersonal interest in this case. The sole reason for my action is to bring notice to what I regard as a most pernicious system at present in vogue in our law courts. If I can, by my action, create interest in this matter and have this system righted I have achieved my object."

TRIAL OF MICHAEL CORRIGAN

OBJECTION TO CHARGES

Before Judge Gregory, at the Central Criminal Court yesterday, the trial was continued of Michael Dennis Corrigan, 45, an engineer, charged with fraudulently converting £18,000 entrusted to him to buy oil shares. He pleaded "Not Guilty."

Mr. G. B. McClure prosecuted; Mr. J. P. Eddy defended.

Mr. Eddy, when the case was resumed, objected to the charges of fraudulent conversion. The extradition proceedings, he contended, were in respect of charges of false pretences, and it was not open to the prosecution to rely on any other charges.

The Judge said that the indictment contained no charge of false pretences. It was a little late to raise the point.

Detective-sergeant Winter, of Scotland Yard, said that the defendant had waived all extradition formalities, and he admitted this when he was at the police-court, stating that he was more than anxious to face the three people accusing him.

The Judge.—Apparently there was no order by the French Government?—No, there was simply a telegram to say he could be surrendered.

CORRIGAN'S EVIDENCE

Corrigan, giving evidence, said that he was arrested in Paris on a warrant charging him with obtaining £4,900 from Mr. Cannon by false pretences. He was brought before a French court, and he asked the Judge to specify the charges in detail. He was told that it was obtaining money by false pretences, and he then consented to be extradited. A month afterwards the French Public Prosecutor showed him two additional warrants relating to the cases of Mrs. Harrold and Mr. Noad. They also charged him with false pretences, and he agreed to be extradited on that charge only.

Judge Gregory said the question was whether the defendant was surrendered on an Order by the French authorities. As the point had been raised, it would be wasting time to proceed with the present charges before clearing it up.

Mr. McClure.—I am in communication with the Foreign Office. I have a minute to the effect that there was consent on this occasion.

The Judge.—If there was an Order it would specify the facts on which Corrigan was surrendered.

Mr. McClure submitted that while Mr. Eddy's point was good for argument, the section of the Act was to prevent a man being brought to this country for certain offences and then proceeding against him on others outside the facts specified. The facts in the case being the same, it was open to the prosecution to charge Corrigan either with obtaining money by false pretences or with fraudulent conversion.

The Judge.—I think that may be right. It looks as if no formal order was made, but, to give Mr. Eddy an opportunity of ascertaining the facts, I will adjourn the case.

The trial was accordingly adjourned until to-day.

VITRIOL THROWING CHARGE

At Marlborough-street Police Court yesterday Edmund Perkins, a student, of Surbiton, again appeared on a charge of throwing sulphuric acid at Cecil Jerrard Dunne, gown manufacturer, of Berners-street, W., with intent to burn, maim, and disfigure him. After evidence had been given by Mr. Dunne, who was led into Court with his head and the upper part of his face heavily bandaged, Perkins was committed for trial.

SELL YOUR GOODS IN THE ARGENTINE

★ AN INVITATION TO BRITISH MANUFACTURERS

In the Argentine, the British Heavy Industries have an excellent market. British engineering material has a high reputation. But it will not sell itself. It needs to be sold.

The firm of John O. McLaren, Buenos Aires, would welcome new connections with progressive British manufacturers. This firm has been established for 20 years; is importing Foundry Specialities, Railways and Harbour material, and Naval and Mercantile Construction material. It has a solid connection with the Argentine Navy and is in a strong position to supply material to the railways.

Full details, prices and catalogues of products should be sent by all firms interested.

MAKING DREAMS COME TRUE

By CALLISTHENES

The joy of imagination is the joy of making dreams come true.

There is no opposition between the dreamer and the man of action. The greatest men of action have often been called dreamers by those who knew them only before the driving, creative power of will had begun to make the dreams come true. Columbus was called a dreamer till he discovered America. Cecil Rhodes was called a dreamer till he wrote his name on the map of Africa. Henry Ford is proud that he can still be called a dreamer.

There have been those who have come blindly on success, who have added day's work to day's work without ever a vision of where their efforts were leading them, but the essential characteristic and glory of man is that he may dream of some fine or even superb achievement and then set out with nothing but the force of his own will and brain and character to make his dream come true.

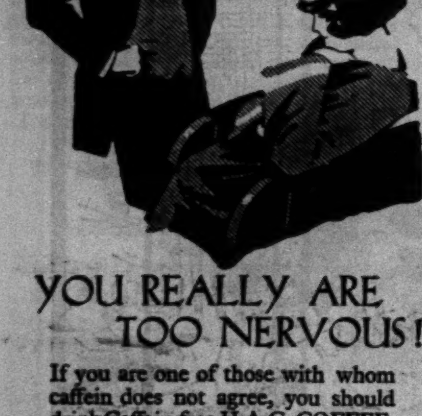

There are still those who talk disparagingly or at least patronizingly of imagination in business. But they are profoundly in the wrong. It is from the imagination that these dreams come and without them there is little hope of the joyful creation which turns business from only a means of livelihood into one of the splendid adventures of life.

Nor would we frown upon imagination, even if dreams have something of the fantastic about them, for man may take the inspiration and leave out the fantasy. He can curb his dream of all that is purely fantastic and find in what remains an ideal to be realized, a vision to be turned into practical reality.

To dream out in one's youth, perhaps in later life—for youth has no monopoly of creative dreams—a plan of dignity and beauty, then to seize the flying moment and make each yield something to our purpose till gradually the far off vision becomes true, and the glowing dream becomes a solid creation, that it is which gives to life one of its deepest joys, one of its most unquestionable satisfactions.

We in this House are proud of the imagination that has gone to its creation and of the imagination which is keeping it always growing. We like to think of it as the triumph of our dreams over the innumerable obstacles which a refractory world always puts in the way of man's imaginative effort, of large dreams which affect the careers of thousands, of little dreams which make a customer say on leaving this House, "I've had delight in my shopping to-day."

THREE CHOIRS FESTIVAL

BACH'S MASS IN B MINOR

TWO MODERN ORATORIOS

(FROM OUR MUSIC CRITIC)

HEREFORD, SEPT. 10

The day of the long narrative oratorio is over. The two specimens heard last night aim at a more concentrated style. Vaughan Williams's Sancta Civitas seizes on the apocalyptic vision and attempts its transmutation into music without preamble or explanation. The old oratorio form, from Handel to Elgar, implied doctrine, though not necessarily religious dogma. Events were grouped and pondered on that they might illustrate a certain line of thought. Vaughan Williams has grouped his words, but only for purposes of musical design, and that design is expressed in a peculiar harmonic idiom which remains remote and aloof from normal experience. The opening words, "I was in the spirit and I heard a voice," are the only clue to what must be the attitude of the hearer. He must be caught up in the spirit and must not begin by asking whether he likes it, any more than he asks whether he likes the book of the Revelation. He must just go on trying to apprehend it.

In last night's performance it was the singing of Mr. Roy Henderson which helped most to apprehension. The singing of the chorus was courageous, but they had not got past the point of wondering whether they were in tune, and sometimes the answer to that question was in the negative. The semi-chorus was too distant, the cymbals and much else in the orchestration too much in the foreground. Much that was painful to the ear was due to the strain of anxious performance. We have not yet heard a wholly satisfactory performance of this very difficult work, but each one makes certain points of beauty more evident, and it is to be hoped that the Three Choirs will persevere with it. Their achievement, if incomplete, was considerable.

"THE BIRTH OF CHRIST"

Armstrong Gibbs's new work, The Birth of Christ, presents no new problem of outlook. Its plan is that of traditional oratorio, and the use of the two Gospel canticles to round off the two narrative scenes of the Annunciation and the Nativity has an obvious appropriateness. The hearer is never in doubt of the point that the composer wishes to make, and some of the points are well made, but his handling of the theme is curiously wavering in its musical style. The simply written choral introduction to the words from St. John's Gospel, well sung by the choir, gave an impression of boldness. The narrative, sung by Mr. Steuart Wilson, half recitative, half arioso, sounded desultory. One was haunted by reminiscences in the melody, and disturbed by apparently purposeless dramaticisms in the harmony. The most original part of the work seemed to be the setting of the Magnificat as an exuberant soprano solo sung by Miss Elsie Suddaby. But the choral alleluias and some too insistent scoring for the brass prevented the voice from having its full effect. Mr. Keith Falkner sang the part of the Angel, and the second scene, that of the appearance to the shepherds leading to the short choral outbursts of "Glory to God," was the more impressive of the two. But here one encounters the almost irresistible temptation to compare the music unfavourably with the handling of the same theme by the classical composers. That is the great difficulty against which the modern composer of oratorio has to contend. Unless he can create a new heaven and a new earth he may be told that he has created nothing.

GOOD WORK OF THE CHOIR

The greater part of to-day's programme has been occupied with Bach's Mass in B minor, and it has therefore been the day of the choral singers, who, after their mixed experiences of the first day, have been able to revel in the great breadth of Bach's unflagging choral designs. They proved themselves worthy of their opportunities, went on improving with every fresh demand on their energies, and in the last numbers were singing so well that one almost wished that at the end they would turn back and begin the Kyrie again. Certainly the build of the final chorus was infinitely finer and better graduated than it had been in its first appearance in the course of the Gloria. Some movements were taken too fast, notably the Et Resurrexit; in others there were moments when Dr. Hull could not let well alone, but urged his forces to an unnecessary effort. It is surely a mistake to labour the plainsong quotations in the Confiteor. They should stand out quite easily from the surrounding texture of voices. The quieter choruses, suggesting power held in reserve, were the most beautiful in effect. But it was not by special moments but by assured competence throughout that the choral part of this performance excelled. The solo numbers, duets, and arias were less successful, though the singers chosen are all admirable artists. Several of these numbers required more elasticity to give voices and obbligato instruments enough leisure to articulate their phrases and combine their tones in the manner of chamber music. In the Laudamus, for instance, Miss Astra Desmond seemed principally concerned to be in time, and Mr. W. H. Reed dispatched the semiquavers and demisemiquavers of his violin obbligato with a businesslike precision which left the meaning of the music out of account. The duets sung by Miss Silk and Miss Desmond, and by Miss Silk and Mr. Steuart Wilson (who took the place of Mr. Hubert Eisdell) all suffered a little in the same way. On the other hand, Mr. Howard Fry, with Mr. Aubrey Thonger playing the horn, succeeded to an unusual extent in making the details of the difficult aria, Quoniam tu solus, stand out clearly. Next to this the Benedictus, sung by Mr. Steuart Wilson, and the Agnus Dei, sung by Miss Astra Desmond, were the most successful of the solo numbers.

By a happy arrangement the Mass was followed by a solo cantata, O Amantissime Jesu, by Christian Ritter, a German composer of the generation before Bach. The gracious melody for soprano voice of the type to which Miss Dorothy Silk's pure singing is peculiarly suited, accompanied quietly by strings, seemed the one kind of music which could follow Bach, because it enters into no sort of competition with his splendours. After it the hearers were refreshed sufficiently to listen to Elgar's First Symphony, conducted by the composer.

Discussion of the evening concert, held this year for the first time in the Kemble Theatre instead of in the Shire Hall, must be deferred till to-morrow. But mention may here be made of a little anthem written by Dr. C. Lee Williams, "When the Son of Man Shall Come," which was sung to-day at the Cathedral

CONTEMPORARY MUSIC

BRUSSELS, SEPT. 9

The final festivities in connexion with the Liége Festival of Contemporary Music brought all the participants to Brussels at the week-end, and they concluded last night with a performance of Grétry's opera Céphale et Procris at the Théâtre de la Monnaie. Grétry was born at Liége, and this opera was chosen for revival to celebrate the centenary of Belgian independence. It was sumptuously mounted in the eighteenth-century style of Versailles, and since we hear little of Grétry's music in England the interest of novelty was added to the intrinsic charm of the music. The plot is of the worst type of heroic story conventionally treated, so that, apart from its historical interest as a period-piece, the opera can no longer hope to keep its place on the regular stage. These stiff classical legends lend themselves to the slighter treatment of the cantata form as employed by Rameau—the kinship of Grétry and Rameau was continuously apparent—and they afford ample opportunities for the use of a ballet—and here again Grétry seemed to be almost happier in his dance music than in his less spontaneous and more ambitious vocal writing. But they cannot sustain the interest through three acts in spite of, or perhaps because of, the facility, smoothness, and superficial charm of Grétry's score. The opera was very well sung, but the effect of the dancing was weakened by the halting choreography—the solo dancing of Mlle. G. d'Astra stood out for its greater surety of aim as well as for its finished execution.

Those of us who had attended the Congress of Popular Arts which has been held contemporaneously with the Congress of Musicology and the Festival of Modern Music counted ourselves fortunate to catch the second presentation of L'Ommegang on Sunday afternoon. L'Ommegang was a sixteenth-century Belgian equivalent of our Lord Mayor's Show, and its revival has been carried out with due regard to historical accuracy. The procession took nearly an hour to pass through the Grand' Place, where the display of banners and the tableaux vivants drawn on wagons by teams of horses looked remarkably natural in the glorious surroundings of contemporary architecture. We had heard at the Congress a good deal about drapeaux, and about gigantic figures as part of popular festivals; here they were to the life with the music of trumpets, shawms, and chorales. It was astonishing to find how many men there are in Brussels who can play the long, straight, natural trumpet and ride a horse at the same time. The wood-wind instruments were copies of originals in the remarkable collection in the Brussels Conservatoire shown to us by the curator, M. Ernest Closson, who superintended all the fanfares and music of L'Ommegang. An enormous number of citizens took part in the immense procession, and while it provided much interest to historically minded persons, whether their special study was heraldry, popular pageantry, social life, or economic customs, its patriotic significance would not be missed by the Belgian public on a day when an heir to the Throne was born.

Between these two revivals of the art of the past came one more concert of modern music given by that admirable body, the Pro Arte String Quartet, in one of the fine new concert halls at the Palais des Beaux Arts, on Monday afternoon. There was a string quintet, with Mr. Lionel Tertis playing the second viola, by Martinù, a work commissioned by Mrs. Coolidge and of distinct merit; a quartet by Bela Bartok (No. 4), savage but not perverse and highly original; and an arrangement for piano and string quartet of Darius Milhaud's ballet La Creation du Monde, less original but more lyrical than anything else in the programme. And so the eighth festival ended with the juxtaposition of things ancient and modern, which has been one of the outstanding features of an unusually successful international gathering. To-day we disperse to the four quarters of Europe, to return to our own homes and, perhaps, to the music of the nineteenth century.

BEES AND HONEY

NATIONAL SHOW AT THE CRYSTAL PALACE

The eighth National Show of Bees and Honey (organized by the Kent and Surrey Beekeepers' Associations) was opened at the Crystal Palace yesterday and will continue until Saturday. Owing to the wet summer beekeeping has not been so successful this year as it has been for the past two or three years, and consequently several of the classes did not receive so many entries as formerly, but the quality of the honey has not in any way deteriorated. There was a downward tendency, so far as numbers of entries are concerned, in the open and Surrey classes, but the Kent classes were up to the average. The exhibits included honey, beeswax, mead, food made with the aid of honey, and appliances appertaining to bees and apiary.

SIR WILLIAM PLENDER, vice-chairman of the Kent Beekeepers' Association, in declaring the show open, said this was a unique occasion, because it coincided with the meetings in London of the Apis Club, an international organization which had brought many thousands of beekeepers together, not only from all parts of England, but also from foreign countries. Among those present that day was a representative of the Minister of Agriculture, which, he hoped, was a sign that the interest the Ministry had so far taken in apiculture would be intensified. The bee, he said, was one of the most wonderful things in nature, and had excited the interest of men for centuries. He thought they all could learn a lot from the bees if they watched and studied them.

The challenge cups and other trophies were, in the unavoidable absence of Lady Plender, handed to the winners by Miss E. L. Pope. The winners were:—

Crystal Palace £30 Perpetual Challenge Cup for the best 16 exhibits.—H. S. Barter (Salisbury). Silver Challenge Cup open to the world for the best 24 jars of honey.—W. A. Sweet and Son (Cambourne). First Prize for a display of honey open only to the Dominions and Colonies.—W. D. Wright (Souris, Manitoba).

Classes open to Great Britain.—Silver Challenge Cups.—G. J. C. Vincent (Anerley), H. R. Harris (Honiton), W. D. Green (Rugby), H. Darlington (Hexham), Captain Young (Fossbridge), E. E. Brown (Sydenham), and A. Underwood. First Prizes.—J. Garratt (Leicester), G. J. C. Vincent (Anerley), Mrs. G. Davis (Woolland), R. Sowerby (Carlisle), J. P. Dowrick (Veryan), A. H. Newton (Thetford), W. J. Goodrich (Gloucester), H. S. Taylor (Welwyn), H. R. Harris (Honiton), A. Bee (Leicester), G. C. Bygrave (Rugby), W. D. Green (Rugby), H. S. Barter (Salisbury), H. Darlington (Hexham), Captain Young (Fossbridge), W. E. Hobbs (Rugby), L. W. Mathews (Crocken Hill), E. E. Brown (Sydenham), Dr. C. Courtenay Lord (Orpington), R. N. Brown (Colchester), G. Banks (Epsom), Mrs. D. Turney (Forest Hill), and Miss Pratt (Streatham).

Challenge Cups, Kent Beekeepers' Association.—E. E. Brown (Sydenham), A. E. Barnes (Anerley), J. Silver (Croydon), and J. Stockley (Limpsfield).

Challenge Cups, Surrey Beekeepers' Association.—Mrs. Christie (Godstone), G. J. C. Vincent (Anerley), Miss Pallett (Kingswood), E. E. Brown (Sydenham), G. Banks (Epsom), Miss V. Pratt (Streatham), and S. W. Gadge (Surbiton).

Evensong. It claims no importance as a composition beyond that of sincerity in its expression of solemn words. It has been published for the benefit of the fund for the widows and orphans which the Festival supports, and as the work of one of the oldest friends of the Festival who formerly conducted it at Gloucester, and was himself a pupil of S. S. Wesley, it is dedicated to the Three Choirs. The anthem should commend itself to lovers of simple Church music.

LOYALTIES AT GENEVA

OFFICERS OF THE LEAGUE

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT)

The League Assembly will discuss this year the report of the Committee of Inquiry on the Organization of the Secretariat, which is the outcome of an international debate begun two years ago.

The views then expressed with a significant unanimity in the Geneva speeches and in the special articles and leading articles of The Times may be summarized as follows:—The Secretariat is an international organization by the nature of things. It was understood as such by the drafters of the Covenant; it was defined as such in the Rome Report (1920) presented to the Council by Lord Balfour in complete agreement with the Secretary-General; it is in danger of losing this essential feature under the action of forces which public opinion should watch and which it is the duty of the Assembly to check.

The danger lies in a tendency to appoint and promote officials with an undue regard to nationality, which is depriving many officials of confidence, not only in the objectivity of those who control their career, but in the principle of international impartiality which is the foundation of the League. It lies also in the tendency of some Governments to consider their nationals in Geneva as representatives of their views and entrusted with the duty of making them felt in the workings of the Secretariat.

As a symbolic fact in which both tendencies may be seen at work, it was pointed out that the higher posts in the Secretariat had become the monopoly of the nations with permanent seats in the Council, and that, though in varying degrees, the appointees were considered as national agents within the Secretariat, whose offices are staffed exclusively or nearly so by nationals of the nation concerned.

TWO REPORTS

The Assembly debates of 1928 led to an understanding with the Secretary-General that a committee of officials should study the position in order to enable him to report to the Supervisory Commission. The Assembly of 1929 took more vigorous action. It appointed a committee of its own to study the matter during the winter and report to the session of 1930. The committee was a strong one, and its report contains valuable work concerning general administrative matters. Yet it is, on the whole, a disappointing document.

On two points, "Duration of Engagements" and "Principal Officers of the Secretariat," the committee failed to reach unanimity, minority reports being annexed, signed, on the former point by the German, Italian, Venezuelan, and Colombian members, and on the latter by the German and Italian. Though the report contains the usual assurance that its members express purely personal opinions but do not commit their Governments, there are cases in which the personal views in question bear an ominous resemblance to those of the Governments concerned. There are at least two points on which the minority reports command attention. One is on the question of the duration of engagements. While the majority prefer long contracts, the minority think that seven-year engagements, renewable on the decision of the Secretary-General, would ensure a better quality of personnel.

While appreciating the reasons of prudence and delicacy which led the majority to reassert the orthodox constitutional principle that "The Secretariat does not initiate policy. It is a purely executive body," the minority are right in basing their arguments on the remark that "The political influence of the Secretariat, and especially of its principal officers, is in fact enormous." But then the adequate organization of this apex of the Secretariat is the more important; and it can hardly be said that either the majority or the minority have provided acceptable solutions of this serious international problem.

BREAKING A MONOPOLY

The majority propose the creation of five new posts of Under-Secretaries General, which would break the present monopoly of these posts by the big Powers. The posts of Secretary-General and his deputy would not necessarily be reserved for big Powers, and so every member of the Secretariat would be eligible ultimately for the highest functions. The minority claim that the two highest officials (at present an Englishman and a Frenchman) are the only members who control policy. They would limit the high posts as at present to the big Powers and would establish a collegiate control of policy by these high officials as a whole.

The majority solution presents serious objections. The control of policy will be the more assured in a few hands when the high officials are 10 than when they are five; and, what is worse, by creating five Under-Secretaries General without any objective need for so extravagant a proposal it does but reintroduce through the window the principle of nationality which it expelled through the door, since no other reason remains for these posts than that of appeasing national ambitions. As for the minority report, it is inspired by purely national considerations. Their objection to the control of policy by the two highest officials is not that it may be injurious to the international spirit of the League, but that it is unduly favourable to France and England. Italy and Germany, through the minority report, claim their share in the direction of the house.

It is clear that neither of these two reports is acceptable in the best interests of the League, though certain concrete proposals, such as the appointment of two Under-Secretaries General, the present Legal Adviser (Señor Buero, of Uruguay), and presumably the Health Director (Dr. Rajchman, of Poland), long overdue, will be welcomed by all. This failure of the Committee may be due to an insufficient consistency in drawing the conclusions implied in the principle of internationality unanimously reaffirmed at the beginning of Part III. Here the Committee has done valuable service by redrafting this principle in a form even stricter than heretofore:—

The officials of the Secretariat of the League of Nations are exclusively international officials, and their duties are not national but international. By accepting appointment, they pledge themselves to discharge their functions and to regulate their conduct with the interests of the League alone in view. They are subject to the authority of the Secretary-General and are responsible to him in the exercise of their functions [. . .] They may not seek or receive instructions from any Government or other authority external to the Secretariat of the League of Nations.

The minority, implicitly, at any rate, forget all about this declaration which they signed along with the majority. They go on to print:—"So long as there is no Super-State and, therefore, no 'international man' (a naive confession of belief in the powers of the State to fashion individuals, by the way) an international spirit can only be assured through the cooperation of men of different nationalities who represent the public opinion of their respective countries." This doctrine will kill the League if it is allowed to pass unchallenged. But the majority itself is disappointingly blind to the consequences of its own principle. Their report is obsessed with the idea of "maintaining contact with the different nations," "ascertaining the general opinion of the various countries," and what the minority more outspokenly describe as liaison work.

This idea should be discountenanced once for all. Contact should be maintained between the Secretariat as a whole and the nations by direct relations between delegates and the officials concerned, and not with their nationals. The result of the majority report is that the principle of nationality creeps up again into the selection of staff. The only solution lies in the absolute refusal to consider nationality beyond a certain concern with the balance of numbers for purposes of general fairness. As soon as this point is made clear, all becomes easier. For if League officials are really international the questions which nationalities are at the top, whether they are all big or small Powers, whether there are more than one or two of the same nationality, or whether the policy is controlled by one or by seven men, will lose much of their importance.

One more important point. Why does the majority reassert the principle of internationality without troubling to inquire whether it is respected at present? Would it not be worthy of the dignity of the service asked of international officials that that "pledge" mentioned in the principle should be the object of some solemn declaration or act by the newly appointed official? An oath or a signed declaration on the official's honour would greatly strengthen the position of those among them who may be placed in an uncomfortable position between two loyalties.

FRANKFURT CHESS CONGRESS

THE FOURTH ROUND

FRANKFURT, SEPT. 10

The fourth round of the international tournament was played this afternoon, and all but one of the games were finished at the adjournment. At the moment Ahues is leading with 2½ points, but there are five other players with two points each, and four of these have adjourned games to finish. In to-day's round Colle and Niemzowitsch won their games, three other games were drawn, and in the remaining one Kashdan is a pawn to the good against Sir George Thomas. The position may be won, but Kashdan is very doubtful about it.

White	Opening	Black	Result
Pirc	English	Samisch	Drawn
List	Queen's Pawn	Ahues	Drawn
Przepiorka	Queen's Pawn	Colle	Black won
Orbach	Queen's Pawn	Mieses	Drawn
Mannheimer	French Defence	Niemzowitsch	Black won
Kashdan	Queen's Pawn	Thomas	Adjourned

The game between Pirc and Samisch was very carefully played by both, and though Pirc did have some amount of attack on the king's side in the later stages he could not force matters. Agreement to draw came in 30 moves. List and Ahues introduced a considerable amount of complication into their game, but both thought nothing could come of it, and therefore they agreed to draw in 35 moves. Colle had all the best of matters against Przepiorka with both his bishops threatening the king's side from the first. Then he was allowed to obtain a passed pawn in the centre and the final mistake Przepiorka made was to lose his queen. Orbach and Mieses drew a carefully played game by repetition of position. Niemzowitsch was allowed to obtain one of his favourite positions against Mannheimer and won in 44 moves. The game between Kashdan and Thomas has come to a queen and minor piece ending, with Kashdan the pawn to the good.

ROYAL GEOGRAPHICAL SOCIETY

PROGRAMME OF CENTENARY CELEBRATIONS

The programme of the ceremonies by which the Royal Geographical Society will celebrate its centenary on October 21 and the two succeeding days has now been issued.

All the principal geographical societies and institutions of the world were invited to send delegates to these celebrations and a very large number have accepted the invitation. Addresses of congratulation presented by these delegates will be received by the Duke of York, representing the King, who is patron of the society, at the inaugural meeting at 3 p.m. on October 21 when the Duke will also declare the new hall, library, and other buildings open for the use of the society. The centenary meeting will be held in the newly-opened hall at 8.30 p.m. on the same evening, when a series of addresses on the history of the society will be given by the President, three Past Presidents, and one Vice-President. On the following evening the President, Council, and Fellows will entertain the delegates and a large number of official guests at a reception at 9 p.m. in the society's house in Kensington Gore.

The centenary dinner of the society will be held on the evening of October 23 at the Connaught Rooms, when the Prince of Wales, vice-patron of the society, will preside. The programme also announces a series of communications from British and foreign geographers on the topics of The Habitable Globe and Incidents in the History of Exploration, to be presented at meetings on the morning of October 22 and the morning and afternoon of October 23.

MAURITIUS STAMP PLATE

SENT TO BERLIN FOR EXHIBITION

The original plate from which was printed the famous 1d. and 2d. "Post Office" Mauritius stamps of 1847 was sent by air from London to Germany yesterday, for display at the International Philatelic Exhibition, to be opened in Berlin to-morrow. There are now only 25 examples of Mauritius stamps from the plate, of which three are in the King's collection.

The weight of the plate is 1½oz. troy, and it has been insured for £5,000 during its journey to and from Berlin in charge of Mr. H. R. Harmer, of Old Bond-street. Since its discovery among the effects of a former Colonial Governor and its changing hands for £2,000, the plate has never been publicly exhibited.

Eighty-three years ago a French watchmaker of Port Louis, Mauritius, was given an order to make a plate, and print 500 2d. and 500 1d. stamps. The impressions were taken one at a time by hand, and were used for invitations to a dance at the Government House. The watchmaker received £10 for making the plate and 10s. for printing the stamps. He is stated to have made a mistake in the plate, which should have borne the words "Post paid," instead of "Post Office."

COW IN A COALMINE

A fireman at a colliery at Calderbank (Lanarkshire), belonging to Messrs. Barr and Higgins, discovered a cow in the mine yesterday. Investigations showed that the animal had entered at the surface mine, used as an escape from the colliery, and had descended into the workings, a depth of 240ft. The cow, which belonged to a local farmer, had been missing since Sunday. Efforts were made to take the cow back by the way it had come, but owing to the very narrow workings this was found to be impossible, and a butcher was summoned to shoot it.

BOYS' HOLIDAY CAMP AT HAYLING ISLAND

Fifty boys from the London Police Court Mission homes, Yiewsley, are spending a week's holiday at the Portsmouth Rotary Club's boys' camp, at Hayling Island, mainly through the generosity of Mr. I. E. Snell, the Magistrate at Old-street Police Court.

With two exceptions, the names of the representatives of the Indian States, with biographical notes, were published in an article which appeared in The Times on August 13 last. It was announced in that article that the delegation from the States would be led by the Maharajah of Patiala, Chancellor of the Chamber of Princes.

The two new representatives of the States are the Maharajah of Rewa and Sardar Sahibzada Sultan Ahmed Khan, Member of Appeals, Gwalior State. The Maharajah of Rewa, who is the youngest member of the Princes' delegation, having been born in 1903, is the able and energetic ruler of a Central Indian State with an area of 13,000 square miles and a population of 1,500,000.

BRITISH INDIA

Brief biographical notes on the members of the Round-Table Conference from British India, showing the interests which they represent, are appended:—

THE AGA KHAN is the religious head of the Ismail community of Moslems and has many followers in East Africa, Central Asia, and India. Moslems of all classes look up to him as a leader.

NAWAB SIR SAHIBZADA ABDUL QAIYUM has done long and distinguished service in the North-West Frontier Province, for which he received the title Nawab and a K.C.I.E. among other honours. GERMAN ELECTIONS

"NAZI" GAINS EXPECTED IN BAVARIA

MUNICH, SEPT. 10

At the last Reichstag election in 1928 only nine parties secured representation in Bavaria. Of the 13 parties which will take the field here next Sunday, it is likely that fewer than half-a-dozen will return one or more candidates. The two strongest parties at the last election were the Bavarian People's Party and the Socialists, which together obtained 28 of the 46 seats. Broadly speaking next Sunday's polling is generally expected to maintain the status quo, so far as these two parties are concerned; to place the National Socialists ("Nazis," or Fascists) a good third, and to leave the remaining factions well behind.

Nearly two-thirds of the population are Catholics, and the Bavarian People's Party, formerly part of the Catholic Centre Party, also represents the monarchist and "particularist" tendencies still strong in Bavaria. Its losses, if any, will be slight, and will chiefly benefit the Bauernbund. This latter is a party of small farmers discontented with the agrarian policy of the Bavarian People's Party. It is poorly organized, however, and is not expected to do more than hold its five seats.

The prospects of the Communists in Bavaria are not very bright. They have to compete for the working-class vote in the towns with the Socialists, and also in some measure with the National Socialists. The general view is that they will be fortunate if they retain their two seats.

Both friends and foes admit that the electoral outlook for the National Socialists this time is distinctly good. Economic depression, and popular dissatisfaction with the working of the Parliamentary system, both in the State and the Reich, will drive large numbers of the urban voters into their camp, and agricultural distress will even win them many recruits among the peasants. The party hope to increase their three seats in Bavaria to 10 or 12, and believe that some of their gains will be at the expense of the Bavarian People's Party; but it is thought elsewhere that their successes will be limited to seven or eight seats, most of which will be wrested from the Nationalists.

The Hugenberg Nationalists seem fated to lose heavily. As for the new People's Conservative Party, it is thought that General von Lettow-Vorbeck, who heads the party list, may just succeed in polling the minimum number of votes to secure election, any further successes for the party being regarded as impossible. The other new party, the State Party, has an almost hopeless task before it, and will in all likelihood, fail to retain the single seat which the Democratic Party (from which it has sprung) had a hard fight to secure at the last election.

In the Palatinate next Sunday's election will be the first to take place under normal conditions. There is much support for the parties whose policy brought the 11 years' occupation by French troops to an end, and especially for that of the late Herr Stresemann. But the occupation has caused a certain degree of bitterness, which may react in favour of the "Nazis" and also, perhaps, of Herr Hugenberg's party.

ELECTION CAMPAIGN IN SAXONY

COMMUNIST LEADER BEATEN BY "NAZIS"

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT)

BERLIN, SEPT. 10

The Communist Max Hölz, who has long been an enemy of the National Socialists, was severely beaten at Bad Elster yesterday by a party of "Nazis."

Hölz, a curious and not unsympathetic figure, was a waiter in London before the War. In the War he won the Iron Cross, and his military records show long service at the front. In 1920 he established a brief dictatorship in the Saxon Vogtland, which earned him the name of the "German Robin Hood," for he plundered the rich and gave to the poor. In 1921 he led the Central German rising, which brought him a life sentence of imprisonment. Amnestied in 1928, Hölz, who had meanwhile been awarded the Soviet order of the "Red Banner," was invited to Russia. His speeches there were among the causes of German-Soviet diplomatic friction. He recently returned to Germany, apparently for the election campaign, and the Public Prosecutor is already on his track for a violent utterance the other night, when he said there ought to be a German Ogpu to shoot the German Socialist leaders.

The German Communist Party, which was about to form a branch at Bad Elster, had announced that Hölz would speak there on Monday evening. Bad Elster is near Falkenstein, the scene of Hölz's most daring exploits, and he was evidently expected to have an especial influence in this neighbourhood. The "Nazis," however, appeared in force, and on the arrival of Hölz, who had refused police protection, attacked him with crowbars and beer mugs. He was beaten unconscious as he lay on the ground, and afterwards taken by his friends to the house of a doctor in Falkenstein. He was found to have a fractured skull, a broken arm, and other wounds, and is in a serious condition.

MARTIAL LAW IN BOLIVIA

NEW YORK, SEPT. 10

The Military Council governing Bolivia placed the whole country under martial law late last night, with the explanation that unrest among the people had led it to fear further trouble. No actual outbreak has been reported from Bolivia, but news reaching other countries from there is scant because of the strict censorship.

The three American citizens, including Lieutenant-Commander Grow and Mr. Sutton, who were arrested after the fall of the Leguia Administration, have been released. Commander Grow denied the charge that he intended to bomb Arequipa under the orders of Señor Leguia. He said that he was flying from Lima to Arequipa with the object of scattering a quantity of pamphlets containing the Government proclamation over the insurgent troops. He carried one bomb, he said, merely for the purpose of attracting the attention of the insurgents to the pamphlets.

FRENCH TEXTILE STRIKE

PARIS, SEPT. 10

While any further development in the strike situation in the Roubaix-Tourcoing area remains dependent upon the decision to be taken by the Employers' Consortium at their plenary session to-morrow, an agreement has been reached between workers and owners at Armentières. Representatives of the employers' and workers' unions in this district have agreed to submit to the ruling of the Prefect of the Department as to the increase in the cost of living since last May, and as to how great a rise in wages, if any, is justified by this increase.

PRESS CENSORSHIP IN ARGENTINA

NEW YORK, SEPT. 10

There is a censorship over outgoing Press messages in Argentina, and certain telegrams from correspondents to North American and some South American newspapers appear to have been heavily censored. They seem to have been trying to intimate that a much more serious situation exists in Buenos Aires, and perhaps other parts of Argentina, than it has been possible to report. Santiago de Chile is, in particular, much disturbed by vague reports concerning the actual position in Buenos Aires.

THE BRITISH ARCTIC EXPEDITION

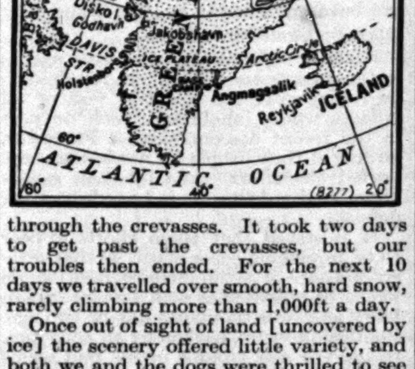

JOURNEY TO GREENLAND ICE CAP

(World Copyright Reserved)

The following account has been received from Mr. Scott, one of the party of the British Arctic Expedition in Greenland, which made the journey (reported in our later editions yesterday) on to the ice cap from the base camp:—

ANGMAGSALIK, SEPT. 9

We started from the foot of the glacier with four Norwegian sledges, each drawn by seven dogs. For the first 10 miles it was terribly slow work. The sharp ice troubled the dogs, and in many places was so steep and rough that we had to take the heavily laden sledges one at a time. Besides this, we had often to go ahead roped to find and flag the way through the crevasses. It took two days to get past the crevasses, but our troubles then ended. For the next 10 days we travelled over smooth, hard snow, rarely climbing more than 1,000ft a day.

Once out of sight of land [uncovered by ice] the scenery offered little variety, and both we and the dogs were thrilled to see a bird flying eastward when we were 80 miles from the coast. The prevailing wind was from the north-east, but only on one day was strong enough to bother us. We had no more than 34deg. of frost. On the evening of August 28 we found we had dropped 100ft. during the day. The aneroids gave a height of over 8,000ft., and the land seemed to be sloping gently downwards to the south and west. We found our position to be in Latitude 67deg. 3sec. North, and Longitude 41deg. 48sec. West, which corresponds with the highest point on De Quervain's crossing. Between observations we erected a house. This is a double canvas tent stretched on a dome-shaped frame. Entrance is by a tunnel and a hole in the floor.

On the afternoon of August 30, Rymill, Bingham, and I started for home, leaving Lindsay and Riley with the meteorological instruments and enough food for seven weeks. The snow at that altitude was particularly good, and would be perfect for aeroplane landing. Certainly it suited the dogs, which raced back along the line of flags, reaching the crevasses in just over three days.

Here occurred what might have been the first accident. We were very keen to get down to the sea, and pushed on long after dark. All went well till the dogs of the leading sledge disappeared down a crevasse. Luckily the sledge jammed in the mouth, and the dogs got a footing on a ledge 15ft. below. We could hear them howling, but could not see them in the dark. For over an hour we tried various ways of hauling them up, but the traces were caught and the weight of the nine dogs was too much for us. Finally, one man was let down on a rope and he took the dogs out of their harness. Then they were all hauled up one by one. None of them was hurt, nor was any of a litter of two-days-old puppies which were on the sledge. We camped where we were, and reached home easily the next day, just 23 days from the date we left.

TURKISH PRESIDENT AND NEW PARTY

REPLY TO OPEN LETTER

CONSTANTINOPLE, SEPT. 10

Ghazi Mustapha Kemal Pasha has replied to the open letter of the Deputy Yunus Nady in which his guidance was sought in the present confused state of internal politics in Turkey. The reply is—perhaps purposely—ambiguous.

Inter alia, the Ghazi Pasha says that history binds him to the Popular Party, and that as president of the party he will work for it always—even after the expiration of his term of office as President of the Republic. His position will not, however, prevent him from exercising his neutrality, which is incumbent on a chief of State whose mandate will end next year. He concludes by deploring the recent incidents in Smyrna, and states that he has replied to Yunus Nady so that the public may know his views.

In reality the Ghazi Pasha's reply has not greatly enlightened anyone as to his attitude regarding the struggle now going on between Ismet Pasha, the Prime Minister, and Fethy Bey, the leader of the new Liberal Republican Party. This is not surprising, as the Ghazi Pasha has learnt much statecraft during the past few years, and his public utterances have shown an increasing tendency towards ambiguity. Meanwhile, it has not escaped notice that the Turkish Press contains widely different versions of the Ghazi Pasha's letter. Versions differ according to the political views held by the respective newspapers, and lend colour to the theory that both political parties are extremely anxious to secure his support.

PUBLIC WORKS IN ROME

PRINCE BONCOMPAGNI-LUDOVISI'S SURVEY

ROME, SEPT. 10

The Consulta, or new City Council, of Rome held its first meeting at the Capitol this morning in the presence of Signor Arpinati, Under-Secretary for the Interior, and a large number of civic authorities and distinguished guests.

Prince Boncompagni-Ludovisi, the Governor of Rome, gave an account of work done in the two years since his appointment. On "works of immediate and direct utility," he said, 500,000,000 lire (about £5,600,000) had been spent, as compared with the 80,000,000 lire on "monumental works." The City Budget, which two years ago showed a deficit, had been balanced as a result of systematic economy, more efficient tax collecting, a reduction in the number of employees, and a reorganization of the municipal offices.

In Rome and in the Campagna parks and gardens, new roads, aqueducts, and schools had been built. Costly road repairs had been made necessary by the recent substitution in the centre of the city of motor-omnibuses for the cheaper but unsatisfactory electric tramways. This reform had for the time being practically solved the traffic problem.

After describing imminent improvements in other services, Prince Boncompagni-Ludovisi gave an account of his efforts for the regeneration of the Campagna Romano. All the roads dependent on the city would, he promised, be completely rebuilt during the next few months, while the public telephone service would soon be available to every farmer. In addition schools and medical centres had been opened, and the city's assistance service extended. The city's assistance bureaux had also cooperated in the construction of new dwelling houses in Rome, which had made possible the demolition of 1,000 slum huts in 1929; a similar number would probably be demolished before the close of the current year.

The Governor closed his speech with a reference to the improved communication with Tivoli and the other hill towns, and with the promise that the new city planning scheme would be submitted to Signor Mussolini within the period laid down.

END OF FRENCH ARMY MANOEUVRES

"INVADERS" REPELLED

PARIS, SEPT. 10

The French Army autumn manoeuvres in Lorraine closed to-day with a grand review of the troops, at which M. Maginot, the Minister for War, Marshal Pétain, General Weygand, and other members of the Supreme Army Council were present. Lunéville was beflagged and en fête, and there was great enthusiasm.

Yesterday General Mittelhausser, developing his counter-attack, forced the passage of the Marne Canal and the River Sanon, across which bridges of boats were constructed, and continued his advance to the south until he again came into contact with the "enemy." General Dufieux had, in fact, withdrawn his troops to a strong defensive line on the heights of Flainval and the borders of the forest of Parroy. When fighting ceased for the day General Mittelhausser had consolidated his position south of the Sanon, in preparation for the resumption of the attack. General Dufieux had also made his final disposition. Relying on the forest of Parroy to protect his right wing, he concentrated his main force, supported by heavy artillery, west of the road running from Lunéville to Arracourt. Such was the position when the battle was resumed at dawn to-day.

Heavy rain, mist and mud greatly impeded the movement of troops, and made observation difficult in the last stages of the operation; but when "cease fire" was signalled at 9 o'clock this morning General Mittelhausser had successfully repelled the invaders, and General Dufieux's army was retreating in good order. During the air operations yesterday an aeroplane belonging to the 38th Regiment of Aviation at Thionville crashed between Bezaumont and Sainte-Geneviève, and burst into flames. The pilot, an officer, was pinned under the aeroplane and burned to death. His mechanic, a sergeant, was rescued. Both legs were broken.

MACEDONIAN MINORITIES

BULGARIAN PETITION TO THE LEAGUE

GENEVA, SEPT. 10

Dr. Petkoff, representing the Bulgarian Society "Otetz Paissi," yesterday presented to the League Secretariat a petition signed by many thousands of Bulgarian citizens in support of the formal petition which had already been delivered to the Secretariat in January of this year on behalf of the Bulgarian minority in Macedonia.

The original petition was declared by the League to be "receivable" and was duly examined by a committee of the League Council. The usual procedure is for the committee, consisting of three persons, to make a preliminary examination of the grievances enumerated in the petition and then report to the Council as to whether they should be officially brought before the Council as a whole. In this instance the petition—as is usually the case—got no farther than the committee of three, and—also as usual—no reasons were published why the petition should not have been examined by the Council.

The object of the petition presented yesterday is to provoke an examination by the whole Council of the grievances contained in the original petition. This cannot, however, be done unless a State member of the Council officially brings the matter up again. The Bulgarian Government, whose Foreign Minister is attending the Assembly, is not a member of the Council and is thus precluded from raising the question, which is officially regarded as disposed of.

"BUSINESS IS GOOD"

A NEW YORK COUE CAMPAIGN

NEW YORK, SEPT. 10

A movement has been started in New York to cure business depression by Couéism. To-day scores of brokers on the New York Stock and Curb Exchanges and hundreds of other persons in Wall-street appeared wearing small blue buttons in their coat lapels bearing the statement:—"Business is good."

The advertising firm which is distributing the buttons, in the belief that all that needs to be changed—in the United States at least—is business psychology, has already exhausted its first order of 15,000, and all day long to-day was bombarded with requests from brokers, bankers, and business firms for additional supplies. Many firms offered to buy quantities of the buttons for distribution among their clients. One bank asked for enough to provide 8,000 of its depositors with one.

AUSTRALIAN BUTTER

CONTROL OF EXPORTS TO CANADA

MELBOURNE, Sept. 10.—Mr. Forde, the Acting Commonwealth Minister for Markets, said yesterday that in the case of certain primary products Australia very much desired to increase exports to Canada, but without hampering similar Canadian products, such as butter.

It was reported, said Mr. Forde, that large importations of New Zealand butter into Canada during the past two years had alarmed Canadian dairy farmers and caused concern to the Canadian Government. Only limited quantities of Australian butter had been consigned to Canada during the past two years, and as a token of good will towards the Canadian Government and dairy farmers, Australia would control the export of butter so as not to permit the export of butter during the Canadian winter, except when licensed by the Minister for Markets and under conditions which would prevent competition detrimental to Canadian butter.—Reuter.

SIR JOHN FRANKLIN'S EXPEDITION

TRACES OF CAMPS FOUND

WINNIPEG, SEPT. 10

Major L. T. Burwash, the Dominion Geological Observer, is returning to Edmonton on Thursday from an aeroplane trip to King William Island and the North Magnetic Pole District, having covered a territory never before surveyed by a white man during a single summer season.

Traces of the camps of the Sir John Franklin Expedition were found, and much new information was obtained. Mr. Gilbert, the pilot accompanying Major Burwash, has sent a wireless message saying that the North Magnetic Pole was reached, and that the area around was mapped by aerial photography, as well as 2,000 miles of Canada's hitherto uncharted Arctic coastline.

THE GRAF ZEPPELIN IN MOSCOW

RIGA, SEPT. 10

The airship Graf Zeppelin arrived in Moscow this morning escorted by aeroplanes of the Red Army. The Soviet Government had appointed a special reception committee under the chairmanship of Malinovsky. In a public statement Malinovsky described the visit of the airship as of great political importance. The Soviet Government has prepared a special issue of postage stamps to commemorate the occasion.

UNEMPLOYMENT IN CANADA

GOVERNMENT'S RELIEF MEASURES

OTTAWA, SEPT. 10

In the House of Commons to-day the Prime Minister, Mr. Bennett, introduced a Money Bill providing $20,000,000 (£4,000,000) for the relief of unemployment, the beginning of work on sections of the Trans-Canada Highway, railway construction, and necessary public works. It is not suggested that this will be sufficient to provide work for all the unemployed, but the Provincial Governments and municipalities will spend an amount equal to that provided by the Dominion Government.

Mr. Mackenzie King, the former Prime Minister, in a speech on the Address-in-Reply, warned Mr. Bennett that the Liberals would not submit tamely to steamroller tactics respecting tariff increases. The people of this country, he said, will not permit the Prime Minister to use the Imperial Conference as a smoke-screen under cover of which tariff changes may be got through Parliament. Liberals proposed to scrutinize all the proposals and judge them on their merits. Referring to Mr. Bennett's statement that he would remain until the business of Parliament was completed, Mr. King said he did not know whether the Prime Minister was attempting to evade attendance at the Imperial Conference or not, but the Canadian people would expect him to attend.

Mr. Bennett replied that he regarded it as a great privilege and a high honour to represent his fellow-citizens at the Conference. He added that, if circumstances prevented him from attending the Imperial Conference, it would be because he regarded his duty to Canada and to the Canadian people as one which transcended his other duties. He proposed to let the people judge which was the better procedure, post mortem respecting the past, or immediate action looking to the future development of Canada.

It is expected that the Government programme will be completed in ample time to enable Mr. Bennett to attend the conference.

The Address-in-Reply was adopted unanimously.

Mr. Massey's letter of resignation of his post as High Commissioner makes it clear that Mr. Bennett wished to have a representative in England in complete sympathy with the Conservative policies.

ANCIENT NILE CEREMONY

"CUTTING OF THE KHALIG"

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT)

CAIRO, SEPT. 10

The ceremony of "Cutting the Khalig," which is a very popular river fête, was held this afternoon and this evening.

Two gaily decorated steamers bearing guests of the Government proceeded up the Nile to the accompaniment of repeated gunfire. Numerous launches with sailing boats accompanied the steamers from the Kasr el Nil Bridge for about a mile upstream, and many thousands of cheering people lined the bank. This evening the Governor of Cairo, representing the King, will be present at a big display of fireworks over the Nile.

The "Cutting of the Khalig" is a ceremony of great antiquity and is connected with the measuring of the height of the Nile waters. Until the beginning of this century the ceremony consisted in cutting the Khalig dam, which allowed the Nile to flow into the irrigation canals. Now the ceremony is purely symbolical and signifies that the Nile flood has reached its height. Many stories are told by historians of the rites observed at the ceremony. Before the Arab conquest a virgin used to be thrown to the Nile as an offering, after being dressed as a bride, and for this reason the ceremony is often called the Wedding of the Nile.

AUSTRALIAN FINANCES

MR. HUGHES'S REPLY TO HIS CRITICS

Australia House last night issued a statement received from Mr. W. M. Hughes, replying to criticisms of his views on the economic difficulties of the Commonwealth. The statement says:—

Judging from cabled comments in the Home Press, the British public had been told that I am against balancing Budgets and economy and am supporting extremists who urge repudiation of Australian oversea debts. If these statements affected myself alone I should pass them by with contempt, but their reaction upon Australian credit and welfare imperatively demand prompt and emphatic denial. The statements are deliberate and gross misrepresentations.

In proof of this I quote from my pamphlet: "Budgets ought to and must balance. This is fundamental. Expenditure must be kept within the limits of revenue, but this should not be confined to Governments alone; individual expenditure must be limited the same way. As a community we have been living beyond our means. This must stop; we must not live on borrowed money. Loans should be restricted to enterprises directly remunerative or which will enable the community to increase its productivity to an extent which will at least cover the interest and provide sinking fund on these loans. Even Sir Otto Niemeyer will not deny that our security is of the best. Australia has never defaulted and she never will. As sensible level-headed people we must face facts. Wild talk about repudiation will not help us, but must certainly make that which is bad very much worse."

This is what I said. The contrast between my own words and the deliberate perversion cabled to the British Press will give the public of Great Britain some idea of the depths to which partisan journals in Australia will go. Australia, like all the world, is in difficulties, but it will surmount them more quickly than most, especially if those who stop at nothing to slander and belittle her are silenced.

AUSTRALIAN REVENUE RETURNS

CANBERRA, SEPT. 10

In considering the Commonwealth revenue returns, which have been submitted monthly for the first time in accordance with an agreement reached at a conference of Premiers, and which show a decline for July and August aggregating £2,259,000, allowance should be made for the fact that a few land and income-tax payments have yet to be received, and that the Sales Tax has not had time to begin operating.

THE FATE OF ANDREE

FURTHER DETAILS

EFFECT OF ARCTIC CURRENTS

PARTY CARRIED BY ICE-FLOES

(World Copyright Reserved)

STOCKHOLM, SEPT. 10

In continuation of his previous dispatches Dr. Stubbendorff, the leader of the Isbjörn expedition, which has searched for remains of the Andrée expedition on Kvito (White Island), sent by wireless to-night more details of his discoveries. It now becomes more and more obvious that the Andrée party were carried by ice floes to the scene of the tragedy, and that they hoped that they could bridge the gulf between Kvito and Spitsbergen. The following is the message:—

ON BOARD THE ISBJORN, SEPT. 10

The nature of the currents at Kvito explains how the Andrée party arrived at the south-western side of the island. The island's beaches are inaccessible and steep, with swift glaciers. Kvito forms a link in a string of islands and land stretching from North-East Land and Spitsbergen to Franz Josef Land. There a threshold is formed just north of 80deg. West by the islands Storon, Kvito, and Victoria, all of them lonely, uninhabited, and covered with ice. Over this threshold the current is very strong, on the ebb towards the south-west and on the flood towards the north-west. The Andrée party, who were gripped by the current east of Kvito, were driven first southwards, and afterwards by the north-west current to the south-west side of the island, where the island's only accessible land appears. Here the ice-floe was broken up. If this had happened earlier the disaster would perhaps have taken place suddenly, and no trace would have been left.

A RISKY LANDING

Our landing was a risky undertaking, in spite of the fact that the pack ice was very much spread out and the swell was slight. The sea here forms breakers which compelled the boat's crew to jump into the water, hold fast on to their boat, and draw it high up on the shingle. Kvito is seldom visited by Polar bears, but these now appeared in large numbers on the cliffs. They did not take our visit very well, and did not show us the respect which they generally show human beings. We went up in a party over the stony ground, the Polar bears coming towards us. I managed to shoot the first two, and the crew from the Isbjörn killed one of the others.

We discovered the cairn erected by Dr. Horn, on the top of which a cross had been erected. The melting of the ice had been so rapid after Dr. Horn's visit that we soon discovered the sledge, the oars, and the snowshoes and the depôt of clothes on one of the long sides of the ice shelter. On the opposite side of the shelter were lying two piles of scattered driftwood, which had undoubtedly been originally erected against the cliff wall.

BALLAST BASKETS

On the way across the ice we discovered the bear's skin, and, sticking out of the ice, the skeleton of an animal and the remains of a human being, which I have previously mentioned. This was the back, the spine, the femur, and the under-arm. Around the latter were still the remains of a striped shirt. While we were going round the site of the discovery one of our party found a femur and another smaller bone down in the ice. At the same time we saw the remains of two or three ballast baskets, but they were so fragile that they fell to pieces when we attempted to dig them loose.

From the ice there also stuck out the edges of a ring which appeared to be a part of a water reservoir and which was fixed to the cliff close to the edge of the ice. This gave me the idea that the dwelling must have been just at that spot. We now organized our work to clear away the side. I cautioned my assistants that they must proceed with every care during their work. The pieces of metal and texture which were brought out were well preserved, but they were already in rags or, owing to the state they were in from being frozen together, were damaged when being dug out, in spite of all care being exercised. The remains of the human beings, which required a good deal of effort to extricate, fell into pieces after being dug out. It was impossible to preserve the balloon covering, the fine meshes falling in pieces as we dug them up.

While six men and myself with the photographer Zappfe from Tromsö were working on land, those who had remained on the Isbjörn stated that three polar bears had swum out from shore. Of these bears two were shot. The engineer and the wireless operator, who had gone ashore unarmed in the afternoon, were surrounded by three polar bears on the beach, but were rescued by Zappfe and two others, whose rifle shots frightened away the bears. Later on several more bears appeared, but they were frightened away and disappeared over the inland ice. Two whalers whose crews had heard of the Andrée discovery had waited in the neighbourhood of Kvito for suitable weather in order to proceed on shore, but just on that very calm day they had been attracted northwards on to the west coast by a school of walruses and away from the waiting treasure.

Among other things which I have preserved in my cabin is a sum of money in American and Russian gold and silver coinage.

THE ANDREE OBSEQUIES

STOCKHOLM, SEPT. 10

Bishop Stadener, chairman of the Andrée Reception Committee, informed me to-day that his committee is still negotiating with the relatives of all three men as to the ultimate manner of burial of their bodies. Whether there will be one grave or the matter be settled in some other way has not been decided, but all depends upon the relatives.

Similarly the relatives have the right to a decision in regard to the cremation of Andrée's body. Under Swedish law cremation may be resorted to if the relatives wish, even in cases where the person who died did not express a desire to be cremated. Several days are expected to pass before the negotiations between the two parties will be completed, when the plans will be published. My informant stated that he expected that the reception and the national obsequies would be held about September 25. I understand that Andrée's relatives have expressed a desire that his body should be cremated.

CRISIS IN POLAND

FORMER DEPUTIES ARRESTED

WARSAW, SEPT. 10

Warsaw learned this morning that between 1 and 3 o'clock a number of Deputies of the dissolved Diet had been arrested. No official communiqué was issued until the evening, the Government Press stating merely that the arrests were connected with the June opposition Congress in Cracow, which had an anti-Government character, and with the preparation for the joint demonstrations of the Opposition parties of the Centre and Left next Sunday.

Immediately after the Cracow Congress legal proceedings were started against its leaders, but the Deputies' immunity saved them from arrest. Proceedings were resumed a few days ago after the dissolution of the Diet. Nine former Deputies were arrested in Warsaw. Four of them are Socialists, including M. Lieberman, the well-known Socialist leader, elected by the Diet as prosecutor for the impeachment of M. Czechowicz, a former Minister; one is a National Labour Deputy, three are peasant leaders; and the ninth is Alexander Dembski, a National Democrat. He did not take part in the Cracow Congress, but is chairman of the Warsaw branch of the Dmowski militant organization ("Great Poland").

All the arrests were executed by order of the Minister of the Interior. Later it was reported that other ex-Deputies had been arrested in provincial towns, including M. Witos, a former Prime Minister, and four Ukrainians. Altogether 17 persons have been arrested.

While professional politicians are strongly aroused, the Warsaw public appears indifferent. In the afternoon small groups of Labour supporters paraded the streets in protest, but were dispersed at once by the police. The Warsaw Bar, however, held a special meeting and sent a delegation to M. Car, the Minister of Justice, and a former member of the Bar, to protest against the making of the arrests without the concurrence of the Courts. M. Car is understood to have replied that the protest was premature, as the Administration had the right to detain persons for 48 hours before delivering them for trial. The protest of the Warsaw Bar was published by the Opposition Press, but was suppressed.

It was interesting to note that the arrests were made a few hours after the Socialist, National Labour, and Peasant Parties decided to form a bloc during the forthcoming election. The Christian Democrats, who sided with the central Left during the summer, did not enter the bloc, on account of differences on religious points. No former Deputy of the Christian Democrat Party was arrested, though the party took an active part in the Cracow Congress.

FOREIGN TRADE IN AUGUST

FURTHER DECLINE

Preliminary returns of our foreign trade for August show a fall of £21,070,000, or 20.8 per cent., in imports, as compared with August last year; a fall of £20,268,000, or 32.1 per cent., in British exports; and a fall of £2,678,000, or 29.7 per cent., in exports of imported merchandise. Part of the reduction is accounted for by the heavy decline in prices during the past 12 months, the average level of prices on August 30 last, according to The Times index number, being 16 per cent. lower than at the end of August last year.

For the eight months of this year total imports amount to £706,681,000, being £92,145,000 less than in the corresponding period of last year, while British exports at £398,375,000 show a decrease of £89,932,000, and re-exports are £15,417,000 lower at £62,285,000. Tables containing the returns will be found on page 15.

THE PRIME MINISTER

RETURN TO LONDON BY TRAIN

Our Parliamentary Correspondent writes:—

Heavy rain prevented the Prime Minister flying from Lossiemouth to London yesterday. He therefore travelled by the 4.30 train from Elgin, due at King's Cross at 7.30 this morning.

Owing to the change in Mr. MacDonald's arrangements the meeting between Ministers and Mr. Lloyd George, Mr. Seebohm Rowntree, and Lord Lothian to continue their discussions on unemployment, provisionally fixed for to-day, has been postponed. There was a meeting of the Liberal "Shadow Cabinet" yesterday, at which Mr. Lloyd George reported the progress made so far in the conversations. There was also a discussion on India.

THE LEAGUE

OPENING OF THE ASSEMBLY

ELECTION OF PRESIDENT

GENEVA, SEPT. 10

The eleventh Assembly of the League of Nations was opened this morning in a new setting. Pending the erection of the League's own building in Ariana Park, the Salle de la Réformation has been discarded in favour of the Electoral Building, a much more imposing edifice, containing a larger hall and situated in the middle of the town.

The customary opening speech was delivered by the President of the Council, Señor Zumeta (Venezuela), who reviewed the League's work during the past year. He began by expressing the sympathy of her sister State in the League for the Dominican Republic in the catastrophic hurricane that has overtaken her, and referred to the deaths during the past year of Herr Stresemann, Dr. Nansen, and Lord Balfour, whose saying he quoted that the League of Nations was "the greatest experiment and the most hopeful enterprise yet undertaken by man."

The Assembly then elected its President for the present session. M. Titulescu (Rumania) received 46 votes out of 51. The Rumanian Minister in London is a popular figure in Geneva, and was loudly cheered as he took his place in the Presidential chair.

There are 20 Foreign Ministers present at this year's Assembly. Among the Prime Ministers are M. Venizelos (Greece), Herr Schober (Austria), M. Mowinckel (Norway), and General Hertzog (South Africa). Mr. Scullin (Australia) is expected to come, and to deliver a speech to the Assembly if the state of his health permits.

M. Briand is to speak on European federation to-morrow morning, and will be followed by Mr. Henderson in the afternoon.

This evening's short session of the Assembly was restricted to the election of vice-presidents of the Assembly, presidents of the six committees of the Assembly, and the nomination of a Standing Orders Committee.

Mr. Henderson and Mr. Matsudaira (the principal Japanese delegate), who each obtained 47 votes, M. Briand (France) with 45, Herr Curtius (Germany) 45, Señor Quinones de Leon (Spain) 40, and Señor Costa du Rels (Bolivia) 37, were all elected vice-presidents. Signor Scialoja was elected president of the First (Legal and Constitutional) Committee, M. Colijn (Holland) president of the Second (Technical Organization) Committee, M. Politis (Greece) president of the Third (Reduction of Armaments) Committee; Count Carton de Wiart (Belgium), president of the Fourth (Organization of Secretariat and Finance) Committee; the Countess Apponyi (Hungary), president of the Fifth (Social and Humanitarian Questions) Committee; and Sir Robert Borden (Canada), president of the Sixth (Political Questions) Committee. Lord Cecil and Sir Thomas Wilford (New Zealand) were elected to the Standing Orders Committee.

DONCASTER, SEPT. 10

The sporting people of the North may have heard of the Derby, and also of Epsom, but the importance of that race and of that place is not to be compared by them with the importance of the St. Leger and Doncaster. The St. Leger is the only great race for them, and the Doncaster racecourse is the greatest course in the world. I must say that the course is really good, and its condition yesterday was a credit to those people who look after it. It may be that the weather favoured them, but even then much work had been done. No owner could complain that his horse could not win because of the going.

The fact that experts considered that the field was, for a St. Leger field, a poor one did not worry the crowd which began to pour into Doncaster from an early hour yesterday morning. By noon the town was full. It was an orderly crowd, but so far as it could afford to do so—and there is no money in the North—it was enjoying itself. The various stands and enclosures were well filled, and there were the usual large throngs out on the course. There were a few side-shows, but not nearly so many as at Epsom, but then the people of the North do not go to Doncaster to go on the roundabouts or to throw wooden balls at glued-in cocoanuts. They go for the St. Leger, and that is all they care about. They cheered the winner, and they cheered the jockey who rode him, and many of them then rushed off to draw their winnings, for there was real support for Lord Glanely's horse, not only in the principal rings but also out on the course. No owner ever told so many people that the colt would win. He never seemed to have any doubt about the result. After the race was over the crowd began to melt away in as orderly a fashion as it had assembled. Some remained until long after the last race. It would not be fair to omit to mention the excellent road control and the sound system employed in the parking of the motor-cars. There was a time when these meetings were rowdy and noisy, but they are not so now.

INTERNATIONAL POLO

AMERICA BEAT ENGLAND

The United States beat England in the second of the series of international polo matches for the Westchester Cup at Meadow Brook, Long Island, yesterday, by 14 goals to nine, thus retaining the trophy.

An account of the game by Our Special Correspondent appears on page 5.

THE PRINCE OF WALES

The Prince of Wales left Hendon aerodrome yesterday by air for Le Touquet, where he proposes to spend several more days on the golf links. He motored to Hendon from York House, and was piloted in his private aeroplane by Flight-Lieutenant Fielden.

Our Correspondent at Le Touquet telegraphs:—

The Prince of Wales arrived at Berck aerodrome at 5.25 p.m. He said he had had an enjoyable flight. He went at once to an hotel near Le Touquet golf course, and later played a round before dinner.

ATTEMPTS TO ROUSE HILLMEN

SIMLA, SEPT. 10

There is very little fresh news from the Frontier Province to-day. This is a fortunate sign, for the case is evidently one in which no news is good news. The one fresh item is unfavourable, for it proves that the embers of revolt have not yet been quenched in the Tirah and may again be fanned into flame.

Khilafat agitators, as Congress agents in these parts are termed, are reported to be roving over the country, visiting all villages whose inhabitants took no part in the recent descent against Peshawar, girding at their people for not having supported the effort made by their neighbours, and goading them to redeem their default.

It is stated that these efforts appear to be producing some effect, so that a recrudescence of Afridi intransigence can no longer be regarded as such a remote possibility as it was thought a day or two ago. Political pressure, backed by air activities, to nip the new trouble in the bud seems likely.

BOMBS FOUND IN CALCUTTA

POLICE SEARCH FOR TERRORISTS

CALCUTTA, SEPT. 10

To-day the Calcutta police raided a house at Jorabagan, in which they discovered bombs and explosives, and arrested three men and one woman, all Bengalis. While the police were still guarding the house a man with a bundle arrived and was taken into custody. The bundle contained eight aluminium bomb cases, each about the size of a Mills grenade, but designed to be detonated with a fuse.

The police are still searching for two men who are believed to be the most dangerous figures in the terrorist movement, and who eluded arrest when the raid was made at Chandernagore eight days ago, and were again absent when to-day's raid was carried through.

After a women's demonstration yesterday, there was in the evening some trouble between the police and a crowd which gathered at College Square. Stones were thrown, and ultimately the police entered the Ashutosh Mookerjee building attached to the Calcutta University and cleared the balconies from which the stones had come. In a scuffle several students were hurt, but none very seriously.

When later Colonel Suhrawardy, Vice-Chancellor of the University, saw Sir Charles Tegart, the Commissioner of Police, the latter promised an inquiry into the allegations made against the police, but required an assurance that if the police were not to enter the University buildings, the professors and lecturers should ensure that the building would be used neither as points of attack nor places of refuge.

JUNGLE TRIBESMEN'S SUBMISSION

BOMBAY, SEPT. 10

The latest information from Bilashi (a jungle village in the Satara district) shows that the anti-Government movement has almost completely subsided. At a durbar (meeting) held by the Collector, various villages gave a written or verbal assurance of loyalty, and one petition from the villagers will serve as a sample indicating the tone adopted. It says:—

We are completely loyal subjects of the kind British Government, but at the instigation to take part in an anti-Government movement by some satyagrahis from Satara, who kept visiting our village for some time back, we were misled and behaved foolishly. On September 5 some men of our village stoned Government people, notwithstanding your order, while your Honour had been in our village. This was a gross mistake on our part, and for this atrocity we are extremely sorry and feel repentance. Now we bind ourselves never to take part in the future in any anti-Government movement of this kind, and request your Honour to please excuse us this time for the mistake.

The District Magistrate released several prisoners on receiving an undertaking from their fathers or other relatives that they would see that they refrained from any further participation in such demonstrations. The released prisoners also made declarations asking pardon and promising loyalty to the Government.

Polling took place to-day at Poona and Satara for the Legislative Council, voting being very slack owing to active picketing undertaken by the Congress. At Satara, particularly, pickets of both sexes, including children, proved a great obstruction in spite of police action in arresting several and removing those who lay on the road in the front of motor-cars.

The polling in Bombay city, which was fixed for to-day, has been postponed on account of the heavy rain and floods.

"THE TIMES LITERARY SUPPLEMENT"

The leading article in The Times Literary Supplement, published to-day, is entitled "Revolution and Education," and discusses the various new educational theories that have reshaped the schools of Soviet Russia, of Italy since the Fascist reorganization, and of Germany since the Revolution.

Among books reviewed are "Plant Hunting on the Edge of the World," by F. Kingdon Ward; Mr. J. A. Spender's memoir of Sir Robert Hudson; "Christian Ethics," by the Dean of St. Paul's; "The Love Letters of Ernst Haeckel"; and Mr. Alfred Tresidder Sheppard's "Art and Practice of Historical Fiction." New light is thrown on the relations between George Eliot and Dr. John Chapman, editor of the Westminster Review, by extracts from a hitherto unpublished diary of Dr. Chapman's for the years 1851 and 1860.

COAL FOR EXPORT

THE SCANDINAVIAN MARKET

BRITISH DELEGATION'S VISIT

(From Our Labour Correspondent)

The delegation representing the British coal trade, which, with Mr. E. Shinwell, Parliamentary Secretary to the Mines Department, at its head, is to visit the Scandinavian countries, will leave on Saturday and reach Stockholm on Monday. From Stockholm the party will travel to Oslo on Wednesday, to Bergen on Friday, to Gothenburg on the following Sunday, and to Copenhagen on the afternoon of the next day. Leaving Copenhagen on September 24, the party will be back in England next Thursday week.

All the exporting coalfields will be represented by the delegation, as well as the coal exporters. There will be meetings with the Scandinavian Coal Importers' Association and with each of the three national associations of importers which constitute the Scandinavian association. The object of the delegation is to study the Scandinavian market and to consider what may be done to improve the demand for British coal. From the importers' associations it will be possible to learn the desires and requirements of the Scandinavian consumers and to investigate on the spot the standards of salesmanship, methods of marketing, and other important matters concerning the analysis and grading of coal and selling to specification. Questions of finance and credit will also be considered if they are raised by the importers, and, indeed, anything which may help or hinder business.

A NATIONAL POLICY

As to the significance of the delegation it must not be overlooked that the Coal Mines Act makes provision for the organization of the mining industry both nationally and by districts, and that, for the first time, it is possible for the industry to develop a national policy when dealing with foreign competition.

British coal exports to Scandinavia have declined heavily since the War. Our exports of all kinds of produce to the three countries have increased, but to a much smaller extent than our imports from them have increased. From Norway our imports were of the value of £6,793,000 in 1913, £11,436,000 in 1928, and £14,149,000 in 1929. To Norway our exports were £6,665,000 in 1913, £8,376,000 in 1928, and £10,327,000 in 1929. From Sweden, our imports were £13,752,000 in 1913, £21,749,000 in 1928, and £25,709,000 in 1929. To Sweden our exports were £9,234,000 in 1913, £10,951,000 in 1928, and £11,704,000 in 1929. The 1929 figures of imports include the value of articles subsequently exported, and in 1928 the value of the re-exports of Norwegian produce was £547,000 and of Swedish produce £300,000. From Denmark our imports were £23,507,000 in 1913, £52,691,000 in 1928, and £55,800,000 in 1929. To Denmark our exports were £6,343,000 in 1913, £10,541,000 in 1928, and £11,500,000 in 1929. Apart from "invisible exports," therefore, the balance of trade in favour of Norway is over £3,000,000, in favour of Sweden about £14,000,000, and in favour of Denmark £44,000,000.

GERMAN AND POLISH TRADE

The corresponding figures for 1928 (the latest available) of German and Polish trade with the Scandinavian countries show in every case a balance in the other direction. Imports into Norway from Germany were £11,896,000 (coal £38,000); exports from Norway into Germany, £5,083,000; the adverse balance against Norway being £6,813,000. Imports into Norway from Poland were £798,000 (coal £716,000); exports from Norway into Poland, £230,000; adverse balance against Norway, £568,000.

Imports into Sweden from Germany were £29,213,000 (coal £984,000); exports from Sweden into Germany, £10,928,000; adverse balance against Sweden, £18,285,000. Imports into Sweden from Poland were £1,739,000 (coal £1,256,000); exports from Sweden into Poland, £1,519,000; adverse balance against Sweden, £220,000. Imports into Denmark from Germany were £31,146,000 (coal £405,000); exports from Denmark into Germany, £18,417,000; adverse balance against Denmark, £12,729,000. Imports into Denmark from Poland were £1,479,000 (coal £947,000); exports from Denmark into Poland, £960,000; adverse balance against Denmark, £519,000.

The percentages of total imports of coal supplied by Great Britain, Germany, and Poland in the three Scandinavian countries in 1928 were as follows:—

	Norway	Sweden	Denmark
Germany ..	1.73	26.43	14.03*
Poland ..	32.90	35.36	33.30

The exports of British coal to Norway were 2,298,000 tons in 1913 and 1,444,000 tons in 1929; to Sweden, 4,563,000 tons in 1913 and 2,335,000 tons in 1929; to Denmark, 3,034,000 tons in 1913 and 2,194,000 tons in 1929.

SOVIET AND FINLAND

REPORTED ACTIVITY ON THE FRONTIER

HELSINGFORS, SEPT. 10

The Viborg newspaper Karjala publishes information given by Russian refugees just arrived in that city that the Soviet authorities have recently begun the building of a strategical railway line in the Leningrad district near the Finnish frontier. The refugees were unable to state definitely the direction of the railway, but they assumed that it was towards the mouth of the River Mikkulais [near the Finnish frontier about 25 miles north-east of Leningrad]. Three regiments, comprising about 3,000 men, are said to be employed in its construction.

It is also rumoured that the Russians contemplate the construction of another railway from Peri Station, Leningrad, towards Valkeasaari, on the Finnish frontier, north-west of Leningrad. It is understood that the construction of the new Soviet fortifications, machine-gun nests, and artillery positions, which are all said to be very carefully camouflaged, is nearly complete.

MILITARY ATTACHE AT WASHINGTON

Lieutenant-Colonel M. F. Day, M.C., The Oxfordshire and Buckinghamshire Light Infantry, has been appointed, with effect from next November, Military Attaché to His Majesty's Embassy at Washington, and to His Majesty's Legations at Mexico City, Guatemala, San Salvador, Tegucigalpa, Managua, San José, Panama, Havana, Port-au-Prince, and Santo Domingo.

Lieutenant-Colonel Day has been selected for promotion to the rank of colonel.

AN INCH OF RAIN IN AN HOUR

In the City the atmosphere had been still and close for some hours, even a sharp rainstorm just before 6 p.m. having done nothing to relieve its oppressiveness. About 8 o'clock lightning and thunder were seen and heard. The flashes and thunder-claps increased in severity, but no rain fell at first. It began to fall very suddenly at 8.15, and so heavy was the fall that the sound of it could be heard above all other noises in the street, and a mist rose after it had struck the ground. Rushing streams 6ft. wide quickly appeared along the gutters, and fast-moving motor traffic caused splashing fountains of water. This downpour continued for about 20 minutes, slackened, and then came on again with renewed violence. Even under the wide railway bridge by St. Paul's Station there was no real shelter for the people and vehicles who sought refuge there. The rain continued to fall heavily until after 9 o'clock, and then moderated into a steady drizzle.

The storm seems to have been at its worst in the central and City area. Its severity may be judged from the fact that on the roof of the Air Ministry in Kingsway well over an inch of rain fell in the course of an hour. Many private houses and other buildings were flooded. At the Highbury Cinema, Holloway-road, the generator room was flooded to a depth of 10in., and the performance was stopped for several minutes. After a vivid flash of lightning all the lights went out in a cinema theatre in Old Kent-road, and the performance was interrupted for 10 minutes.

In parts of the London area the rainstorm which developed in the early evening continued from 5.30 until about 7 o'clock. The rain clouds were unusually dark, doubtless because of accumulated smoke at high levels in the absence of appreciable wind, and daylight almost ceased when the storm was at its height. The measured amounts of rain during this earlier storm were not so large as might have been expected, slightly over a fifth of an inch both at Kensington and Kingsway up to 7 p.m., while out at Kew only a trace had fallen at that hour.

RAILWAY FLOODED

Flood water caused considerable delay and disorganization on the Southern Railway between New Cross and New Cross Gate stations. The New Cross area experienced particularly heavy rain, and here, where the line runs through a cutting, hundreds of gallons of water poured in from the surrounding streets. Two lines were completely blocked, and for some time all traffic had to go over the remaining two. Some trains from London Bridge had to be cancelled, and many others were considerably delayed. Some were sent round by Greenwich.

Brockley station and the roads surrounding it, which lie very low, were partially flooded. Motor-omnibus and tramway services were disorganized, and trains to Woolwich and Bexley Heath were delayed. Tramcars were brought to a standstill in Brockley-rise, Forest-hill, owing to the conduit system being flooded.

At Charing Cross large crowds had to wait for their trains, only a small number of which could get through to London Bridge. Storm water penetrated the subways of many underground stations, but no delay to traffic was caused. The rain drove many hundreds of people who usually travel by omnibus and tram to the underground railways, and many stations in the City had to cope with record crowds.

Damage estimated at some thousands of pounds was caused by a severe thunderstorm which broke over Glasgow last evening, just when business men and women were returning home. Streets became flooded, the water rose in shops and houses, and in the south side of the city especially much damage was done to goods stored in basements. The fire brigades used every available engine in order to pump out the water.

Thunderstorms occurred during the day in the neighbourhood of Cromer and Ilkley, but the weather was generally finer than on Tuesday, with long periods of sunshine in most districts. Our Weather Correspondent states that the improvement is likely to be maintained, but further local thundery showers are expected to develop within the complex system of shallow depressions that still covers the British Isles.

A RECORD MONSOON RAINFALL

BOMBAY CITY FLOODED

BOMBAY, SEPT. 10

Nearly 22in. of rain have fallen during the 24 hours ending at 8 o'clock this morning. The official measurement at Colaba Observatory easily constitutes a record rainfall here, and it is probable that some parts of the city received even more rain. Three more inches fell between 8 a.m. and 2 p.m. to-day, and, in spite of occasional short breaks, there is every appearance that the rain will continue.

Not since 1886, when 16in. fell on one day, has there been anything approaching this downfall. Yet last Friday, with a total rainfall for the year of only 43in., we were 14in. below the normal. A prolonged thunderstorm on Saturday helped to remove that reproach, and thereafter the monsoon appeared to revive with all its customary fury.

Bombay Island, being low-lying and largely consisting of reclaimed land, is easily flooded, and certain parts of the city are periodically flooded almost every year, especially if heavy rain coincides with a high tide. To-day almost every section has some floods. Some roads are three or four feet deep in water. In the Fort area the fire brigade is busily pumping water from the flooded basement of the Imperial Bank, and damage is reported from the godowns near the docks and, farther north, from the gasworks, where only vigorous pumping prevented the furnaces from being extinguished. The tramcars are running only over limited sections and the train services are almost hopelessly disorganized, not only in the city and suburbs but on the line to Poona, where there had already been serious washouts near Battery Hill. Salsette is practically cut off from Bombay and in parts of the city marooned motor-cars are common sights.

AUSTRALIAN RAILWAYMEN'S WAGES

MELBOURNE, SEPT. 10

Thwarted in their attempt to have the existing award conditions varied by the Federal Government's recourse to the conciliation provisions in the new Arbitration Act, under which the jurisdiction of the Arbitration Courts automatically ceases, the Victorian, New South Wales, South Australian, and Tasmanian Railways Commissioners are now applying to the Court to have the awards suspended on the grounds of national emergency. The hearing is fixed for September 17.

DR. DIRAC AND THE PROTON

EXPERTS RESERVING JUDGMENT

"NEGATIVE ENERGY"

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT)

Most experts at the British Association are reserving opinion about the paper read by Dr. Dirac, enthusiastically but provisionally blessed by Sir Oliver Lodge, until they have an opportunity of studying the full memoir in the Proceedings of the Royal Society of London. But Dr. P. A. M. Dirac is a young Cambridge man whose published work on de Broglie's theory of wave mechanics was regarded as a very striking contribution, and anything he says deserves serious attention.

Mathematicians, who use symbols instead of figures, find it as easy to deal with what the ordinary person regards as unreal things as with real quantities. Sometimes it happens that theorems embracing such unrealities are subsequently found to have a real application. For example, we have experience only of three dimensions, but mathematicians can pursue their equations quite as easily with four, five, six, or more dimensions, and a four-dimensional geometry was ready for Einstein when he found it necessary to make time a fourth dimension in his theory of relativity. In the same way we can conceive only of positive energy as being a reality, but mathematicians, by changing the sign for the symbol of a quantum from positive to negative, can work out their theorems equally well. It is thus possible to imagine a body endowed with negative energy, and such would have to have energy taken away from it if its acceleration, whatsoever negative acceleration may be, were to be increased, or energy added to it if its negative acceleration were to be decreased.

It is on a conception of the existence of quanta of negative energy that Dr. Dirac appears to have based his theory. By this means he can imagine space to consist of neutral energy, which, however, we cannot appreciate in any way simply because, being neutral, it has no reactions. But somehow a negative electron is pulled out from space and there is thus created the proton, the opposite number of the electron. Matter came into existence, so to speak, by the disruption of space. But why the proton should have a mass 1,850 times that of the electron is as yet unexplained, as also are many points in Dr. Dirac's theory, which at present seems more metaphysical than physical.

RADCLIFFE INFIRMARY, OXFORD

FURTHER GIFT OF £10,000 FROM SIR W. MORRIS

OXFORD, SEPT. 10

At a meeting of the Board of Governors of the Radcliffe Infirmary here to-day it was announced by the treasurer that the hospital had received an additional gift of £10,000 from Sir William Morris, the motor-car manufacturer.

It was stated that Sir William had given this sum to complete the purchase price of the site of the Radcliffe Observatory, towards which he had already contributed £90,000. It was previously his intention to leave the remaining £10,000 required to be raised by public subscription. The Observatory site will be devoted to the erection of additional hospital buildings, for which there is a pressing need.

Sir William Morris's gifts to the Radcliffe Infirmary, of which he is president, now amount to £150,000.

INVALIDS

It was stated last night that there was no change in the condition of Canon Newbolt, of St. Paul's.

The condition of Sir Richard Barnett was stated last night to be unchanged.

No change was reported yesterday in the condition of Mr. H. Gosling, M.P.

In the second of the series of international polo matches for the Westchester Cup at Meadow Brook, Long Island, yesterday, the United States beat England by 14 goals to nine. (p. 5)

FINANCE AND COMMERCE

In "City Notes" comment is made on :—Sale of Beardmore's Shipyard; Argentine Railway Dividends; Record Rand Output; Johannesburg Consolidated Report; Lower Japanese Banking Profits; Yesterday's Meetings; and Reinsurances of Marine Risks. (p. 15)

In the Money Market both loan and discount rates were slightly easier. Foreign Exchanges were less favourable to sterling. The Paris rate fell sharply to 123.83¼f., and the New York, Italian, and Dutch rates were also lower. Further appreciation occurred in Argentine and Brazilian currencies. Silver rose ¼d. to 16¾d. per oz. (p. 15)

Quiet conditions prevailed in the Stock Markets yesterday. British Funds advanced further, but Home Railway stocks again weakened. Oil shares were firm, and there was a better tendency for Industrial shares. (p. 15)

A PROBLEM IN INTERNATIONALISM

Among the subjects to be discussed this month by the Assembly of the League of Nations is the organization of its own administration. Since the League came into being three services have been established: the League Secretariat; the International Labour Office; and the Registry of the Permanent Court of International Justice. As the activities of the League have increased these services have grown both in numbers and in importance. They are purely administrative. They do not initiate or control policy; but in practice their influence is very great and must, in the nature of things, become greater as the work of the League becomes more complicated. The principal officers of the Secretariat, in particular, are entrusted with very responsible functions, and the success or failure of the League depends very largely on their judgment and tact. In theory the three bodies form an international bureaucracy which cultivates an international mind serenely exalted above all national prejudices, partialities and prepossessions. But this international mind is not always easy to cultivate, and even an official who has succeeded in shedding every trace of preference for his own countrymen and his own country's way of looking at things is not always able to convince the rest of the world that he really has done so. How this new bureaucracy should be recruited and organized has been the subject of intermittent debate during the past two years. Last year the Assembly, after much discussion, referred it to a committee, whose report, or rather reports, will come before it this session; and it will have moreover to take into consideration a very outspoken memorandum which the Italian Government has communicated to the SECRETARY-GENERAL and to the Governments of all the States members of the League. The majority report accepts, though it fails to apply consistently, the principle that no account should be taken of nationality in appointments to the League services; the minority report, and more emphatically the Italian memorandum, rejects that principle and urges that steps should be taken to secure among the different nationalities a fair distribution of the posts at the disposal of the League. They apparently despair of securing officials animated by a real international spirit and aim at attaining an impartial administration by neutralizing the nationalism of one official through the different nationalism of another.

Before the Assembly can frame any scheme of recruitment and organization it will have to come to a decision on this question of principle. Is the League Secretariat to be an international body in the sense that, in theory, at any rate, it recognizes no distinction of nationality, or only in the sense that it is composed of members of different nationalities? A Correspondent who analyses the two reports in an article printed in another column to-day finds them both unsatisfactory from this point of view. He argues that to permit any considerations of nationality to enter into the selection of the League staff is contrary to the very spirit of the League, and he deplores the concessions which the majority report makes to the weaker brethren in advocating the appointment of a large number of Under-Secretaries General in order to appease national ambitions. The minority report goes much farther in this direction. It argues that the two highest officials, the Secretary-General and the Deputy Secretary-General, at present an Englishman and a Frenchman, exercise a great influence on policy, and it advocates a reorganization which would transfer that influence to the whole body of the higher officials, who should be nationals of the different Great Powers. It declares that "an international spirit can only "be assured through the cooperation of men of "different nationalities who represent the "public opinion of their respective countries." Our Correspondent takes exception to that doctrine as fatal to the League if it is allowed to pass unchallenged, and he contrasts it with the passage on the duties of officials, which was signed by the authors of both reports. That passage lays it down that "The officials of the "Secretariat of the League of Nations are "exclusively international officials, and their "duties are not national but international. By "accepting appointment they pledge themselves to discharge their functions and to "regulate their conduct with the interests of "the League alone in view . . . . They may "not seek or receive instructions from any "Government or other authority external to "the Secretariat of the League of Nations." If, he argues, the officials of the League are really international, there is little importance in the question of how the various posts are distributed among the different nationalities.

It is, however, on this very question of the distribution of posts that the greatest emphasis is laid by the Italian memorandum. That memorandum brings forward a great array of figures to show that Great Britain and France are represented by an unduly large proportion of officials, especially in the higher grades; it supports the rotation system suggested in the minority report as enabling a greater number of nationalities to be represented in the service; and it complains that "it is "impossible to see how equitable openings can "be reserved in the future to representatives "of member States if the principles supported "by the majority with regard to the system of "recruiting for and promotion in the service are "applied." But surely the main point to be considered is the efficiency of the service itself. Other things being equal, the more nationalities represented the better, and the more equally the important posts are distributed the more likely is international impartiality to be recognized. But it would be disastrous to make a fetish of nationality, and, as our Correspondent reminds us, it would be contrary to that very spirit of internationalism for which the League stands. There would be little chance of building up an effective international service if, in admitting recruits and making promotions, those responsible had to consider not which of the candidates had the best qualifications, but which belonged to the nationality with most claims to the post. And the admission that nationality should be anything more than a very secondary determining factor in the making of appointments, far from appeasing national discontents, would tend to inflame them.

The British Association at Bristol

Members of the British Association must be grateful for the warmth of the reception and for the excellence of the arrangements made by the Local Committee for the Meeting at Bristol, which ended yesterday. Visitors from many provincial universities saw with an admiring envy the splendour of the new University Buildings, due largely to the munificence of the leaders of a local industry which has not ended in smoke. The great assistance given by the members of the family of WILLS to the transformation of what was recently an unimportant College into a fully-equipped University shows that some commercial magnates understand the point made by DR. BOWER in his Presidential Address as to the value to industry of pure research. It is significant that one of the most admired contributions to the scientific proceedings, which received the congratulations of SIR ERNEST RUTHERFORD and SIR OLIVER LODGE, was made by DR. J. E. LENNARD-JONES, a young Professor of the University of Bristol, not yet, but doubtless soon to be, a Fellow of the Royal Society. The idle might ask to be told the value of DR. LENNARD-JONES's efforts to track the gyrations of electrons when some of these can be described only in a space of six dimensions, and when the electrons themselves are bodies, or ideas, so elusive that no single one can be identified or followed. Or what is to be said of the discovery announced by SIR ERNEST RUTHERFORD himself, that by a new method now in use at the Cavendish Laboratory, the stream of alpha particles emitted by certain excited elements is a complex composed of subsidiary streams moving with different velocities? Or what value are we to assign to the large number of technical papers which occupied most of the time of the Sections, although even their titles conveyed nothing to the uninitiated? Let it be said in passing that one of the features of the Bristol Meeting, impossible to reproduce in a general newspaper, was the scientific value of the detailed papers which were read. As is almost inevitable, there were contributions which, from their subject, or title, or from some extraneous attachment achieved a publicity beyond their intrinsic merits. But these were exceptions. The great part of the proceedings, except the Presidential Addresses, which in most cases were wisely adapted to less specialized listeners or readers, consisted of genuine contributions to knowledge, directed only to experts and with no plain bearing on practical affairs. What of them?

A clue may be found in the animated discussion held by the chemists on the past history, present position, and future prospects of the Dyestuffs Industry. There was what may be called the Woad epoch of dyes which lasted until little more than half a century ago. The colours used in textiles and many other industries were natural products coming from plants or animals or minerals. It is an old story with a modern lesson that the scientific curiosity of PERKINS, an Englishman, led to the building up, from the waste products of the distillation of coal, of artificial dyes more brilliant than Tyrian purple, more lasting than saffron and indigo, and without limit in their shades and tones. The discovery of synthetic dyes, this by-product of pure research, led, although not in this country, to the founding of an industry invaluable to the world not only for its primary output but also from the circumstance that it has required, created, and supported an army of research chemists. The labours of these men enabled Germany not only to secure almost a monopoly of the production of dyestuffs, but also to take the lead in the discovery and marketing of synthetic drugs, and, in the hour of her need, to thwart the endeavours of the Allies to deprive her of munitions of war. This is not the place to read the fiscal lesson as to how far British apathy in the past has been redeemed by the partial protection of a basal industry, or to discuss the necessity, urged by a great majority of the experts in the Chemical Section, of a further extension of the Dyestuffs (Import Regulation) Act, 1920. But the scientific lesson is plain. In the modern world a nation cannot expect to hold its own, unless it encourages in the fullest way fundamental, unoriented research into the arcana of Nature, and unless it is alert to take immediate advantage of every practical outcrop of such research. The activities of the British Association for the Advancement of Science are to be welcomed, therefore, in the first place because they bring specialists together in conspiracy for the progress of knowledge, even if their deliberations be in terms and on subjects beyond the comprehension of laymen; and next because they give an annual opportunity to science to explain the intrinsic interest of the exploration of Nature and the vast practical boons that have come in the past, and may come at any moment. As it appears that more funds are required to stabilize the organization of the Association, all will wish success to the Centenary Fund for which the Council is asking.

A Port on View

To those who like to see the sights of London, and especially sights which they do not know, an unrivalled opportunity will be given in a few days' time. At present the complete programme has not been fixed, but it has been arranged, as we announced yesterday, that from September 20 onwards there shall be a London Docks Week, during which at the cost of half-a-guinea or so a head excursionists, who will be conveyed by steamer, will be shown their way about the vast and intricate system of docks under the control of the Port of London Authority, and, by the courtesy of the principal shipping companies, will be able to inspect some of the vessels in port. The Week is being organized for the benefit of two deserving charities, the Dockland Settlements and the London Hospital, which certainly stand to gain if the public is as responsive to the offer as it should be. It will be the first time that the public in general will have been admitted to the docks, and plenty of facilities will be afforded for buying tickets.

This week of excursions down the river ought to be the means of removing a great reproach. It is singularly difficult for a would-be sightseer even to go down the tideway below London Bridge, so few are the boats, and knowledge of this or that dock is generally confined to what can be observed at the departure or arrival of a vessel. But even were there a frequent service of boats running down to Tilbury and beyond, only a vague, if impressive, idea would be given of the acreage of the docks, of the size of the ships lying in them, of the wealth of the world's commodities stored by them, and of the shore population which earns its livelihood from them. To all too many London ends at the farthest at Tower Bridge—that is to say at the point where the Thames assumes its most romantic and exciting character. Artists, however, have discovered it, and it is a fact that some of the most lasting memories among individuals are of a partial penetration, perhaps many years ago, into the mysteries of a bonded warehouse. It is not, however, entirely the fault of Londoners if as a whole they know so little about the great river which feeds them. There are cities where the shipping comes into the heart of things and the citizens have an ever-present reminder of their connexion with the sea. Such are Liverpool, New York, Hamburg, Sydney, to name only a few offhand; whereas at Westminster the only intimation of the sea is the pushing tide which twice a day fills an embanked and almost shipless river. At London Bridge there is a more decided intimation, but few are they who turn from the City deliberately to explore even as far as St. Katharine's Docks and Shadwell. Lower down Greenwich undeniably offers an inspiring spectacle of river life as vessel after vessel passes within easy reach of the pier. Otherwise the tideway has few familiar or convenient vantage points for the spectator; at the best he feels that he is in the midst of a pervading air which escapes his analysis. The loss is his and every other Londoner's like him; socially it has the undesirable effect of making London two separate cities; and it cuts too many off from much that should be far more prominently in their consciousness than it is. What the Port of London is now about to do is to hold a vast exhibition of itself, and an exhibition, happily, which, if this precedent justifies it, could be frequently repeated. It suggests that the old way of holding an exhibition, by transplanting what is portable, or can be shown in model, to an artificial pavilion, is not the only method. Let industry, whenever topography permits, be its own exhibition, and let the public be invited accordingly.

Red Tape

Present-day ideas about the Civil servant, or other public officer, fluctuate between wide extremes. Some see him as an efficient and far-sighted bureaucrat, quietly but ruthlessly gathering into his own hands all the threads of power. To others, or to the same people at other times, he appears as a presumably well-meaning gentleman floundering helplessly, a modern Laocoon, in strangling coils of red tape. The red-tape tradition is the elder, and on the whole the less harrowing to the feelings of a suffering public. Even the momentous reform of changing the name to pink tape has failed to kill it. We may still hear with horror, and with a prayer that it may be apocryphal, the legend of the man who was hanged (though not, in fairness be it said, in this country) because his reprieve wandered into a room crowded with arrears and had to wait its turn. And there is still fun without tears in the well-spun yarn of the Commissioner who, bidden to send native troops to take part in an expedition, telegraphed back that it could not be done because they had no trousers, the missing requisition for which was eventually found under the anxious consideration of a committee on change of pattern. However heavily one may discount stories such as these, the glee with which they are handed on is significant of popular feeling about the system of which they are alleged to be the fruits. The plain, blunt man hates forms, formulas, and rules of correspondence and procedure, especially if they interfere with his determination to do what he likes, when he likes, and where he likes.

But even an official should not be condemned unheard. The poor dumb creature, if he were encouraged to speak, might have quite a lot to say in his own excuse. It may be that, in private life, he is a man of like passions with ourselves. There he may be an expert in dealing with difficult or tiresome letters by the short shrift of the wastepaper basket or the long rope of a calculated forgetfulness. He may have a private bill drawer stuffed with accounts, accounts rendered, and demand notes of the various degrees of acridity. He may even, for all we know, be a consummate tactician in the rearguard actions which the natural man feels bound to fight with the income-tax pursuer. But he will point out, with truth, that he cannot apply the same simplicity and lightheartedness to the conduct of public business. There he must at all times be ready and able to render an exact account of his stewardship, and to give a full explanation of all that he has done or refrained from doing, not only to his superior officers, but also through them to their master and his, the public. He must, even at some sacrifice of force and speed, put safety first. Hence detailed entries of receipt and dispatch, scientific filing, well-planned storage, full record of conversations, conferences, and the why and wherefore of decisions; in fact, red tape. Willy-nilly he is called upon to set up and work an elaborate machine. Therein lies his little tragedy. The machine wages its secular warfare against the spirit which gave it being. It does its best to mechanize the man. He tends to see the ingenious play of its parts as an end in itself. The humbler his standing the more easily he is caught up into its soulless operation. It would be his salvation to lift himself from time to time clear of the din and turmoil of the revolving wheels and to take a wide view of the process and of the purpose it is meant to serve. That is difficult or impossible for one who is himself little more than a cog in the machine.

PARENTS AND THEIR CHILDREN

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES

Sir,—May a father over 73 years old, having had six children and much appreciating the many references to the subject of "parents and their children," and especially the article in The Times of September 10 on "Marriage and Family Life," remind your readers that it is often only when parents get well on in years that they have definite educational ideas? While young, parents who earnestly love and trust their Creator (not necessarily Christians) by their example imbue their children with right ideas which they themselves obtain in great measure intuitively. Without much deliberate thought on education, parents can and do a great deal by cultivating their own characters and learning from their children. Fortunately the theories we evolve in old age come to us too late.

Yours obediently,
C. F. ANNESLEY VOYSEY.

AMERICAN PUBLIC OPINION

FALSE PICTURES OF INDIA

PROFESSIONAL PROPAGANDISTS

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES

Sir,—Six weeks ago, when I left England, you were printing articles from Mr. Thompson on the anti-British propaganda regarding India which he encountered in the United States of America; and I see that he answered some of his critics in your columns last week. Will you allow me, after a brief but close experience of a similar character, to confirm and emphasize what he described? The mischief is widespread, growing, and unchecked.

Senator Blaine's attack upon us in Congress need not disturb us unduly, for any cause which he espouses is generally regarded as ipso facto discredited. But his tirade was symptomatic of what the American people are being continually asked to believe. Our dominion in India, they are told, is based solely on treachery, fraud, forgery, and unprovoked aggression. Our work in India is plunder and tyranny—nothing else. By discriminative taxation we have ruined every branch of the country's industries, and in land revenue we levy 50 per cent. of the gross produce of her agriculture. The old lies about "the Drain" are revived and embellished. We are sucking the life-blood of a helpless people; and in order to keep them from rising up against us, we maintain a British Army which costs exactly half of the Indian revenues, while the salaries of our Civil Service eat up most of the other half. As for current events, they are distorted out of all recognition, the Press cables from India being dismissed as faked under Government censorship. And never a word is heard of anything we are doing, or have done, for the country or the people.

The methods of calumny are active and ingenious. The writings of eminent Englishmen on India—the present Prime Minister and others, including Mr. Thompson himself—have passages torn from their contexts and served up as evidence of our misconduct out of our own mouths. Figures are manipulated with an air of authenticity, and exiles from India keep pouring in to offer their personal testimony from innumerable lecture-platforms. They frequently purport to bring messages from the National Congress, and they swell the new vocation of "professional Indian," who makes his living out of a compassionate public by his tales of misery and oppression. Nor are there lacking certain Englishmen, like Mr. C. F. Andrews, to lend an apostolic grace to his labours.

There are many Americans who deeply resent all this, and not a few who, by studying the situation for themselves in India, have learned to appreciate our difficulties. But there is also much ignorance about Indian conditions, and a disposition to sympathize with any plausible picture of distress. Memories too, survive, and are skilfully played upon, of America's own struggle for release from our yoke; while the definitely anti-British element in the States makes capital out of India in the same way as it did with the grievances of Ireland. Alongside of these influences is the widespread Gandhi cult; your neighbour at the luncheon-table will draw a photograph of the Mahatma from her bosom and handle it like a saintly relic. The conviction that Britain has no case for refusing immediate self-government to India is rapidly gaining ground; and, apart from the unfairness of the verdict, it is cutting clean across the growth of a better understanding between England and America.

Can nothing be done to check this monstrous campaign of falsehood and slander? The Press on the whole is not unfriendly, but it is supplied with only one side of the case. The vast forum of the lecture-hall is open all the country over, but only the "professional Indian" seems to use it. All that is necessary is to counter lies by knowledge, to broadcast facts and authoritative figures, to give the Press some antidote to the calumnies on which it is fed. Unless this task is undertaken, without loss of time, by men and women who know India at first-hand, any moral support which we might expect from across the Atlantic in settling the Indian question will largely disappear.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,
MESTON.

FOR THE DOMINICAN SUFFERERS

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES

Sir,—According to the latest reports over 5,000 people lost their lives in the appalling hurricane disaster in the Dominican Republic last week. The death-roll is, unfortunately, steadily growing. It is likely to increase enormously within the next few days unless help is sent, and sent quickly, to the injured and suffering who still remain in Santo Domingo.

The Red Cross Society of Dominica has sent an urgent appeal to the British Red Cross Society for assistance. The International Committee and the League of Red Cross Societies have done the same. We are responding to the utmost limits of our power, but the amount we can allocate from our funds, having regard to the many other claims made upon our slender resources, is so small in comparison with the needs of the call that we are forced once more to throw ourselves upon the generosity of your readers, and to ask them to supplement it. In the past they have never failed to respond, and respond quickly, in a good cause. I earnestly hope they will respond again.

The American Red Cross is already actively in the field. On behalf of the British Red Cross Society I am to-day cabling £500 to supplement its work. It is very little, but it is all that we can spare. Will your readers, of their generosity, augment it? The need is real; the case is urgent. The British Government has recognized this in the cable of sympathy it sent in the name of the British people to the Government of the Dominican Republic. Humanity and national prestige alike demand that we give fitting expression to that sympathy. May I hope for £5,000 within the next few days?

All donations, big and small alike, will be acknowledged in The Times. They should be sent to our honorary treasurer at the address below.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,
ARTHUR STANLEY, Chairman,
British Red Cross Society.

A MIDDLESEX MONUMENT

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES

Sir,—In your issue of August 20 a paragraph from your correspondent at Pinner appeared, calling attention to the condition of the Obelisk at Stanmore.

The Hospital is to-day for the first time in a position to deal with this Obelisk, and the members of the Hospital Committee have arranged for its immediate restoration. A suitable plaque is to be attached to the Obelisk, explaining its origin, and giving a copy of the original Latin inscription which appeared upon it. The public may be satisfied that now that the Obelisk is in the possession of the Hospital every care will be taken to preserve it and to keep it in a proper state of repair, and its immediate surroundings will be made to accord more suitably with the monument.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

IV.—WEEK-END SHOOTING

TIGERS AND A CROCODILE

The last of the articles based on the diary written by the late Edwin S. Montagu when he was in India in 1917-18 gives an account of some of the many shooting trips in which he found his greatest relaxation during his visit.

The arduous labour of drafting a Reform scheme kept Edwin Montagu almost incessantly at work while he was in India, but he managed to do a good deal of shooting. He enjoyed shooting, and the descriptions of his week-end trips in his diary are written with great zest.

At the beginning of January, 1918, Montagu visited the Maharajah Scindia of Gwalior. When he and his party arrived they drove through the Maharajah's "glorious gardens to his enormous palace, an Indian-Italian structure built by his father and furnished amazingly." Next morning the party started for the "scene of slaughter" at 10.45. The day's adventures are described as follows :—

Twenty miles' drive through typical Gwalior country along dusty roads, with sparse bushes in the sandy and rocky desert. . . . We got to our meeting place, where there were horses and three elephants with howdahs to ride, a dandy in which anybody could be carried who wished it, a whole group of coolies, and a regiment of 400 soldiers to beat. I got on to an elephant and was hurtled over the rocks for about one and a half mile—a very uncomfortable elephant to sit on. Then we got down and walked on tiptoe into the ravine. . . .

A HULLABALOO

We got into the tower [at the bottom of the ravine] very quietly and stood while the beat came up to us from the shorter side of the ravine. It came quietly, making no noise, and there was no tiger. Nothing appeared, save one peacock and some squirrels. Then we turned round and faced the other way. This time a longer drive took place, accompanied by what the Indians call —a name which we have borrowed—a hullabaloo. Tomtoms beat; there were great shouts and dreadful noises, so that the tiger should start a long way off and come quietly.

Nothing had apparently been expected from the first drive; from the second drive great things were hoped for, because a buffalo had been killed on the top and dragged by the tiger down to the valley. It was not long after the beat started before, right in the middle of the ravine, and by some water, I saw the tiger coming out, walking very slowly, about 60 yards away from me—walking towards me, showing his left side at an angle of 45 degrees. I aimed as carefully as my excitement would let me, and had the satisfaction of seeing the tiger sit down on his hind legs, put his head right up, and then roll right over. Before I could get in another shot, however, he was off, crawling lop-sidedly, and leaving behind much blood.

The beat was then stopped; the elephants were obtained, but nobody was allowed to go on them because they were notoriously unsteady, and there were reported to be bees in the jungle. They soon sighted the tiger going back towards the beaters. These were then removed, and Gwalior went round to join the beaters. What happened afterwards took almost till dark, but I gather that the tiger was seen crossing a ride towards us, turned by a shot by one of Gwalior's staff, which missed it. He is not popular for this. He then charged an elephant which was sent for in the middle of the beat. The elephant bolted, and has not been seen since, but a man on the elephant, who was much hurt in the flight, succeeded in getting two shots at it, one of which hit it. It then, now severely wounded, charged a man, and I fear hurt him, but not badly, and was finally dispatched lying in some water. It is a fine male tiger, 9ft. 5in. long, with a short tail. . . . It is a very artificial form of sport, but it gave me sufficient thrill to last me a lifetime.

It turned out afterwards that "apparently the shot which I fired had hit him exactly in the right place and would certainly have killed him eventually, but the bullet, being split, broke up into small pieces, and had not penetrated the heart."

Elsewhere in the diary there is this passage :—

Nothing thrills me so much as these shoots. . . . but what I hate about them, which destroys the happiness, is that I am expected to shoot the tiger. I have now shot five, and I never want to shoot another.

In one of the entries describing a week-end spent with the Maharajah of Patiala in January, 1918, Montagu writes :—

Sunday, January 20.—We got out of bed early and drove to Patiala's palace, which is situated in a nice garden. . . . After breakfast we started off, motored a few miles and then started on a great shoot —42 elephants, a regiment of infantry, lancers, &c., &c., &c. We rode across the grassy jungle in a line on howdahs, with rifles and shot-guns, and shot partridges, black and grey, quail, black buck, and pig, and Thesiger, the Viceroy's brother, shot a wild cat. I saw another one, but could not get a shot at it. Shooting from an elephant is frightfully difficult. Most people find it easiest to stand up, with their knees bent, not touching the sides of the howdah. I find that the danger is of falling out if you do that. I tried a compromise, and broke my howdah. The pig run very fast through the long grass, and only give one rare chances. They would never be shot if pig-sticking was possible, but the grass is too thick. Yesterday and to-day we shot a few Norfolk plover. I think my net bag for the day was about ten partridges, five hares, two black buck, and four pigs. All would have been better if the elephants had kept in line. . . . The confusion was awful, and why nobody was shot I cannot for the life of me understand. Rifles were cracking all round the place, and lethal bullets were being pumped into pigs and black buck. The total bag was about 50 pigs, 12 black buck, 100 hares. We arrived back at Patiala thoroughly tired from the seasick-like motion of the elephants, and after dinner are going back to Delhi to meet the wild Lieutenant-Governors.

A CROCODILE SHOOT

One Saturday night the party left Delhi and went 50 miles by motor-car to a Dak bungalow at Garhmuktesar, in the United Provinces. Next morning—"a beautiful cold morning, sun shining brightly"—after a motor drive of eight miles there was "two miles on a very fat elephant" and then the party reached the bank of the Ganges. The entry for this day goes on :—

By this time the wind was high and strong, and it was obvious we were not going to have a successful morning. Crocodiles come out of the water in the heat, and the sand of the banks was blowing in such clouds that sometimes you could not see the banks at all. Why should a crocodile lie on them? However we got into [Sir C. R.] Cleveland's boat, a little, flat-bottomed punt of great stability, with an oil engine fixed to the stern to help us when we had to go across the current, and behind us came a large barge to carry the crocodiles. Long distances, past sandbanks, which in better weather would have been perfect places for crocodiles, yielded nothing. Finally, on a small strip of sand in the water, near a high bank, we saw a very large crocodile.

We determined to land and stalk from the bank. At that moment a boy came running along shouting at the top of his voice: "There's a big mugger, there's a big mugger," and, of course, the mugger disappeared into the water. They are strangely quick in their movements and extraordinarily quick of hearing. . . .

We were about to give it up when suddenly we saw two heads come out of the water at the same place. We sat down and ate our breakfast, which was to do as lunch . . . and by that time the large mugger was back again on the strip of sand.

Then I did a very cautious stalk and got to the top of the cliff, some 90 yards from the mugger. Drawing a very careful bead, I fired. The bullet hit him a tremendous whack; he lay lashing with his tail for about four seconds, and then disappeared into the water. The betting is a thousand to one against you in this game.

At a tiger shoot during a visit to the Maharajah of Alwar Montagu wounded a tiger from a tower in which he sat with the Maharajah, while the rest of the party were on elephants. In the diary he describes the killing of the tiger as follows:—

. . . Every now and then one could hear the tiger roaring and charging the elephants, which it did five times. Finally, they could not get it to move, so we left our tower, got on to howdah elephants, and joined the line. . . .

Now began the most exciting thing I have ever seen. A stone was pointed out to us, behind which the tiger was said to be. It was not more than 20 yards from the elephants. Our elephants crashed forward desperately—Alwar's, mine, Donoughmore's, and Raoji Saheb's. Every moment I expected to see the tiger on my elephant's head. But he was not there! Then suddenly Alwar told me that he could see it ten yards in front of him; my elephant was told to join his, and just as I joined him there was a terrific roar, and I saw the heaving of the grass and bushes in front, but I could see no tiger. Then he tried to get through the bushes at the elephant. Twice he paused, and then, turning, sprang back away from us. We could not see him. Donoughmore and Raoji Saheb fired, and then all was still. We then saw the tiger going away. We crashed on, over rocks, up hill, down hill, over another 150 yards, when suddenly I saw the tiger under a tree, close up against it, about 20 yards in front of my elephant. He was passing us. He saw me as I saw him; he opened his mouth with another growl, and his tail was moving. Another spring was imminent, but I had time by then to bang in two barrels of my rifle, and the breathless five minutes was over, and the tiger lay dead. It was a tigress, 8ft. 3in. long.

TEAM SPIRIT IN THE EMPIRE

JAM SAHIB OF NAWANAGAR ON CRICKET

The Jam Sahib of Nawanagar, who responded to the toast of "Cricket" at the dinner given by Sir Kynaston Studd to the Australian Cricket Team at Merchant Taylors' Hall, spoke of the influence of cricket and of the team spirit on Imperial relationships. In the course of his speech he said:—

The British Empire stands for team work. It stands for cooperation; for the co-ordination of separate individual effort to a common purpose. And that common purpose is the realization, on the part of each constituent of the Empire, of its greatest and its best stature, both moral, mental, and physical. Just as the great game which we are now honouring is pre-eminently a cooperative enterprise, in which the individual effort is subordinated to the fortunes of the team, so the British Empire stands for something greater than the fortunes of its individual entities. The countries which together compose the British Empire constitute the greatest cricket team which the world has ever seen. Just as the members of a cricket team differ from each other in stature, in personal characteristics, in ability of one kind or the other, so the various components of the British Empire differ widely among themselves. But, in the one case and in the other, it is not with a series of individual units which we are concerned, but with a great team working for common good by bringing out the best from each component member. . . .

These post-War years are admittedly difficult. There are adjustments to be made in our Imperial team. Some of our players seem dissatisfied with their place in the team; there are some whispers, although of the most irresponsible kind, of resignation. It is occasions such as this, far more than the stress of a crisis, which test both the skill in the captain and the loyalty of the team. Every cricketer knows how easy it is on certain occasions to allow himself to become discontented, if he starts brooding over his own individual case. . . . Yet it is precisely this kind of temptation which cricket teaches us to avoid at all costs. How often have I wished that all the political leaders in all the countries of the Empire were cricketers! For if they had undergone the training and the discipline of the great game, I am sure they would find it easier than they appear to do at present to think first and last of the team. I am not a politician myself . . . but I cannot help thinking that all of us in this great British Empire need more of the spirit which cricket inculcates; we need more team work, more patience, and more unselfishness; we need more of the true spirit of cricket.

THE PRINCES OF INDIA

For cricket is more than a game; it is really a manner of living. It is certainly among the most powerful of the links which keep our Empire together. So long as we can maintain in that Empire the spirit of sportsmanship which cricket inculcates, so long shall we be ready, as a team, to meet and defeat any adversity which the future may hold for us. If the bowling is difficult, let us present a straight bat with courage and with determination. In the crisis of the Great War Britain captained the Imperial team to a great victory; I am perfectly certain that in the more difficult times of peace that same captaincy will be characterized by wisdom, patience, and generous good will.

The Princes of India, to whose order I have the honour to belong, have been very old members of Great Britain's team; and both on easy and on difficult wickets they have tried their best to play with a straight bat for the Empire. In times of peace, as in times of war, you will always find us ready. We are united with you and to you in the bond of devoted loyalty to the King-Emperor. Throughout the period of adjustment of relations between Great Britain and India, upon which we are now entering, I am certain that the Indian Princes will do their best to play a part worthy of their best traditions. Like good cricketers, they endeavour to keep up their wickets even under the most difficult circumstances. You can rely upon us in the future, as you have relied upon us in the past, to play the game, and to give every support in our power to the harmony and to the success of the Imperial team. (Cheers.)

COAL OUTPUT

Districts	Output	Wage-earners
	Tons
Northumberland ..	234,400	43,400
Durham	656,600	123,800
Yorkshire	794,200	165,100
Lancashire, Cheshire, and North Wales ..	333,400	86,600
Derby, Nottingham, and Leicester ..	621,600	115,500
Stafford, Worcester, Salop and Warwick	353,400	72,100
South Wales and Monmouthshire ..	898,500	166,200
Other English Districts*	114,100	24,400
Scotland	597,300	90,500

* Including Cumberland, Westmorland, Gloucester, Somerset, and Kent.

The output for the week ended August 23 was 4,717,000 tons, and the number of wage-earners 889,800.

SOUTH AFRICAN LUNCHEON CLUB

A dinner will be given by the South African Luncheon Club to General Hertzog and his Ministers, Messrs. Havenga and Fourie, on Monday, November 3, at the Savoy Hotel.

Herman Clarke, 61, a retired Army officer and a British subject, of Le Nid, The Avenue, Sherborne, Dorset, was remanded at Bow-street Police Court yesterday on a provisional extradition warrant accusing him of larceny in the United States.

THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION

HONOUR FOR THE PRESIDENT

ANTHROPOLOGY IN NEW GUINEA

BRISTOL, Sept. 10

The Bristol meeting of the British Association was concluded to-day, when the Sections of Geology, Geography, Economics, Engineering, Anthropology, and Forestry held final sessions.

There was a special Congregation of the University of Bristol this morning, at which the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred on Professor F. O. Bower, the president of the association. The Vice-Chancellor of the University (Principal T. Loveday) presided.

Professor Leonard Jones, Professor of Theoretical Physics at the University, in presenting Professor Bower for his degree, recalled that the presidency of the British Association had been held by the leaders of scientific thought in this country, men who had endowed it with a tradition of distinction and honour. In Professor Bower they welcomed a botanist who was not only facile princeps in his own special field, but an acknowledged leader of botanical thought in general. To his eminence as investigator he added an unusual brilliance of exposition, and his forceful and lucid style had made his most severe memoirs a pleasure to read. His text-book "The Botany of the Living Plant" was a model of its kind, while his belief that scientists should make their work available for the educated public had found expression in two popular works on "Plant Life on Land" and "Plants and Man."

DR. BOWER'S REPLY

In acknowledging the honour, Professor Bower said the distinction was not merely personal to himself, but was a recognition on the part of the University of the great scientific organization which had met at Bristol during the past week. He particularly wished to acknowledge on behalf of the association the splendid buildings which had been placed at their disposal by the University and the Merchant Venturers, the hospitality which had been extended to members by the city authorities, and the willingness and efficiency of the staff, whose organizing ability had contributed so much to the success of the meeting. He recalled no meeting of the association where the arrangements had gone through so smoothly as on this occasion. Referring to the growth of the University, he said he thought they could venture to say that its future was assured. He also predicted for it the very highest honours and efficiency.

NATIVES OF NEW GUINEA

POLICY OF AUSTRALIAN GOVERNMENT

Mr. E. W. P. Chinnery, in the Section of Anthropology, gave a paper on the mandated territory in New Guinea, formerly owned by Germany, which is now being administered by Australia.

The native population of the territory, he said, was believed to exceed 500,000. Over 117,000 of these people had been visited by Government officials, and new tribes were coming under control every year. The natives were known as Papuasians and were divided into two main linguistic groups—those who spoke Austronesian languages and showed Microneasian, Polynesian, and Melanesian influences, and those who spoke languages known as Papuan.

A MAZE OF PROBLEMS

They presented great differences in type and culture and offered a maze of problems to the anthropologist. In order the better to help them along the road to progress the Government of the territory had established a system of training in anthropology for the cadets of its district administration staff. These young men, chosen in the first place for educational and general capabilities, spent two years on the out stations under the supervision of an experienced district officer, and then, having proved themselves likely to be successful officials, were attached for a year to the School of Anthropology at Sydney University, where they received training in anthropology, the elements of tropical hygiene, surveying, and other subjects, and then returned to the territory to take up positions as patrol officers where they would be in contact with the natives, but still for some years under supervision until they merited promotion to the rank of assistant district officer.

The New Guinea administration was making every effort to develop its native races without unnecessary damage to the very elaborate institutions which formed part of native life, thus fulfilling the trust imposed on it by the League of Nations "to advance the moral and material welfare of the native population."

EXCAVATIONS AT VINCA

NEOLITHIC CULTURE ON A HIGH LEVEL

Dr. M. Vassits read a paper in the Section of Anthropology on excavations on the Neolithic site at Vinca in 1930.

He said that the finds, which included implements and weapons, a large number of figurines, pottery, religious objects, and articles of adornment, showed that from the earliest period Vinca possessed a form of civilized life superior to any as yet known in the area between it and the far Aegean.

That life, superior, rich, and varied, quite clearly derived from the south-east districts with which Vinca indubitably was in direct communication. The problem difficult of solution was that of whether the connexion was cultural or was also racial. A third possibility would be the early invasion of Vinca by colonists or by a small number of individuals from the south-east who brought with them useful arts, such as that of mining cinnabar.

THE PORT OF LONDON

DEVELOPMENT IN MODERN TIMES

In a paper read before the Geography Section Professor Ll. Rodwell Jones discussed the physical factors concerned in the characteristic function of the Port of London from 1800 to the present day.

He said that a large tonnage entered London in the early part of the last century, all shipping being moored in tiers above Limehouse, except East Indiamen, some West Indiamen, and his Majesty's ships. This was the case with the colliers, timber vessels, coastwise and near Continental vessels, which formed the bulk of the tonnage. Until the nineties, just a few years before the Commission which led to the Port of London Authority, there was little general and continuous channel-making in the Thames below Blackwall, though certain definite and critical obstructions had been removed.

In 1790-1800 there were frequent complaints because of the crowding of the pools, delay and plunderage. Shipping had enormously increased during the late eighteenth century, chiefly as a result of the increase in sea-borne coal and coastwise foodstuffs to London and increases in Baltic lumber and West Indian sugar imports. The crowding was caused by the concentration of shipping in tiers in the pools, due to the fact that all dutiable articles had to be landed at the legal quays or at sufferance wharves which occupied a very small river frontage, within easy cartage distance of the City.

After the middle of the century relief came in two ways. Steamers made more journeys in the year than sailing ships and their owners could not afford to have them idle in the river. Further, as they became independent of the wind there was not the same tendency for vessels to crowd into port at a change from unfavourable to favourable wind conditions.

The speaker went on to describe the developments which followed upon the steam epoch, culminating in large-scale improvements, and said that in the last 20 years of the energetic régime of the Port of London Authority the physical condition of the Port of London had been made to accord with the still growing traffic and the still increasing size of vessels. Wider entrance locks had been made to some of the older docks, the magnificent George V. dock had been built. A new entrance lock, dry dock and river landing stage at Tilbury enabled the port to meet all possible demands of tonnage and draught.

TRADE DEPRESSION

PARADOX OF STANDARD OF LIVING

There was a discussion in the Economics Section on the influence of post-War trade depression on the standard of living.

Mr. W. Hamilton Whyte, Lecturer in Economics at the University of Bristol, said it would appear that for those in continuous employment the standard of living of the wage-earning group had risen. In addition to this rise there had been an increase in the scale of socialized income which had chiefly benefited this group during the period of depression. Changes in prevailing standards were reflected in various forms of consumption, but statistical data for these were not available. The modern expansion of such industries, however, as the cinema, wireless, and motor transport, and the extension among all classes of the use of the Press and holiday travel, could be taken as a few indications, though it was important to bear in mind that such changes might be a diversion rather than an increase of expenditure.

There had been a substantial reduction in the national drink bill which had doubtless released funds. His own conclusion in the light of the evidence was that in spite of prolonged depression in trade, the scale of expenditure by the wage-earning classes generally had not diminished, while in the case of certain occupied groups it had increased. At the same time there was little to show that other sections of the community had reduced their expenditure, so that in the absence of any substantial increase in the national income the question arose whether this rise in standard might not partly be at the expense of savings. On the assumption of the Colwyn Committee we were still 15 per cent. below the pre-War rate of savings, and the recent slump in world markets was likely to increase the demand for savings in the future.

REMEDIES

If the nation was suffering from a shortage of savings, this could be remedied, he submitted, only by increasing production or reducing expenditure. Recent movements towards rationalization indicated that some effort was being made in the former direction, but there was no evidence of any attempt in the latter, although it was in this direction that Government action was more possible. Savings might be increased by reducing Government expenditure and remitting taxation. All Governments, however, preferred to preach rather than practise this policy.

The subject of his inquiry had been suggested by the continuance of apparent prosperity alongside unprecedented trade depression, and a close examination indicated that the last 10 years of abnormal unemployment had not brought a corresponding fall in the general standard of living. The nation up to very recent times seemed to have been able to preserve its standard and support in addition an unemployed population. But this did not minimize the quantity of the unemployment problem. In so far as it was due to increasing consumption at the expense of savings it meant a progressive decline in the competitive power of the nation. If it indicated failure to reorganize our industry so as to meet changes in demand, it implied a decline in enterprise, while the maintenance over a long period of a large section of able-bodied workers in idleness must lead to deterioration.

LOWER WAGES

The nation by insisting upon a relatively high standard for its occupied population had compelled an abnormally large section to go without employment. In face of such a situation she must either increase her income or reduce her standard in order to find employment for all. An increase in income was possible by a reduction in Government expenditure, but this was not likely since the chief objects of such expenditure were social services and national security. The alternative was to divert consumption to production by a revision of taxes, and so increase the volume of savings. But while such a policy might mitigate the problem, any substantial reduction in unemployment must involve a reduction in costs, and this raised the delicate question of wage cuts. A reduction in wages might be possible if accompanied by a fall in the cost of living through a general reduction in retail prices along with the adoption of a definite wage policy by which the workers would be guaranteed their due share of prosperity following upon a revival in trade.

Such a policy implied greater enterprise on the part of the employers and greater elasticity on the part of the producing organization, and this was only possible by hearty cooperation between all the different interests concerned. Along such lines there was hope of recovery, but such a policy could only succeed in the hands of leaders who commanded the confidence of the workers and the public.

CENSUS OF DISTRIBUTION

Mr. R. J. Mackay (London) said that the Lancashire and Yorkshire textile trades were being carried on the backs of the more up-to-date and progressive industries elsewhere. He asked whether a census of distribution would enable the rationalization of distribution to be tackled in this country, and suggested that the census of production should be speeded up so that it might be of real use instead of a historical document.

Mr. W. H. Smith (Bristol), contended that the expenses of the retail industry had increased. A higher standard of service was now expected by the consuming public. The extent to which the credit system had come into our national economy without being directly noticed had also to be considered.

Mr. A. Scholfield (Southampton) said that the country had a large class of 2,000,000 which was practically non-purchasing, non-producing, and non-saving. These people's savings in the past went to provide for the future, for old age or family illness, or were used in such investments as house property. Social services during the next 10 or 15 years, he thought, would provide a very serious and cumulative problem.

PRESERVATION OF TIMBER

Mr. J. Bryan, in the Department of Forestry, gave a paper on the antiseptic treatment of some home-grown conifers. Antiseptic treatment of timber, he said, economized available supplies and enabled non-durable timber to be used, releasing the more durable species for purposes for which they were best adapted. The difference in absorption of antiseptics by different species and by different specimens of the same species was considerable. The economy of antiseptic treatment was most emphasized in the case of cheap non-durable species which absorbed creosote readily.

OPPOSITION TO BRIGHTON BILL

BRIGHTON, Sept. 10

The Consolidation Bill which the Brighton Corporation are seeking to promote in Parliament in November is again resulting in widespread criticism from ratepayers. The corporation attempted to introduce the Bill last year, but it was rejected after a number of stormy meetings. The idea of the Bill is to consolidate a large number of existing Acts and to acquire for the corporation certain new powers.

Many clauses which last year met with opposition have now been omitted altogether, and because many ratepayers previously complained that they had not been given a chance to study the Bill volumes comprising 626 sections and weighing 3lb. have been circulated to public bodies and libraries throughout the town. As a last effort to get ratepayers to see the Bill from their point of view the corporation have offered to run evening classes at which members of the town council will explain various clauses in the measure. Still ratepayers are not satisfied, and to-day the Local Property Owners' Association has issued a notice which states that the Bill is full of Socialistic measures detrimental to property owners in general, and that if certain revisions are not made they will oppose the Bill in Parliament.

PROPOSED TRAFFIC MERGER

Important progress has been made during the last few days in connexion with the big traffic merger scheme at Brighton. Hove General Purposes Committee has approved the proposals and it is expected that they will be approved by Hove Town Council to-day. The scheme provides for the amalgamation of the local omnibus services of Messrs. Tillings, Limited, and the Brighton Corporation tramways. A new company will be formed and directed by representatives from Brighton and Hove Corporations and Messrs. Tillings. Brighton will surrender its trams for the new scheme and Messrs. Tillings their omnibuses, while Hove will contribute £100,000.

CLOSING OF DALMUIR SHIPYARD

EFFECT ON EMPLOYMENT AT CLYDEBANK

GLASGOW, Sept. 10

Clydebank is hard hit by the decision to close down the Dalmuir shipyard of Messrs. W. Beardmore and Sons, Limited. The district has suffered considerably from unemployment due to the depression in shipbuilding, but the effect of the closing of the yard will not be excessively disturbing, as there are not many more than 500 men now engaged in the yard. There is consolation also in the knowledge that as the Beardmore yard closes there will be an increasing demand for labour in the neighbouring yard of Messrs. John Brown and Co., where work will be starting on the construction of the large new Cunard vessel.

In normal times before the War the first-named yard was chiefly engaged on warship building. The average number of men on the shipyard books was between 2,000 and 3,000, during the War the total ran up to 6,000, while at the height of the post-War "boom" the numbers were maintained at between 3,000 and 4,000. In recent years, as is well known, the numbers have dwindled, until this year they have fluctuated between 500 and 1,000. Thus, it is probable that on the closing day only a few hundreds or so will be thrown idle or will have found employment elsewhere.

Few persons were prepared to make any comment on the closing of the yard, but Mr. W. F. Robertson, deputy-chairman of the Clyde Trust, said:—"It is most unfortunate for the Clyde that it is losing such an important, well-equipped, and old established yard."

The Lord Provost, Mr. T. Kelly, said:—"It is particularly regrettable that Beardmore's should have to close down just when we were anticipating, with characteristic optimism, the turning of the tide of industrial depression. It is a most illuminating commentary on the state of the shipbuilding industry that such a well-equipped yard is compelled to go to the wall."

DEPRESSED SHIPBUILDING

DIRECTOR'S SPEECH AT A LAUNCH

Speaking after the launch of the Somersby at Messrs. Wm. Gray and Co.'s yard at West Hartlepool yesterday, Mr. F. C. Pyman (managing director) said it was most disappointing to think that these new vessels—far more economical than their predecessors—could not be profitably employed. British shipowning was at a very low ebb. Not only were the running costs of British ships higher than those of their competitors, but the reserves and borrowing powers of British owners had been dissipated by high taxation and years of depression. There was only one encouraging feature in the outlook, and that was that people were now in the mood to be told the worst and to face the facts.

Ramage and Ferguson, Limited, launched at Leith on Tuesday a twin-screw motor-yacht named Naz-Perwer, which they have designed and built to the order of Prince Youssouf Kamal, Cairo. The yacht is of handsome appearance, with a graceful cutwater and elliptical stern, and has been designed for making long voyages, the storage of oil fuel being of sufficient capacity to give a large radius of action.

PRISON AND THE BIRCH

RECORDER ON VIOLENCE AND LAWLESSNESS

Sentence of 16 months' imprisonment in the second division and 20 strokes with the birch was passed by the Recorder (Sir Ernest Wild, K.C.), at the Central Criminal Court yesterday, on Stanley Louis Eugene Stenson, 21, motor driver, who pleaded "Guilty" to robbery while armed with a loaded revolver.

Mr. G. D. Roberts and Mr. L. A. Byrne prosecuted; Mr. E. Davies defended.

Mr. Roberts said that just after midnight on August 11 Stenson drove up to a garage in Camberley and asked for petrol. He was served by Mr. O'Dell and asked for a receipt. He followed Mr. O'Dell into the office and there covered him with a revolver and stole £5 17s. from the desk. The next night he was given a lift by Mr. Champion, a Hounslow builder, on the Great West Road. He again produced the revolver, ordered Mr. Champion out of the car, and drove off with it. About three hours later he drove to the garage of Mr. Stephen West, near Basingstoke, asked for petrol, and ordered Mr. West to "put up his hands." Mr. West struggled with him, took the revolver away, and telephoned for the police. Stenson then ran off, jumped into the car and drove away. He was arrested later at Southampton, when a black mask and 50 rounds of ammunition were found on him. At the time of his offences the prisoner was in receipt of unemployment insurance.

Mr. Davies, addressing the Recorder, on the prisoner's behalf, said Stenson was more flamboyant than dangerous. He was inclined to read too much "blood-and-thunder" literature, and had struck rather a melodramatic attitude. He waited for Mr. West to telephone to the police so as to make a "get-away" in the best cinema manner.

The Recorder, in passing sentence on the prisoner as above stated, said that the prisoner had been represented as desiring to pose as a cinema hero, but he could not accept that defence. Nowadays there was a great deal too much violence and lawlessness. He awarded £5 to Mr. West for the courage he had displayed.

IMPORTED BUTTER

APPLICATION FOR MARKING ORDER

It is announced that an application for an Order in Council under the Merchandise Marks Act, to require the marking of imported butter (including blends of butter consisting of or containing imported butter), with an indication of origin, has been referred for inquiry to the Standing Committee set up under the Act by the Minister of Agriculture, the Home Secretary, and the Secretary of State for Scotland, acting jointly.

Attention is called to the fact that, under the provisions of the Act, while the Committee in every case referred to them must consider whether the goods shall bear the indication of origin at the time of sale or exposure for sale, they may also, at their discretion, consider and report on the question whether such goods should bear an indication of origin at the time of importation.

The date of the inquiry will be announced later. Any communication with regard to the matter should be addressed as early as possible to Mr. H. J. Johns, secretary of the Standing Committee, 10, Whitehall-place, S.W.1.

FARM WORKERS' WAGES

At a largely attended meeting of the Bury St. Edmunds branch of the National Farmers' Union yesterday a proposal advising the immediate reduction of wages to the value of a coomb (half a quarter) of wheat per man per week found no seconder, but a resolution was passed requesting headquarters to call a conference of representatives of arable agriculture and, as a preliminary step, to call an emergency meeting of the Wages Boards in arable counties with a view to insisting that it is impracticable to pay the present rates of wages. Northamptonshire Agricultural Wages Committee yesterday rejected a proposal to reduce farm wages by 3s. a week.

FATAL FLYING ACCIDENT

Pilot Officer Peter Strickland Ball, R.A.F., aged 19, son of Commander W. H. S. Ball, of Weymouth, was burned to death when the Avro aeroplane which he was flying alone crashed at Potter Hanworth, between Lincoln and Sleaford, late on Tuesday afternoon. The airman had been at Digby R.A.F. camp two months. A farm worker who witnessed the accident said he saw the aeroplane flying very low, and it seemed to strike the top of a tree. One wing of the machine dropped, and it flew lower and lower until it dropped into a hedge and burst into flames.

COMPANIES WINDING-UP ORDERS

Mr. Justice Bennett, sitting in the Vacation Court yesterday, made compulsory winding-up orders in the following cases:—Sphinx Electric, Limited and John Perks and Sons (1920), Limited.

OBITUARY

HERR DIEDERICHS

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT)

BERLIN, Sept. 10

He came of Lower German stock; his earlier forefathers were peasants and village craftsmen, the later ones village school teachers, farmers, and estate administrators. He attended the cathedral school at Naumburg, served his year with a Saxon grenadier regiment, and passed a travelling apprenticeship in the book trade in many German towns. In 1896 he founded his publishing house in Florence—the Sign of the Lion on his publications dated from this period—and a year later transferred the business to Leipzig, and in 1904 to Jena, where it still remains. He was one of the type of publisher who regards his trade as something more than a business, and many fine editions, well printed and well bound, of works on modern art or of the German romantics came from the House of Diederichs.

CANON BROWNING

The death has occurred in Canada of Canon Charles William Browning, formerly a missionary in Melanesia. Born on April 24, 1855, the son of the Rev. W. T. Browning, of Thorpe Mandeville, his mother being a daughter of the Rev. G. R. Green, fellow of Eton College, he went to Eton as a colleger in 1866, and was in the Newcastle "select" in 1873 and 1874. He went up to Corpus Christi College, Oxford, with a scholarship, but his health broke down, and he was not ordained till 1884. After curacies at Reading and Willenhall, he was appointed in 1887 to the family living of Lichborough, Northants, and married Miss Maud Helena Firmstone. He resigned in 1892 and, joining the staff of the Melanesian Mission, went out with his wife to work in the islands. For seven years he worked in charge of the district of Gela, in the Solomon Islands, where his younger son is a missionary at Siota. But in 1899 he was invalided home, and was presented in 1901 to the Eton College living of Bromham, Beds. Mrs. Browning died in 1908. In 1914 he was made hon. canon of St. Albans and chaplain to the Bishop. He was also commissary of the Bishop of Melanesia, and from 1905 to 1927 editor of the Southern Cross Log. In 1928 Canon Browning went out to Alberta to live with his elder son, and there constantly helped his brother clergy. His last illness was caused by a long journey by lorry on this duty. A tribute to him in the Southern Cross Log says:—

"The impression left upon one by him was that of transparent goodness. His humility was striking in its perfect unconsciousness. A man of wide culture and great mental gifts, he never paraded them. His courage in facing disappointment and sorrow was remarkable. What the loss of his wife was to him only those who knew him and her well could tell. Indeed, he had more troubles in his life than most men, but he always seemed to rise above them. They only served to call out his radiant faith."

PROFESSOR HOWARD MURRAY

The death is announced in a Reuter telegram from Halifax (Nova Scotia) of Dr. Howard Murray, Professor of Classics in Dalhousie University, and former Chairman of the Advisory Board of Education for Nova Scotia, at the age of 71.

The eldest son of George Murray, M.D., he was educated at Dalhousie, and was successively principal of Stellarton High School, Guysborough Academy, and New Glasgow High School, where he had been a pupil. In 1881 he gained a Gilchrist scholarship, and continued his studies at University College, London, and Edinburgh University. On his return he became tutor and afterwards lecturer in classics at Dalhousie, and classical master and later principal of Halifax Academy, and was made Professor of Classics at Dalhousie in 1894. He had been Dean of the University since 1901, and was hon. LL.D. of Toronto University. Professor Murray was a member of the Royal Conservation Commission of Canada from 1909 to 1921. He published a treatise on the use, present position, and future prospects of the classics.

THE HON. ABDUL RAHMAN

The Hon. Abdul Rahman bin Andak, Dato Sri Amar d'Raja, of the Sultanate of Johore, C.M.G., died yesterday at Hampstead, at the age of 71.

The son of the late Dato Andak, he was born in 1859, and was educated in England. He joined the service of the Johore Government in 1879, and became State Secretary and Vice-President of the Council of State, retiring in 1907. He was made hon. C.M.G. in 1891, and he was also a Knight of the Order of the Crown of Johore and of the Order of Franz Joseph, and a member of the Johore Family Order, and had received the Turkish Orders of the Osmanieh and the Medjidieh. He married, first, in 1882, Aisha (who died in 1885), daughter of Abu Talib B. Nong Yahya; and, secondly, in 1890, Auguste, daughter of S. Reis, of Frankfort-on-Main, and widow of M. Behr. He was a member of the Thatched House Club.

The funeral will be at Brookwood to-morrow, the train leaving the Necropolis Station at 11.40.

LIEUTENANT-COLONEL R. H. GREENSTREET

Lieutenant-Colonel Reginald Hawkins Greenstreet, C.I.E., O.B.E., died at Paramé on Monday at the age of 72. The son of Mr. H. J. Greenstreet, he was born on July 20, 1858. Joining the Punjab Police in 1883, he was transferred to Burma as district superintendent of police in 1887, and received the Burma medal with two clasps. From 1891 to 1897 he was Deputy Commissioner, Political Officer, and Commandant of Military Police in the Arrakan Hill tracts. He returned to police duty in 1898, was made C.I.E. in 1899, and was officiating private secretary to the Lieutenant-Governor in 1900-1. He retired in 1906. On the outbreak of the War he was employed as assistant provost marshal at Boulogne, and later as assistant military landing officer and as D.A.Q.M.G. He was made O.B.E. in 1918. He married in 1898 Kathleen Mildred Seymour, daughter of the late Sir Carey Knyvett, and had a son and a daughter.

Mr. A. J. Berry, M.A., Director of Education for Preston for 26 years until his retirement through ill-health 12 months ago, died yesterday at Preston. He was the author of the historical pageant during the Preston Guild celebration eight years ago.

Mr. Charles Ricard, who died on Monday at his home at Ashtead, Surrey, was well known on the Metal Exchange as the principal partner in Ricard and Freiwald, who are chiefly concerned with tin. He was a great lover of animals and a Fellow of the Zoological Society.

ILLNESS AFTER EATING SWEETS

FRESH CASES AT STOKE

Further cases of illness after eating sweets are reported from the Stoke-on-Trent area, and parents in South Cheshire and North Staffordshire have been warned not to allow their children to eat any boiled sweets purchased before Monday morning.

Efforts are being made to discover how the arsenic was obtained and under what circumstances it came to be used in the sweet factory. Dr. Wotherspoon, medical officer of health for Stoke-on-Trent, yesterday conducted analyses of all the ingredients used in the manufacture of the sweets at the factory.

The latest cases of poisoning include two children at Northwood (Hanley) and seven people at Goldenhill (Stoke-on-Trent).

FINE FOR FAILING TO PRODUCE PILOT'S CERTIFICATE

For failing to produce his pilot's certificate on the demand of a police officer, Leo George Kerchner, an airman, of London, was at Southend-on-Sea yesterday fined £1 10s. A police constable said that on July 17 he saw an aeroplane in a corn field on Canvey Island with the propeller and under-carriage wrecked. The defendant, who was the pilot, said he had had to make a forced landing because of engine trouble. He could not produce his certificate. Kerchner, who it appeared had left his certificate at his lodgings at Canvey Island, now produced his certificate for the inspection of the magistrates.

PRESENTATION TO POLICE SURGEON

Dr. Morgan Ignatius Finucane, who for the past 17 years has been surgeon and medical officer to the A Division (Whitehall), Metropolitan Police, was presented yesterday afternoon with a silver cigar and cigarette box, subscribed for by the officers and men of the division. The presentation was made by Chief Constable Brigadier-General Whitehead, in the presence of a very large gathering of officers and men, at the Rochester-row police station.

MEARE LAKE VILLAGE

DISCOVERY OF CLAY HEARTHS

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT)

The season's excavations at the Meare Lake Village, near Glastonbury, were resumed by Dr. A. Bulleid, F.S.A., and Mr. H. St. George Gray, F.S.A., for the Somersetshire Archaeological and Natural History Society on August 25. The remains discovered, with the consent of the Somerset County Council, become the property of the County Museum at Taunton Castle.

The work is being continued from and adjoining the area examined last season, and it should not be long before the excavation of the eastern part of the western half of the village is completed. In the first week a considerable amount of very interesting substructure overlying the natural peat was uncovered, consisting of interwoven alder limbs (a kind of raft-like construction in the foundation), some hurdle-work, mortised oak beams, and other timbers, mainly alder, occasionally silver birch. One of the large mortise-holes was still practically circular (they are generally a wide oval when uncovered).

At the west end of the first trench a large clay hearth was found below the clay floor in excellent preservation, surrounded by much fire-ash. It was built up on the peat and shallow foundation in this part. The hearth was tilted towards the north, and it had a hard, baked surface.

Extending the excavation, according to programme, in a north-easterly direction into Dwelling-mound XXXII., another clay hearth was found on the second floor, round which four large slabs of lias stone were spaced as if intended as seats for the natives when gathered round their fireside. Similar arrangements of stones round hearths have been observed occasionally both in this and in the Glastonbury Lake Village. In this mound and in No. XXXI. adjoining the surface of the upper floors was very well defined, showing a dark layer at the base of the flood-soil. On this floor in Mound XXXI. small beans were found in large quantity.

To the east an isolated dwelling-mound (No. XXXIII.) is now being examined; such huts standing alone and not overlapped by others, so to speak, frequently are rich in remains left behind by these marsh dwellers of the Prehistoric Iron Age. In this mound a fine series of superimposed hearths have been uncovered, and in excavating a part of this area in 1926 a large number of interesting relics were found.

POTTERY AND METAL OBJECTS

Among the objects already discovered are two or three nearly complete pottery vessels finely ornamented (in one case the base is richly decorated), much fragmentary ornamented pottery, two large spiral finger-rings of bronze, and three small harness-rings of bronze, an extremely fine lozenge-shaped flint arrowhead with ripple-flaking, another arrowhead and some flint scrapers, an iron bill-hook of the tanged variety with double cutting-edge, a long-handled gouge of iron, two perforated cheek-pieces of horses' bridle-bits, a bronze chape for small sheath, and a leaden net-sinker.

The excavations were visited on September 6 by a party of the British Association (Section H) from the Bristol meeting. The Taunton Field Club are to see the work in progress to-day, and the Wells Natural History and Archaeological Society next week.

The season's work will be completed on Saturday, September 20. It is understood that the treasurers are in need of funds to complete the season's work. Contributions, large or small, will be gratefully received by Mr. St. George Gray, at Taunton Castle, Taunton.

CHARING CROSS BRIDGE

SCHEMES SENT IN BY OVER 40 LONDONERS

When the agreed Charing Cross Bridge scheme was rejected by Parliament last Session, the London County Council set up an advisory committee, consisting of experts and representatives of the bodies interested, to deal with the matter. Subsequently, the committee, of which Sir Leslie Scott, K.C., is chairman, announced that they would be willing to consider any suggestions made by Londoners, not only by experts, but by the "man in the street." Yesterday was the closing date for schemes submitted by outsiders, and up to the morning between 40 and 50 schemes had been received. Each will be dealt with strictly on its merits by the advisory committee, whose duty it is to prepare an agreed scheme for presentation to the County Council when it reassembles on October 21. The advisory committee will meet again at the beginning of next month, and will begin the work of examining the schemes.

When a new scheme has been agreed upon it will be brought before a full meeting of the London County Council in the ordinary way. A London County Council town-planning official stated yesterday that some of the schemes sent in were weird and fantastical, but others would require careful consideration.

THE ST. LEGER

SOME OF THE DRESSES

The St. Leger was run in excellent weather at Doncaster yesterday afternoon. The morning was overcast and sultry, with a threat of thunder, but later the sky cleared and the sun was so hot that people discarded their coats and carried their furs. Coats and skirts were chiefly worn, but light summer-weight tweed dresses and coats were also popular, and many women still favoured the fashionable printed crêpe de Chine or satin. Hats were small without exception, and were chiefly of the same material as coats or dresses, or of plain-colour felt.

Princess Mary, Countess of Harewood, and the Earl of Harewood came over with the Countess of Lonsdale's house party from Edenfield. Princess Mary was in a reseda-green wool georgette dress and long coat to match with a scarf collar tied in a bow at the back, and her green straw hat was trimmed with felt of the same colour. She was walking in the Paddock before the big race with Lady Noreen Bass, who was wearing a cherry-red crêpe de Chine dress and long coat with a tiny white pin-spot, and a red straw hat trimmed with red and white petersham ribbon.

The Marchioness of Cambridge was seen in the Paddock in a navy-blue coat and skirt, with a sable stole and a red felt hat; and Baroness Burton was in a nut-brown and white pin-spotted crêpe de Chine coat and skirt, with a white blouse and a brown straw hat. Lady Digby was wearing a flowered navy-blue crêpe de Chine dress, with a small felt hat; and Lady Lettice Cotterell, who was with Mr. R. C. G. Cotterell, wore a deep cornflower-blue crêpe de Chine dress with a bolero coatee of the same material collared with ermine, and a small straw hat to match.

Marchioness Curzon of Kedleston was in a crushed strawberry-pink crêpe de Chine dress and long kasha coat of the same colour collared with beige summer fur, and a small pink felt hat; and Lady Buchanan-Jardine had a long-sleeved frock of primrose-yellow crêpe de Chine, with a close-fitting, swathed bodice and flared skirt, and her black Baku straw hat was trimmed with yellow petersham ribbon. Lady (Victor) Warrender was seen in a green and fawn flecked tweed dress and coat, with a green hat and a black fox fur; Baroness Beaumont was in a black crêpe de Chine dress with an écru lace collar and vest, and a black Baku straw hat; and her sister, the Hon. Mrs. Micklethwait, wore a beige crêpe de Chine dress, with an emerald-green crochet straw hat wreathed with flowers. Lady Chesham was wearing a navy, grey, and pink figured crêpe de Chine dress under a navy-blue silk marocain coat, and a close-fitting navy-blue felt hat, and the Hon. Mrs. Henry Tufton had a black satin frock flowered with yellow and green, a black marocain coat, and a black Baku straw hat trimmed with osprey and a diamanté clasp. The Hon. Mrs. Vandeleur Beatty was in a navy-blue coat and skirt with a reseda green straw hat, and Mrs. Edward Clayton wore a black crêpe de Chine dress with a black straw hat. The Hon. Mrs. Rochfort Maguire was in navy-blue and white, the Hon. Mrs. Edward Lascelles was in black, and Mrs. Beazley had a black and white striped dress relieved by touches of old rose. The Hon. Mrs. Ronald Greville was in navy-blue; Mrs. Fetherstonhaugh wore a cornflower-blue and white flecked tweed dress and coat with a blue hat trimmed with blue and white petersham, and Mrs. Ronald Matthews, who was walking in the Paddock with Mrs. John Durham-Matthews, was in navy-blue with a white hat.

Among others seen during the day were:—

The Earl of Lonsdale, Lord Digby, the Earl of Londesborough, Captain and the Hon. Mrs. Robert Jenkinson, Earl Fitzwilliam, Lord Stanley, Lord Stavordale, the Marquess of Crewe, the Hon. Edward Lascelles, Sir Walter Gilbey, Colonel R. Charteris, Mr. Crosier Bailey, the Countess of Wharncliffe, Lady Hamilton of Dalzell, Lady Alexandra Haig, and Colonel J. E. B. Baillie.

ARGYLLSHIRE GATHERING

The first day of the Argyllshire Gathering was held at Oban yesterday in fine weather. King George and Queen Elisabeth of Greece attended from Torosay Castle, and others present were:—

The Marquess of Clydesdale, Maclachlan of Maclachlan, Lieutenant-Colonel Bruce Campbell, Viscountess Massereene and Ferrard, Sir Ian Malcolm, Lord George Douglas-Hamilton, Lady Flora Poore, Admiral of the Fleet Sir Charles Madden, Colonel MacRae-Gilstrap, Mr. and Mrs. Graham, Mrs. Macdonald, Mrs. Courtauld, Colonel I. Campbell and Mrs. Campbell, Mrs. Douglas Campbell, Sir Gervase Beckett, Mr. and Mrs. Campbell of Shirvan, Mrs. Cameron of Ardsheal, the Bishop of Argyll and the Isles and Mrs. Mackenzie, Sir Charles Stewart, Major Maclean, Miss Campbell of Inverneill, Lord and Lady Scone, the Hon. Mrs. Carnegie, the Hon. Diana Skeffington, Lady Fiona Pratt, the Hon. Elspeth Weir, Colonel W. D. Allan, Captain Donald Ross, Sir John Shelley-Rolls and the Hon. Lady Shelley-Rolls, and Lady James Murray.

LITTLE HAMPDEN COMMON

GRANT OF PUBLIC RIGHTS

AYLESBURY, Sept. 10

The dispute two years ago as to the public rights over Little Hampden Common, Bucks, has terminated satisfactorily. Captain and Mrs. Trevor-Battye have executed, with the consent of their son and one of the trustees of the settled estate, a deed applying Section 193 of the Law of Property Act, 1925, to the common. Its effect is to grant to the public a right of access to the common for the purpose of enjoying air and recreation thereon. The grant of this right does not cover lighting fires or camping on the common or driving vehicles on to any part of the common not being a public carriage road.

The Commons, Open Spaces, and Footpaths Preservation Society has tendered to Captain and Mrs. Trevor-Battye an expression of its appreciation of their public-spirited action.

The King's Visit to Lady Nelson.—Extract of a letter from Brighton, dated Tuesday:—"This place seems as gay as ever; and yesterday afternoon I was extremely gratified by a sight of His Majesty, while I was at Scarnell's Teahouse hotel. His Majesty came into that house about 4 o'clock to see Lady Nelson, who has been a resident under its roof nearly a month. The King arrived in a private chariot, and was ushered into the coffee-room, where her ladyship was in readiness to receive him, and he remained with her full three-quarters of an hour. I thought the coffee-room an odd place; but it was, of course, most convenient for His Majesty's accommodation, being nearest the entrance, and avoided going upstairs. The whole was so private that even many inmates of the house were not aware of it. Lady Nelson looked venerable and well: she appeared delighted with the King's visit."—Sun.

PRINCE TAKAMATSU

During a private visit to Birmingham yesterday Prince and Princess Takamatsu were shown over the works of the Dunlop Rubber Company at Fort Dunlop, and made a tour of the factory of Messrs. Cadbury Brothers at Bournville. They will leave Birmingham to-day.

MARRIAGES

The Bishop of Ballarat and Miss Jellicorse

The marriage took place at Funtington Parish Church yesterday of the Right Rev. P. C. T. Crick, D.D., Bishop of Ballarat, son of the late Rev. P. Crick and Mrs. Crick, of Woodbridge, Suffolk, and Miss Marion Edith Jellicorse, only child of Major and Mrs. H. Jellicorse, of Densworth, Chichester.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a long dress of parchment-tinted satin with a flared skirt and a berthe of old Brussels lace. Her train was carried by Master John Cochrane-Barnett, and she was also attended by another page and a little girl, Master Dick Lyne and Miss Ann Hore. All the children wore green and cream Kate Greenaway costumes. There were four grown-up bridesmaids—Miss Nesta Inglis, Miss Aylett-Moore, Miss Ann Keane, and Miss Ann Crick. Their long dresses of eau-de-Nil chiffon had flared skirts and the bodices were rucked at the sides. They wore short coatees of the same material and green satin shoes, and had halo headdresses of gold and soft green velvet leaves. Captain W. Broadhurst was best man.

The reception was held at Densworth and among the guests were:—

Mrs. Philip Crick, Major and Mrs. Alan Drayton, Miss Crick, Miss K. Crick, Mrs. D. H. Crick, Sir Arthur and Leady Peake, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Woods, Mrs. E. A. Woods, Mr. R. Woods, the Primate of Australia and Tasmania and Mrs. Wright, the Archbishop of Melbourne, and Countess Jellicoe and Lady Norah Jellicoe.

Captain G. T. M. Allen and Miss Freeth

The marriage took place at Holy Trinity Church, Brompton, yesterday of Captain Geoffrey Thornton Macarthur Allen, Royal Fusiliers, elder son of Sir Walter and Lady Allen, of 10, Onslow-crescent, and Miss Ruth Elaine Felicity Freeth, daughter of Major-General G. H. B. Freeth, Deputy Adjutant-General, Army Headquarters Staff, India, and Mrs. Freeth, of Westlands, Queenstown, Ireland. The Rev. F. H. Campion and the Rev. H. S. Sard officiated, and the bridegroom wore full-dress uniform.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a gown of blush-pink satin with a train of old Limerick lace, mounted on pale pink tulle, depending from the shoulders. She wore a wreath of myrtle and orange-blossom and a diamond grenade brooch, and carried a bouquet of pale pink blush roses and white heather. The bridesmaids, Miss Patricia Allen (sister of the bridegroom), Miss Betty Fowke, Miss Betty St. Maur Sheil, and Miss Joan Stevenson, wore gowns of delphinium-blue chiffon with wreaths of blue glass and carried sheaves of delphiniums. Mr. G. O. Allen (brother of the bridegroom) was best man.

Among those present at the church were:—

Sir Walter and Lady Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Boyce Allen, Miss Allen, Mrs. Herbert Allen, Mrs. Freeth, Mrs. Matthew Freeth, Mr. Emil Freeth, Colonel Sir Vernon and Lady Kell, Captain and Mrs. Douglas Robertson, Mrs. Cameron, Lady Fowke, Viscount Byng of Vimy, Lady Crookshank, Lady Gibbons, Lieutenant-General Sir Edwin and Lady Atkinson, Lady Symons, Miss Bramwell, Miss Rachel Molesworth, Miss Margaret Molesworth, Mrs. Howlett, Miss Howlett, Captain Cazalet, Mr. G. Wade, Mr. and Mrs. Christian, Mrs. Armstrong, Cadet A. J. Moffat, Mrs. George Usborne, Rear-Admiral C. V. Usborne, Mrs. Philip Scott, Mrs. H. Ramsbotham, Mrs. R. E. Benson, Mr. and Mrs. W. Henning Crocker, Miss Niven, Mr. Paul Henry, Mr. P. F. Warner, Miss Betty Warner, Colonel and Mrs. Hawtrey, Colonel Northey, Miss Northey, Mrs. St. Maur Sheil, Miss Gladys Hunter, Mr. F. W. B. W. Field, and Mrs. Augustus Loftus.

The honeymoon will be spent at Courts of Noke, Hereford, lent by Mr. and Mrs. Orde Quincey, and the bride travelled in a dark blue romaine dress and a short coat to match with an ermine collar and cuffs.

Mr. R. M. Fanshawe and Miss R. M. Sladen

The marriage took place at St. Bartholomew's Church, Benthall, Shropshire, on Tuesday, of Mr. Richard Michael Fanshawe, son of Captain R. D. Fanshawe, late Scots Guards, and Mrs. Fanshawe, of Little Park, Brimpton, Berkshire, and Miss Robina Margaret Sladen, of Benthall Hall, Shropshire, daughter of the late Major and Mrs. C. St. B. Sladen, Royal Engineers. Archdeacon Bevan officiated, assisted by the Rev. W. A. Terry.

The bride, who was given away by her brother, Mr. Miles Sladen, wore a gown of white chiffon with a veil and train of old heirloom lace, and carried a bouquet of white carnations. There were two little girl attendants—Miss Elizabeth Fanshawe and Miss June Barber Starkey. They wore Kate Greenaway frocks of flowered crêpe de Chine and poke bonnets trimmed with rosebuds, and carried Victorian posies. The grown-up bridesmaids—Miss Betty Wayne and Miss Honor Thursby-Pelham—wore pink-flowered chiffon frocks and Dolly Vardon hats, trimmed with roses. Mr. Aldrich Blake was best man.

Among those present were:—

Admiral of the Fleet Sir Arthur Fanshawe, Captain and Mrs. R. D. Fanshawe, Lord and Lady Forester, Lady Catherine Milnes Gaskell, Colonel and Mrs. James Farquhar, Sir Charles and Lady Yate, Colonel and Mrs. Gwyther, Colonel and Mrs. Crichton-Browne, Captain and Mrs. Wakeman Colville, Mr. and Mrs. Danvers Sladen, Mr. and Mrs. F. Sladen, and Colonel and Mrs. Heywood.

Mr. O. J. Philipson and Mlle. Y. Kreglinger

The marriage took place in Antwerp on September 4 of Oliphant James, younger son of Mr. and the Hon. Mrs. Hylton Philipson, and Yvonne, second daughter of M. and Mme. Kreglinger. The civil ceremony was performed at the Hotel de Ville by Burgomaster Van Cauwelaert, and Pasteurs Morel and De Haan officiated at the religious ceremony. Mr. Murray Philipson was best man to his brother, and a luncheon was given at the Château den Brandt.

Among the many friends and relations present were:—

EXTRACTS IN "THE TIMES WEEKLY EDITION"

The interest aroused by the extracts in The Times from the late Mr. Edwin Montagu's "An Indian Diary" will undoubtedly be shared by readers oversea. The Times Weekly Edition, published to-day, contains a long instalment of Mr. Montagu's observations on Indian conditions as he found them, together with a full account of the breakdown of the recent "peace parley" and Mr. Thompson's rejoinder to American critics. These are documents of special interest in view of the forthcoming Round-Table Conference on Indian reforms.

The Times Weekly Edition also contains Dr. Stubbendorff's special story of the discovery of important additional Andrée relics on White Island, and an account of the honours paid to the remains of Andrée and his companion, Dr. Strindberg, at Tromso, to which their bodies had to be brought by Dr. Gunnar Horn in the Bratvaag. The discoveries are illustrated by many special pictures. Another story of adventure is of the progress of the work of salvage on the Egypt, from which the captain's safe and eight-year-old dispatches and mail-bags have been recovered. Among the other principal topics of the week are the meetings of the British Association and the Trades Union Congress, political news, the action of the League Council towards Palestine, and the revolution in Argentina.

A special Bridge article, a crossword puzzle, chess problems and news, and reviews of the week's books, sport and finance are regular features.

A subscriber writes from South Africa:—"May I say that The Times Weekly Edition seems to me to be more worth taking in than ever, not only for the sake of the general information, and the articles, but for the tone that runs through the whole paper, dignified, courteous, openhearted, and entertaining. It makes one proud of England because that is the spirit of the real England that we love."

The Times Weekly Edition is published every Thursday, price 4d. The subscription rates, post free, are:—United Kingdom and Canada, three months, 5s. 6d.; six months, 11s.; 12 months, 22s. Other countries:—Three months, 6s. 3d.; six months, 12s. 6d.; 12 months, 25s. Inquiries should be addressed to the Publisher, The Times Weekly Edition, Printing House-square, London, E.C.4.

A TWELFTH-CENTURY MONASTERY

FRESH LIGHT ON ST. RADEGUND'S, DOVER

Mr. S. E. Wimbolt writes:—

The considerable and very interesting remains of St. Radegund's Abbey, Bradsole, are on a high chalk plateau three miles east of Dover, and accessible only by difficult lanes. Founded by someone unknown in 1191, it was a Praemonstratensian house, colonized direct from Premontré, near Laon, in France, and, after a period of great affluence and influence, was dissolved in 1538. Its first Abbot, Hubert, was buried in the neighbouring church at Alkham, where his Latin epitaph can still be read.

Just 50 years ago the late Sir (then Mr.) William St. John Hope dug out the walls of the long and narrow church and planned the chief monastic buildings—Cloister Garth, Chapter House, Refectory, Infirmary, &c. (see Archaeologia Cantiana, vol. XIV.), leaving, as he knew, much for future exploration. The place is rich with turf mounds covering wall foundations: there are few sites that would better repay thorough excavation. By the kind invitation of its owner, Mr. Thomas Else, and with the assistance of one helper, I have just spent three weeks in investigations which have added to St. John Hope's plan. It has been work for spade, measure, and compass. I can now plot in two additional buildings, though several more are waiting to be revealed; but my main task has been to make a plan of the demesne lands of the Abbey, shown in accompanying sketch.

It will be seen that not only were the immediate precincts of the monastery enclosed by walls, but that the neighbouring lands (about one-fourth of the estate) are surrounded by semi-protective boundaries in the form of deep wet fosses and banks. The three approach lanes, from river, Alkham, and Buckland, meet at the north entrance, the latter two of which, serving as boundaries, are accompanied with fosses and inner banks. A straight, wide entry of 100 yards, protected by ditches and banks, led to the North Gate House, situated just inside a stretch of deep fosse running north-west and south-east from it. By the Gate House were the Almonry buildings, where the casual caller was given refreshment. This fosse bears away round the north-west, turning four remarkable angles in its course. In the third of these was a pond through which, by means of a channel from Bradsole (=broad pond), the moats were fed with water. Its course is then south to the south corner, where, no doubt, a track came in from Polton, a depleted village which has now lost its church.

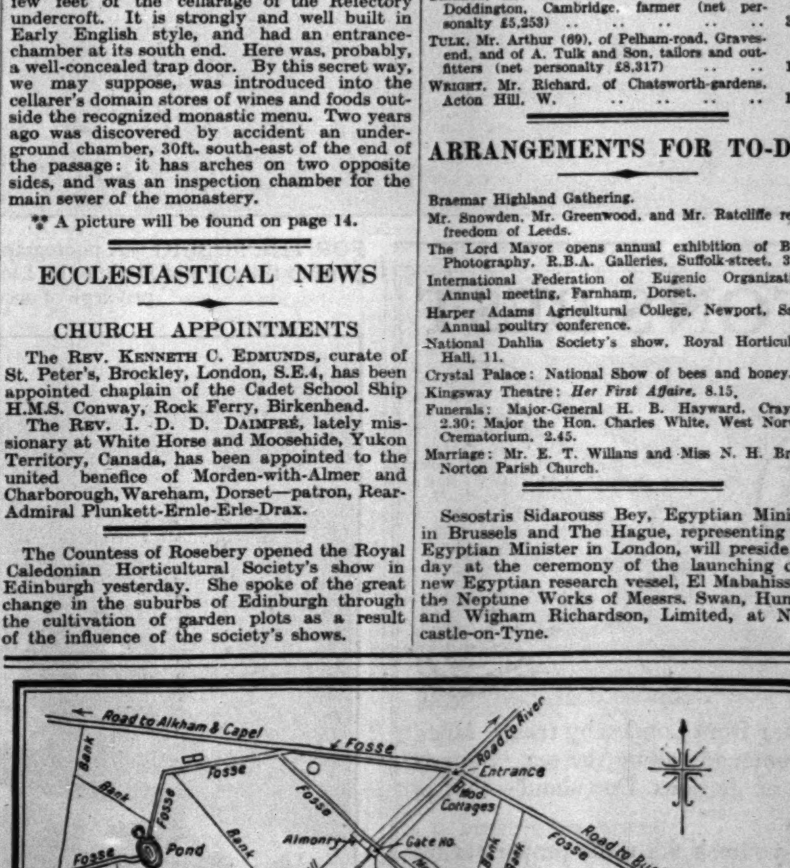

Now comes a noteworthy feature. Along the southern and south-eastern sides is a broad, green road, protected on either side by interior ditch and outer bank, and leading to the South Gate House. North of, and parallel with, the southern stretch of road, and at about 55 yards from it, is a deep fosse, also fed direct from Bradsole by a water channel. This gate house is in a rough rectangle surrounded on north, east, and west by fosses, and on the south by the green road, which now gradually turns to the north-east, and grows broader, ending in the entrance for visitors direct from Dover. These broad roads were necessitated by the great number of horses brought in the train of distinguished visitors. From the South Gate House a similar broad and protected road ran north, turning west to give access to the Chapter House, church, and other monastic buildings. Between this road and the parallel precinct wall were obviously three gardens in which the monks worked. Outside the wall where it turns north of north-west towards the North Gate House, was a deep pond, with banks revetted with big flints in courses, and supplied with water from the deep fosse east of it. The outer periphery is of about 1,720 yards.

Starting again from the North Gate House and Almonry I traced the course, partly by noting standing fragments and partly by making sure of flint foundations under turf, of the precinct wall. The approach from gate house to church tower was a wide strip between two high flint walls, the north-western of which turned round to south-east, joined the wall of the Refectory garden, and reached Bradsole in the middle of its north side. Turning east it bounded the Refectory court, crossed an underground passage, and then branched north to the east end of the Refectory, and south, then east, and then north again, as already described, along by the gardens, and so back to the North Gate House. It will be seen that the land is divided into 16 small fields by old (long disused) field banks and ditches. These almost certainly date from monastic times, and were disused when (in 1580) Queen Elizabeth handed over the estate and ruined buildings to the farming of one Simon Edolph. He erected up against the solid four-buttressed south wall of the Refectory the charming old Elizabethan house, with quaintly chequered walls, which still serves as a dwelling-house, and overlooks (north) the Cloister Garth.

I was able to trace out two fresh buildings. The first extends west from the south-west corner of the Garth. Its walls exist in places to the height of a foot or two under a rockery, and a jungle of ivy and undergrowth, and here and there only as foundations under turf and mould. It is a long apartment, 36ft. by 13ft. interior, with a doorway on the north side, and, adjoining it to the west, a northern projection of 7ft. by 4½ft., probably with a window. I conjecture this to have been a Guests' Refectory and to have had sleeping rooms above it. North-west of the North Gate House we traced out the walls of an Almonry room, with internal measurements of about 33ft. by 12ft. Here, probably, refreshments were served to callers.

An enigmatic underground passage, of which the top of the vaulting has fallen in, is to be seen outside the wall south of the Refectory. The length visible is 43ft., but by digging I made sure of its continuance inside the garden. It continues in a line with the arch of the kitchen yard west of the Refectory, within a few feet of the cellarage of the Refectory undercroft. It is strongly and well built in Early English style, and had an entrance-chamber at its south end. Here was, probably, a well-concealed trap door. By this secret way, we may suppose, was introduced into the cellarer's domain stores of wines and foods outside the recognized monastic menu. Two years ago was discovered by accident an underground chamber, 30ft. south-east of the end of the passage: it has arches on two opposite sides, and was an inspection chamber for the main sewer of the monastery.

ROUND THE SHOPS

DRESS MODELS OF MANY PERIODS

The first collections of models that are being shown at the present time appear to have been inspired by many periods of dress. There are Empire bodices and Spanish or princess bodices, and berthas shown side by side with "tops" that would seem to have been inspired by backless bathing dresses. There are circular skirts and skirts which are tight to the knee and then flow in fullness. There are many bows, some arranged at the back like a schoolgirl's, and some on shoulders or at the back of the neck. There are basques and dolmans, berets and Cossack caps, and hats tied at one side which are dangerously near the design of the bonnet of the late Victorian era. Many of these ideas are offered somewhat in the spirit that a menu is presented to fastidious diners.

Bradley's, Chepstow-place, are showing their collections of new models throughout their departments this week and, on Tuesday and Wednesday, when the first displays took place, there were large attendances. A number of evening dresses were shown in black, one of the most beautiful being in black taffeta with a design embroidered in dull and shiny sequins, and finished with braces of the taffeta at the back and a big bow on one shoulder. Another black satin frock had a fitting bodice of black satin and a skirt of black uncrushable net trimmed with bands of the satin. A lovely gown in bright pink satin, made on plain-fitting lines with a bow at the back, was much admired for its graceful design. A good many basqued effects, mostly on downward lines at the back, were seen on afternoon frocks, and one made in heavy black georgette had a deep vest and cuffs of gleaming white beads. A plum chiffon and lace frock had detachable long lace sleeves. A coat and skirt in brown velveteen had the coat closely stitched to give a corduroy effect. There were many handsome coats in fur and in cloth trimmed with fur, and some short fur capes, one of which, made like a late Victorian dolman, in Persian lamb, had ties of ermine. A closely-fitting coat in black crêpe had a draped collar and cuffs of ermine. Two-colour effects were seen in some afternoon dresses; one of these dresses had a green basqued coat trimmed with Persian lamb, and was worn with a black skirt. Cossack caps were shown among the millinery, and also some draped berets in velvet on Holbein lines.

Harvey Nichols, Knightsbridge, have a new collection of dresses and ensembles in their model gown department which is representative of the best of the new fashions. From Germaine Lecomte there is a delightful dress in black satin beauté, made with a pointed design used to form a setting for gathers, which has a flowing line giving slimness and height. A model by Jeanne Lafitte is also in black, and has an ingenious arrangement of an apron of the satin in front which is cut on the cross and melts into the godets which flow to the hem; the low back of the bodice shows the influence of the sun-bathing dresses, while a jewelled ornament finishes the neat waistline back and front. The vogue for turquoise is seen on a black afternoon model made with a turquoise and beige collar and jabot and an elbow cuff of the same colours; the dress is made with tiny tuckings and a line that is very becoming to a difficult figure. The new façonné velvet on printed chiffon is one of the few survivals of printed fabrics. An afternoon dress in brown chiffon, with a design in beige, has velvet façonné in brown and is made on the new flowing lines with a neat waist.

Gorringe's, Buckingham Palace-road, have a special issue of their "Gazette," devoted to school clothing for boys and girls, in which they make a feature of their scheme of "all sizes one price." The individual requirements of the various preparatory and public schools are specially provided for, and Rugby suits, lounge suits, Eton suits, and Marlborough suits are among the suits included in this offer. "Plus four" suits, made from specially selected all-wool tweeds in homespun effects, are 63s. for all sizes from 12 to 20 years. A boy's trench coat, in all-wool navy-blue twill gabardine, lined with proofed check and reinforced with oiled cambric interlining, costs 42s. 6d. for all sizes from eight to 19 years.

RATIONALIZATION IN SHIPBUILDING

THE BEARDMORE PURCHASE

The National Shipbuilders' Security, Limited, which was formed by British shipbuilding interests about six months ago for the purpose of bringing about an improvement in the shipbuilding industry, has taken its first important step towards the elimination of redundant shipyards. It has arranged to purchase the naval shipbuilding establishment of William Beardmore and Co., at Dalmuir, on the Clyde. The purchase will mean the end of shipbuilding at Dalmuir, for the yard will be dismantled, its contents disposed of, and the site resold under restrictions against its future use for shipbuilding. The Dalmuir yard will be closed down by the end of the year. Two other shipyards, one on the west coast of Scotland and the other on the east coast of England, will also be closed down when negotiations, which are already in an advanced stage, are completed. The National Shipbuilders' Security, Limited, which has a small capital but large borrowing powers, was formed by the industry itself for the purpose of securing the necessary cooperation by which the shipyard capacity of the country might be reduced to post-War needs and more economical costs obtained by the resultant concentration of production. In June last little more than 40 per cent. of the shipyard berths were occupied. The excess capacity is partly due to the new yards built during the War and to the increase in the average size of vessels, a smaller number of berths being required for the same amount of tonnage.

Effect on the Company

The share and security holders of William Beardmore should not regard the disposal of the company's shipyard unfavourably. On the contrary, it is calculated to improve the position of the company, for it has undoubtedly received a fair price—the amount of which is undisclosed—for a property of which the company has only been able to make partial use for some years. It is true that the yard, one of the largest on the Clyde, has turned out many fine ships, both naval and commercial, since it was opened in 1905, but since the War there has been a marked curtailment of warship work, and the supply of high-class mercantile work for which the yard is suitable has been wholly inadequate. In the last 11 years the total of naval construction has comprised only one cruiser and two submarines. These are the principal reasons which have led Beardmore's to abandon shipbuilding and to concentrate upon more profitable activities. The result of the transaction will be that the company's liquid resources will be increased, and these it will be able to use for the development of the marine and general engineering works at Dalmuir, —where many contracts are on hand—their forge and steel works at Parkhead, and the other branches of the heavy industries in which the company holds a leading position. The business was established as long ago as 1835, but after Lord Invernairn assumed control in 1886 the company greatly extended the scope of its activities, which were of especial value during the War. The parent business, which is situated at Parkhead, is chiefly engaged in the manufacture of steel and finished steel products of almost every class. After the War it began to manufacture, on a big scale, railway locomotives, its works being one of the largest in the world.

Financial Reconstruction

Beardmore's underwent a capital reconstruction last year, while, at the same time, a thorough internal reorganization was carried out. Early this year the directors made an arrangement with Messrs. David Colville and Sons, whereby the latter acquired the goodwill of Beardmore's business in plates, sections, and rails. This was another effort at rationalizing the steel trade on the Clyde, for it enabled the firms concerned in the arrangement to specialize in those classes of work for which they are best fitted by putting the maximum volume of work into each firm to make that specialization worth while. Beardmore's, in common with similar enterprises of the kind, spent very large sums during the War on building new works and plant for the sole purpose of meeting the enormous War requirements of the Government. If these works had been built for account of the Government and not for the account of the companies, as they should have been, for, generally speaking, they have been of no use to the companies since the new capacity has been in excess of peace time requirements, the financial difficulties of the great iron and steel and engineering firms would have been much less serious. It is regrettable that these great firms should have had to suffer for their patriotism, but it is a fact to be remembered to their credit when financial reconstruction schemes are considered.

Argentine Railway Dividends

The Buenos Ayres Great Southern and the Buenos Ayres Western, which are usually the first of the Argentine railways to declare their dividends, will not make their announcements until next week. In recent years the tendency has been for the announcements to be made a little earlier than the middle of September, but this year the declarations will be made at a date which corresponds more closely to the normal period. The results of the railways in the past year were not so favourable as in the previous year, owing to poorer crops and the fall in the value of the Argentine peso. The Great Southern's gross receipts for the year ended June 30 were £12,172,000, a decrease of £867,000, following upon a decrease of £229,000 in the previous year, when, however, economies enabled the company to secure a larger net revenue. The Western has absolutely and relatively a larger decrease, the gross receipts for the year ended June 30 being £4,355,000, a decrease of £904,000, which follows upon an increase of £4,000 for the preceding year. The Great Southern maintained its interim dividend at 3 per cent., but it is hardly to be expected that the final dividend of 5 per cent. paid last year will be maintained. The Buenos Ayres Western reduced its interim from 3 per cent. to 2½ per cent., and in view of the decrease in traffics and the exchange loss on remittances it is regarded as a foregone conclusion that the final dividend will be reduced from 4 per cent., the rate paid last year. The traffic returns for the past week were naturally affected by the political disturbances, but apart from smaller traffics there has been little disturbance to business and none of the train services was interfered with. The decreases in gross receipts for the current year to date range from £187,000 in the case of the Western to £512,000 in the case of the Central Argentine, and the boards, when arriving at their dividend decisions, will no doubt be influenced to some extent by the current trend of traffics.

Another Record Rand Output

For the second time this year the monthly gold output of the Transvaal has established a record. The total production for August was 921,081oz., equivalent in value to £3,914,594, and this exceeds the previous monthly record output, namely, that for May of this year, by £20,689. Outputs for other months during the present year have, as a rule, exceeded those for the corresponding months of 1929, and there would therefore seem to be a good prospect of the year's output being once again the largest yet attained. A slight improvement is disclosed by the native labour returns for August, the number of natives employed at the end of the month being 222,799, compared with 221,271 at the end of July. This is a decidedly larger native labour force than a year ago, when the total was 211,000.

Johannesburg Consolidated Report

A further reduction in profits is disclosed by the accounts of the Johannesburg Consolidated Investment Company for the 12 months to June 30 last, and in order to maintain the dividend at 15 per cent. the directors have reduced the "carry-forward" from £181,497 to £154,190. The results for the past three years are shown in the following table:—

—	1930	1929	1928
	Year to June 30

Gross profits, the directors state, were well maintained, "but, having regard to the long period of general depression which has adversely affected all markets, the company has had to make provision for abnormal depreciation in the value of certain of its shareholdings." As usual, the company's shareholdings are valued either at or below the current market prices on the date of the balance-sheet, June 30. Compared with a year ago the value of its stock and share holdings, £4,609,694, shows an increase of £40,000. An increase from £685,000 to £951,000 in the amounts due to the company by sundry debtors and dividends accrued is partly offset by an expansion of £172,000 in the liabilities under the head of sundry creditors and credit balances. An extension of the company's interests in the Northern Rhodesian copper fields is recorded, and the directors expect that production of copper will begin in the latter part of 1931.

Lower Japanese Banking Profits

Smaller profits are announced by the Yokohama Specie Bank for the first half of 1930, the total being 7,121,819 yen (about £712,180), compared with 9,074,299 yen for the first half of 1929. The reduction in profits is due to the world-wide depression in trade and the low level of interest rates prevailing in Japan. Owing to the conservative manner in which profits have been dealt with in the past the smaller earnings do not necessitate a reduction in the dividend which, at 10 per cent. per annum, absorbs 5,000,000 yen, or 70 per cent. of the half-year's profits. The appropriation to reserve is reduced from 3,000,000 yen to 2,000,000 yen. This will raise the reserve fund to 113,500,000 yen, the paid-up capital being 100,000,000 yen.

Yesterday's Meetings

Reports of three company meetings held yesterday will be found in another part of this issue, and the chairman at each of them had something to say that is of interest to the general reader. Mr. Arthur Edwards, who presided at the meeting of Grosvenor House (Park-lane), gave some interesting figures regarding visitors to this country. It was estimated, he said, that over 600,000 American visitors came to the Continent of Europe in 1929, and that of this number 150,000 came to Great Britain, and, it was calculated, expended here over £11,000,000. During 1929 nearly 500,000 people visited Britain, 30 per cent. coming from the United States, 15 per cent. from France, and 11 per cent. from Germany. At the meeting of J. Brockhouse and Co. (coach and motor spring and axle manufacturers and ironworkers), Sir T. Harris Spencer took the chair, and clearly showed that he was in favour of a change in fiscal policy. He held that imports which were produced on an unfair basis in relation to conditions in this country ought not to be allowed to come here, and he pointed to the obvious truth that with free imports the country would either be unable to maintain its standard of living or it would lose its trade. Mr. T. P. Cook, addressing stockholders of the Tor Investment Trust, warned investors that it was not necessarily good policy for them to purchase securities that were included in the lists of investments published by some trust companies. An investment trust, he pointed out, often had favourable opportunities for buying, and its list of investments was also under constant revision, so that the published list merely showed the holdings on one particular date. Thus an investor may buy a security included in a trust company list in ignorance of the fact that the company, which bought the security at a substantially lower price, intends to sell it next day.

Reinsurances of Marine Risks

The news that serious trouble has overtaken a leading Danish insurance company doing marine business, to which reference was made in these columns yesterday, has, in some instances, been received by underwriters in the London market with mixed feelings. It is fully recognized that if the British creditors were to suffer seriously there could hardly fail to be repercussions for the Danish insurance market as a whole. At the same time, the placing of considerable reinsurances by British marine underwriters with foreign companies has, in the last few years, been the subject of a good deal of comment. There are those who think that the generally poor results of marine underwriting for many years may be traceable, in part, to the ease with which reinsurance insurance contracts have been placed with foreign companies, since the system has enabled British companies to accept larger lines than they would otherwise have assumed and earn, incidentally, a commission on the transactions. There is, indeed, one school of thought which maintains that marine underwriting would be healthier if the individual lines accepted were restricted rather more in accordance with the amounts which would be retained. Those who hold this view would, therefore, not be altogether sorry to see the reinsurance facilities curtailed, and the existence of difficulties in foreign markets would probably be the most effective way of curtailing the facilities. Already there has been a marked reduction of the opportunities available. In their own interest it is, of course, important that no indication of real weakness should be given by any market, since insurance naturally tends to be placed where there is no question of the security.

STOCK EXCHANGE

FURTHER RISE IN THE FUNDS

Quiet conditions prevailed in most sections of the Stock Exchange yesterday, public interest remaining small, but on the whole the tone was firm. British Funds continued to rise, and heavy buying was again reported of certain stocks. Home Railway stocks were affected by a further batch of poor traffic returns, and prices again dwindled. The foreign market was firm, Brazilian bonds improving with the exchange. A rally occurred in oil shares, and rubber shares were steady until towards the close, when an easier tendency was noticeable as a result of the late fall in the price of the commodity. Industrial shares showed firm tendency, a number of small rises being recorded. The international group was strong on better American advices, a sharp rise occurring in International Nickel.

In the GILT-EDGED market a keen demand was again reported for the Funding Loan, which rose ⅜ to 92¼, and there was good buying also of Conversion Five per Cents. The War Loan rose at one time to 104 1-16, falling back later to 103 15-16, a net gain of ⅛, and rises of a similar amount were recorded in other British Government stocks. HOME RAILWAY stocks were again unfavourably affected by the traffic returns. Decreases were reported of £153,000 on the L.M.S., of £98,000 on the "Berwick," of £34,000 on the Great Western, and of £33,000 on the Southern. Falls of ⅛ to ½ occurred in Great Western, L.M.S., "Berwick" Preferred, and Southern Deferred and Preferred.

The FOREIGN market was firm, though business remained on a small scale. The Reparations loan recovered partially, rising 1 to 85½. Brazilian bonds were generally ½ higher, the exchange rising above 5d.; but Mexican loans weakened. One or two Chinese loans were a fraction higher. Turkish Unified hardened slightly. ARGENTINE RAILWAY securities were quietly steady, the traffic returns being considered fairly satisfactory in view of the political conditions prevailing in the country last week. In the Brazilian railway group Leopoldina were affected by dividend fears, and weakened in spite of the rise in the Brazilian exchange.

OIL shares were very firm, rises occurring in Burmah, Anglo-Persian, Shell, Mexican Eagle, and Apex. RUBBER shares were steady for most of the day, but finished easier on the relapse in rubber. Rubber Trust, for instance, closed 3d. higher on balance at 20s. 9d., after being 21s. Idle conditions prevailed in the TEA market.

INDUSTRIAL SHARES HIGHER

An outstanding feature in the MISCELLANEOUS market, which had a generally firmer appearance, was the strength of Anglo-American shares, due to the receipt of favourable advices from New York. International Nickel was prominent in the movement, with a rise of 1¾ to 27⅞, and Brazilian Traction and Hydro Electric both recorded material gains. Strength was shown by Imperial Chemical, Dunlop Rubber, United Molasses, and Unilever, but Turner and Newall receded further. Cables and Wireless stocks were in demand, and the "A" rose 2 to 30. Motor shares were firm. Thornycroft was strong, and Austin and Guy both advanced. In the shipping group White Star Preference was easier at 9s. Artificial silk shares were firm, while other textile shares were easier. Thus Courtaulds gained 3-32 to 2 5-16 and British Celanese Second Preference hardened, whereas there were falls of 3d. to 6d. in Bleachers, Calico Printers, and Fine Spinners. Brewery shares were steady on the whole, but Distillers fell back further. In the tobacco group Carreras recovered, and Godfrey Phillips was again a shade higher. Associated and British Portland Cement were harder. Gramophone changed hands at over 3⅞, but closed rather below that figure. Wall Paper Deferred lost a little ground. Two or three Swedish industrial shares were higher again. Reports were current of a probable debenture conversion operation by the General Electric Company.

South African MINING shares were irregular. Sub Nigel strengthened, and Randfontein moved upwards, but there were small declines in De Beers, which fell below 7, and in Johannesburg Consolidated Investment. Rhodesian copper shares were firmer, N'Changa and Bwana M'Kubwa both advancing. Rio Tinto was a shade easier. Zinc Corporation hardened.

REDUCED AUSTRALIAN REVENUE

RETURNS FOR TWO MONTHS

SYDNEY, Sept. 10.—For the last two months the Commonwealth revenue has amounted to £9,202,000, while the expenditure in the same period has been £11,461,000. It is pointed out in explanation of this excess of expenditure over receipts that little land tax or income-tax has yet been paid. The Customs, excise, and post office receipts have fallen £1,840,000 below the estimate.

In New South Wales the revenue for the last two months has amounted to £5,359,000, a decrease of £1,196,000 compared with the corresponding period last year, and the expenditure to £7,903,000, a decrease of £564,000. Of the decreased revenue the State railways are responsible for a falling off of £863,000 and the tramways for £127,000.

In Queensland the revenue amounted in the period under review to £1,920,000, a decrease of £84,000, while the expenditure has increased by the sum of £93,000 to £2,139,000.—Reuter.

MONTREAL STOCK EXCHANGE

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT)

MONTREAL, Sept. 10.—The market to-day was fairly active and showed renewed firmness. Several leading stocks reached a new high level in the current movement, notably National Breweries, Montreal Light and Power, Dominion Bridge, Dominion Textile, and Brazilian Traction, the last-named reflecting the improvement in the milreis.

GRAMOPHONE COMPANY'S NEW CHAIRMAN

The directors of the Gramophone Company, Limited, announce the election at their meeting yesterday of Mr. Alfred Clark as chairman in succession to Mr. E. Trevor L. Williams, who has now retired in accordance with the announcement made by him at the annual meeting in November last. Mr. Williams remains a director of the company.

Mr. Alfred Clark began his business career in 1889 in the then infant phonograph industry and joined the Gramophone Company over 30 years ago. His early technical experience was gained through his association with the experimental work carried on by the late Dr. Emile Berliner. He has been managing director of the Gramophone Company for the last 20 years.

RUBBER STATISTICS

Official advices from Singapore give dealers' stocks of rubber in the Colony of the Straits Settlements on August 31 as 37,764 tons of dry and 4,491 tons of wet. Stocks of dry rubber, as estimated by dealers, amount to 41,313 tons. Port stocks at Singapore amount to 4,680 tons and at Penang to 5,877 tons.

MONEY MARKET

LOAN RATES EASIER

DECLINE IN FRENCH EXCHANGE

The volume of business in the discount market has shrunk to very small proportions. Yesterday there was little sign of buying on the part of the joint stock banks, while the Continental demand was very small. The easier monetary conditions prevailing appeared to be the principal influence affecting discount rates, which were accordingly slightly easier, brokers being not always certain of obtaining three months fine bank bills at 2 3-32 per cent.; a few sales were reported at 2 1-32 per cent., and the "hot" Treasury Bills were also dealt in at this rate. In view of the resumption yesterday of Treasury Bill maturities and less calling of funds by the banks money was more plentiful. It was usable throughout the day, however, fresh accommodation for the night commanding from 1¾ to 2 per cent. and old day to day advances carried at variable rates being continued at 1¾ per cent. The large banks lent money for a fortnight at 2 per cent. Foreign exchanges were less favourable to sterling, the Paris rate falling back in the afternoon to 123.83½f. An outstanding feature was the continued strength of Argentine and Brazilian currencies.

The Bank rate is 3 per cent., to which it was reduced from 3½ per cent. on May 1. The banks' deposit rate is 1 per cent., and the deposit rates of the discount houses are 1 per cent. at call and 1¼ per cent. at notice.

FOREIGN EXCHANGES

In the afternoon the tendency of some of the leading foreign exchanges became less favourable to sterling. The New York rate declined to $4.86 7-32 and closed at $4.86¼, compared with $4.86 5-16 on Tuesday. The Montreal rate was also lower at $4.85⅝. Gold is again flowing from New York to Montreal owing to the premium on Canadian funds. A sharp fall, to 123.82f., occurred in the Paris rate, the final quotation being 123.83½f., against 123.86f. The Italian exchange fell to 92.83l., the Dutch to 12.07⅞fl., and the Swiss to 25.05⅝f. On the other hand, German marks were cheaper, the Berlin rate being finally 20.41½m., compared with 20.41m. While the Hong-kong rate was higher at 1s. 4d., the Shanghai rate declined to 1s. 7½d. Japanese yen were cheaper. Further appreciation occurred in both Brazilian and Argentine currency. The Rio exchange rose to over 5d., closing at 5d., and the Buenos Aires rate was finally 41 5-16d., a further rise of 5-16d.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

IRREGULAR

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Trading was fairly active to-day, but the market fluctuated a good deal though showing a good undertone. Sales were returned at 2,474,000 shares.

The market fluctuated irregularly in a narrow range at the opening, but offerings were promptly absorbed by the execution of buying orders accumulated overnight, which were prompted by favourable car loading statistics for the week ended August 30 showing an increase of 43,955 cars. Active buying of Consolidated Gas, American Can, and Westinghouse Electric carried prices of these stocks to the highest level touched since last May. Pressure against Steel Common in anticipation of a substantial decrease in unfilled orders failed to induce any noteworthy easiness elsewhere. Later in the morning concentrated drives against the short interest in Steel Common simultaneous with the publication of the steel tonnage figures, showing a decrease of 442,000 tons, which was about as expected, prompted active covering elsewhere and stimulated firmness.

Another slight setback in the early afternoon due to realizing was followed by a renewed advance, helped by Mr. Babson's statement that business was bound to improve owing to the fact that in the past year consumption decreased only 10 per cent., whereas production as 20 per cent. and transportation 30 per cent. lower. During the latter part of the session frequent changes occurred under in-and-out trading, realizing in sections being accompanied by "bull" support elsewhere. The close was irregular.

AMERICAN STEEL TRADE

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—The Iron Age, in its weekly trade review, says that the seasonal recovery in iron and steel, though confidently expected, is slow in materializing. Demand is moderately larger than in the corresponding part of August, but nothing resembling a broad buying movement is apparent.

Curtailment in pig iron production, amounting to 4.6 per cent. in August, apparently still continues. This evidence of unchecked curtailed requirements contrasts sharply with the steel ingot output, which is now 58 per cent. of capacity, or 1½ per cent. above the rate in August. The number of pig iron furnaces in blast on September 1 was 139, against 144 on August 1 and 210 on September 1 last year, the daily rate of production being 81,000 tons, against 84,000 tons a month ago and 119,000 tons a year ago.

City News in Brief

We are asked by the directors of S. and M. (1928) to state that their company is not in any way connected with Messrs. Style and Mantle, of 32, Featherstone-street, London, E.C.1.

The London Committee of the Companhia de Mocambique state that the Customs receipts for the Port of Beira during July amounted to £32,934, compared with £18,709 for the corresponding period of 1929.

On September 6 the stocks of silver in Shanghai consisted of about 102,000,000 ounces in sycee, 146,000,000 dollars, 300,000 Saigon dollars, and 4,280 silver bars, state Messrs. Samuel Montagu and Co., compared with about 102,800,000 ounces in sycee, 147,000,000 dollars, 1,300,000 Saigon dollars, and 3,820 silver bars on August 30.

A meeting of the shareholders of the Aku, the artificial silk manufacturing company, held in Amsterdam yesterday to discuss the proposal of the management not to increase the total of the Preference shares beyond 60,000,000 florins without the approval of a British group which recently took over 18,000,000 florins Preference shares, was adjourned until September 24 as the required number of shares to give a decision were not represented.—Reuter.

JOHANNESBURG CONSOLIDATED INVESTMENT COMPANY, LIMITED.

(Incorporated in the Union of South Africa.)

REPORT OF DIRECTORS to be submitted to the Shareholders at a Meeting to be held in the Board Room, Johannesburg Consolidated Investment Company, Limited, Consolidated Building, Fox Street, Johannesburg, on Tuesday, the 25th November, 1930, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon.

ACCOUNTS.—1. The Directors have pleasure in submitting the Company's Balance Sheet and Profit and Loss Accounts for the financial year ended 30th June, 1930.

PROFITS.—2. After providing for Depreciation and all other charges the profits for the year amount to £565,192 11s. 7d. This sum, together with £181,497 5s. 7d. brought forward from the previous year, brings the total available profit to £746,689 17s. 2d.

DIVIDENDS.—3. The Directors, in December last, declared an Interim Dividend of 7½ per cent., which was paid free of Income Tax. In June the Directors declared a further dividend of 7½ per cent. subject to the deduction of British Income Tax. These payments absorb £592,500 0s. 0d., and the balance carried forward to next account is £154,189 17s. 2d.

In this connection the Directors have pleasure in stating that the gross profits of the Company have been well maintained, but having regard to the long period of general depression, which has adversely affected all markets, the Company has had to make provision for abnormal depreciation in the value of certain of its shareholdings.

RESERVE FUND.—4. The Company's Reserve Fund remains at £1,000,000.

VALUE OF SHAREHOLDINGS.—5. The value of the Company's shareholdings stands in the books at current market prices as at 30th June last, or below those figures.

FINANCIAL POSITION.—6. The financial position of the Company continues to be strong and satisfactory.

MINING INTERESTS.—7. The results of the operations of the various Gold Mining Companies controlled by the Company have been periodically published, as usual, and have all been of a gratifying nature.

During the twelve months ended 30th June last, the value of gold produced by the Mines of the Group was, approximately, £12,235,000.

The relations between the white employees and the Company's group of mines have, generally speaking, been satisfactory.

For the first half of the present year the supply of native labour to the Mines of the Group has been sufficient for requirements, but the limitations imposed by the Mozambique Convention on recruiting in Portuguese East Africa are adversely affecting the supply of labour from that source. Strong representations are being made to induce the Union Government to permit recruiting in areas not at present available.

GOVERNMENT GOLD MINING AREAS (MODDERFONTEIN) CONSOLIDATED, LIMITED.—For the year ended 31st December last 2,416,000 tons of ore were crushed, resulting in a working profit of £2,667,812, of which the Union Government received £1,448,863 as its share of the profit. The total sum paid to the Union Government now amounts to £12,982,803. Dividends totalling 90 per cent. have been paid for the twelve months ended 30th June last.

Sandfilling on an extensive scale has been introduced on the mine, and this will enable all the ore left in the pillars and supports (amounting to over one and three-quarter million tons) to be extracted.

The Ore Reserves at the end of the year were estimated to amount to 10,876,000 tons, with an average value of 8·9 dwts. over a stoping width of 63 inches.

THE LANGLAAGTE ESTATE AND GOLD MINING COMPANY, LIMITED.—The ore treated during 1929 amounted to 968,500 tons, and resulted in a working profit of £311,832, showing an increase of £29,181 over the same period in 1928. Dividends totalling 17½ per cent. were paid for the period ended 30th June last.

The Ore Reserves at the end of the year were estimated to contain 1,596,000 tons, with a value of 7·4 dwts. over a stoping width of 42 inches.

The increase in the monthly profits enabled the Company to raise its last half-yearly dividend from 7½ per cent. to 10 per cent. Capital expenditure during 1929 was practically met by the sale of property and township stands.

NEW STATE AREAS, LIMITED.—For the twelve months ended 31st December last 918,000 tons of ore were crushed, resulting in a working profit of £710,274, an increase of £41,373 as compared with the previous year. The Union Government's share of profit absorbed £384,074, and dividends totalling 12½ per cent. were paid to the shareholders for the period ended 30th June last. Operations during 1929 were in every way satisfactory, and excellent progress has been made in the major development programme of the mine.

The Ore Reserves at the end of December last stood at 2,696,000 tons of an average value of 8·9 dwts. over a stoping width of 50 inches.

THE RANDFONTEIN ESTATES GOLD MINING COMPANY, WITWATERSRAND, LIMITED.—The ore treated during 1929 amounted to 2,528,000 tons, and resulted in a working profit of £246,705.

The Ore Reserves at the end of December, 1929, stood at 4,505,000 tons of an average value of 5·8 dwts. over a stoping width of 41 inches.

The monthly profits for the first half of the present year show considerable improvement, and the outlook is very encouraging. With a view to ensuring the future exploitation of the northern portion of the Main Reef Section of the property, it has been decided to sink the North Shaft of the old Randfontein Deep property to a depth of 4,600 feet. This work is being carried out, and it is anticipated that this shaft will be in commission by the end of next year.

VAN RYN DEEP, LIMITED.—The tonnage milled for the twelve months to 31st December amounted to 748,000 tons, which resulted in a working profit of £502,217. Dividends totalling 32½ per cent. were declared for the year ended 30th June, 1930.

The Ore Reserves at the end of December last were estimated at 3,022,000 tons of an average value of 7·3 dwts. over a stoping width of 50 inches.

WITWATERSRAND GOLD MINING COMPANY, LIMITED.—In 1929 the tonnage milled amounted to 641,000 tons, and showed a working profit of £15,347. The increase shown in the monthly profits for the first half of the present year enabled the Company to declare a dividend of 5 per cent. for the six months to 30th June last, which with the dividend of 2½ per cent. declared in December, 1929, makes a total of 7½ per cent. for the year.

The Ore Reserves at the 31st December, 1929, were estimated to amount to 372,000 tons, with an average value of 5·4 dwts. over a stoping width of 53 inches.

DIAMOND MINES.—8. The general depression has affected the diamond trade very severely, and has led to greatly reduced sales. As the United States is the Industry's principal customer it was hoped that the settlement of the tariff question in that country would result in increased business, but its effect was overshadowed by the after results of the financial crisis. The position has been aggravated by the methods adopted by the Union Government in the disposal to South African cutters of part of the Government diamonds found in Namaqualand. However, periods of depression have been experienced previously, but in course of time have passed away, and the vitality of the trade gives every assurance that history will repeat itself.

COPPER.—9. The Company has increased its interest in the Northern Rhodesian Copper Fields. Mr. Lawn, one of the Company's Directors, and Mr. Beatty, the Company's Consulting Engineer in South Africa, paid a visit to these fields last December and found that the progress made had been excellent. Further exploration has enhanced their value and importance. Development and equipment are being proceeded with energetically.

There has been a considerable fall in the price of copper during recent months, but the grade and conditions appertaining to these mines are such as to enable them favourably to compete with other copper producing districts of the world.

Although these fields remain under British control, American interests are largely represented, and it is the desire of all parties to work harmoniously together. Approximately the latter part of 1931 should see the commencement of what will undoubtedly prove a large and increasing copper production from the Northern Rhodesian Fields.

PLATINUM.—10. The portion of the plant at the Rustenburg property of Potgietersrust Platinums, Ltd., for the gravitational concentration of the ore, commenced work in January last, but it was not until June that the flotation section of the plant was completed. The plant is now working steadily, and improved results are being obtained. The grade of ore is well up to expectations, and the development of the mine continues satisfactory. The fall, however, in the price of platinum, which is now lower than it has ruled for fifteen years, renders the position somewhat difficult. The Directors are of opinion, notwithstanding this fact, that it will be possible to work the mines profitably.

COAL INTERESTS.—11. The Company continues to receive a steady revenue from its coal interests. The sinking of the new shaft on the New Springs Colliery has now been completed.

ESTATES AND TOWN PROPERTIES.—12. There has been a steady sale of building sites on the Lower Houghton Estate during the period under review.

DIRECTORS.—13. In terms of the Company's Articles of Association the four following Directors retire by rotation, and being eligible offer themselves for re-election, viz.:—Mr. J. G. Lawn, C.B.E., Sir Reginald Andrew Blankenberg, K.B.E., Sir Robert N. Kotzé, and Mr. J. Emrys Evans, C.M.G.

ELECTION OF AUDITORS.—14. Messrs. W. Fergusson and S. Thomson, the Auditors of the Company in Johannesburg, and Messrs. Kemp, Chatteris, Nichols, Sendell and Co., the Auditors in London, retire from office and offer themselves for re-election.

By Order of the Board,

COMPANY MEETINGS

J. BROCKHOUSE AND COMPANY

PAST YEAR'S OPERATIONS

SERIOUS CONDITION OF INDUSTRY

IMPORTS OF FOREIGN GOODS AND TARIFFS

SIR T. H. SPENCER'S VIEWS

The THIRTY-THIRD GENERAL MEETING of the shareholders of J. Brockhouse and Co., Limited, was held yesterday at the registered offices, West Bromwich.

The CHAIRMAN, in moving the adoption of the report, said the directors presented the report and statement of accounts with the more confidence in view of the letters which they had received from shareholders congratulating them upon the results obtained in the difficult circumstances of the past year. Those engaged in industry would fully appreciate the difficulties. There was not only the depression in trade in this country and all over the world, but the company had had to face internal difficulties connected with the reorganization of the Victoria works and extensions at the works of Richard Berry and Son. Such reorganizations could not be carried through without interfering with the output.

THE VICTORIA WORKS

During the year they had rebuilt a large portion of the Victoria works and they were now in a position to organize the output in a much more satisfactory way than ever before in the history of the company. A very considerable expenditure had been incurred on the extensions at Berrys, the benefit of which did not appear in the present accounts. The expenditure was incurred, however, to help them to meet special demands which came forward, and he hoped that the results would be reflected in next year's accounts.

No body of industrialists could meet at a time like the present without making some comment upon the condition of the country. The position was exceedingly serious. So far as the general trade was concerned he hoped the air would be cleared some day, but for the present we in this country were adopting a policy of drift. Nobody seemed to be prepared with any real suggestions for the solution of our difficulties. Few people indeed seemed to be interested in the matter at all.

THE TRADE SITUATION

Those, however, who put their money into industry expecting a certain security and return were bound to consider the serious situation in which they found themselves. It was his firm conviction that they would not get any benefit or help from the political parties in this country. There had been no constructive proposal from any of them for a long time, and the consequence was that we were drifting, and drifting hopelessly. Therefore those who appreciated the position should speak out frankly with regard to the condition of industry. His own view was that if they could get together a body of people representing the great industrial, financial, and economic sections of the country some solution might be forthcoming. They would get constructive proposals which would help the country along. Palliatives might be necessary, but they were no good at all in the long run. If we relied upon them to get us out of our troubles we should have higher taxation, higher production costs, further troubles, and ultimate failure.

As one of the first moves the ravages on our home market by the foreigner should be stopped. (Hear, hear.) Had anyone ever seen such a farce as was proposed to be enacted at Geneva? The President of the Board of Trade, knowing the unemployment that we had in this country and the existing state of things, was going there to try to negotiate a tariff truce with the foreigner when foreign duties were at the peak against the admission of our goods. During the period of the truce, if it came about, we should be unable to exercise any bargaining power with the intention of getting the duties down and our goods admitted.

IMPORTS AND COST OF LIVING

In his opinion it was not only a farce but almost a criminal act to venture upon such a proposal as a tariff truce. He held that imports which were produced on an unfair basis in relation to conditions in this country ought to be prevented coming here. With free imports we should either be unable to maintain our standard of living or we should absolutely lose our trade. He contended, further, that we ought to reduce our cost of living. At the risk of being unpopular, he maintained that the producer and the consumer were the principal people to be considered.

The margin of profit retained in connexion with foodstuffs by the middleman was a serious menace to the prospects of this country. The wages paid to men were not the sole factor. It was what a man could purchase with his earnings that established the standard of living. If we had a Mussolini in this country probably the first thing he would tackle would be to get the cost of living down, because it would then be possible to reduce production costs without interfering with the standard of living. If we could reduce competitive prices without interfering with the standard of living we should have gone some way to re-establish trade and industry.

He could say for his co-directors and himself that they were in favour of all those trades to which they supplied accessories receiving the measure of safeguarding which was desirable for their prosperity. They hoped the transport trades would have a very good time in the immediate future. That could be obtained in several ways. It was not necessary that they should have an increased business. Prosperity could be brought about in many ways.

SATISFACTORY POSITION OF THE COMPANY

As to the position of the company, the figures were satisfactory in all the circumstances. What they had done was to endeavour by every means in their power to stave off the effect of the general depression upon their industries. He assured shareholders that they had done a great deal during the past year to conserve those industries. When trade revived they would be in a position with all the improvements they had been making and all the money they had been spending to produce economically the requirements of all their friends. That would be a most enviable position and one which did not exist so far as the company was concerned a few years ago.

The trading profit of £47,457 was a very good profit, and the turnover during the year was some £22,000 above the average of the last six years. Investments outside the business were larger than in recent years, which added to the security of shareholders. They were declaring a good dividend for bad times, placing a sum to reserve, and increasing the carry-forward. He thought that was a satisfactory position.

He wished the general position of industry all over the world enabled him to speak with greater confidence. He intended to work with all the vigour he possessed to try to get something constructive and some movement in the direction of reviving overseas trade. In all the work which lay before them, as in the past, they would have the continued and combined efforts of the directors for the progress and prosperity of the company.

THE COMPANY'S ASSETS

The Chairman added that a summary of the assets and liabilities of the company during the last nine years showed that the assets today were higher than in eight of the years, and in the ninth year there was a large figure representing the value of a subsidiary company which had since been reduced by many thousands of pounds.

Mr. J. T. BROCKHOUSE, J.P. (managing director), in seconding the motion, said it was satisfactory to note that during the past three years they had maintained a credit balance at the bank. They also had a reserve investment fund of £33,000. These figures should give the shareholders every confidence in the concern. In view of the trade depression the company had much to be thankful for in the fact that the manufactured sales were a record last year. Considering the state of trade in general that showed that the board, the management, and the employees had done their share in these trying times. The order books were no worse than they were 12 months ago.

The resolution was carried.

The retiring director, Mr. F. Brockhouse, was re-elected, and the auditors (Messrs. Percy and Gittins) were reappointed.

The meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the chairman for presiding.

GROSVENOR HOUSE (PARK LANE), LIMITED

EMINENTLY SATISFACTORY RESULTS

MR. ARTHUR EDWARDS'S STATEMENT

The SECOND ORDINARY GENERAL MEETING of the members of Grosvenor House (Park Lane), Limited, was held yesterday at Grosvenor House, Park-lane, London.

Mr. ARTHUR EDWARDS (the chairman of the company) presided.

The SECRETARY (Mr. J. S. Smith) read the notice convening the meeting and the auditors' report.

The CHAIRMAN said:—The report of the directors and the audited balance-sheet and accounts to June 30, 1930, have been circulated, and with your permission I will take them as read. I will deal first with the various items on the balance-sheet.

On the liabilities side, the issued capital now consists of 1,000,000 Ordinary shares of £1 each, all fully paid, the additional 149,150 shares having been issued in satisfaction of the cost of extensions which were carried out during the previous financial year. The whole of this capital is privately held, although, as you know, the company has issued to the public £800,000 Six-and-a-Half per Cent. First Mortgage Debenture stock.

The item of trade creditors, &c., £120,393, shows an increase over last year of £51,816, which arises from the expansion in the company's business since the opening of the hotel section, and will normally recur.

EXTENSIONS DURING THE YEAR

Turning to the assets side of the balance-sheet, leasehold land and buildings, &c., stand at £1,829,161, an increase of £217,099 over the figure at which they stood last year. This increase arises entirely from substantial extensions which have been made during the financial year under review, and which consist mainly of 129 rooms and bath rooms which have been added to the hotel section. Other important extensions and improvements have been made, which are detailed in the directors' report.

Stocks and debtors show increases of £11,709 and £29,474 respectively over last year, which again is accounted for by the increased business now being done.

Debenture stock discount at £60,000 and preliminary expenses at £24,912 are the remaining items on the assets side of the balance-sheet, and it has been decided to write these off entirely out of the profits for the year.

SATISFACTORY PROFITS

I have now much pleasure in coming to the profit and loss account and in being able to tell you that Grosvenor House is a great success. From this account you will see that, although we are only in the early stages of our business, there is a profit of not less than £164,761. This very satisfactory profit has been arrived at after making full provision for repairs, renewals, maintenance, and for the substantial sum which was necessarily expended on advertising during the inauguration period. It may be well that I should point out that all advertising expenditure, including special and non-recurring expenditure, has been charged before arriving at the profit.

After making provision for interest on Debenture stock, reserve for income-tax on Debenture stock interest, trustees' and directors' fees, there remains a balance of net profit for the year of £111,061, arrived at after taking into account the company's liability for income-tax up to June 30, 1930. To this balance of £111,061 there has to be added the £2,210 brought forward from last year, making a total of £113,271.

It is desirable that I should emphasize that the year ended June 30, 1930, was the first full working year of the company, and your directors have accordingly given much consideration to the appropriations that should be made out of profits. They have decided that the preliminary expenses and the Debenture stock discount be entirely written off, thus strengthening the financial position of the company, and that £5,000 be carried to general reserve, leaving a balance of £23,359 to be carried forward to next year's accounts.

DEMAND FOR FLATS

Coming now to the general position of the company, I am glad to be able to tell you that, with the exception only of three of the smaller flats, the whole of the unfurnished service flats are fully let on lease. The period of tenancy varies from three to 21 years, with an average of about seven years. The general organization of the company in dealing with these flats has been much appreciated and has given great satisfaction to our tenants, and it is our intention to make such other improvements as we may consider desirable in the general interests of the tenants.

I make bold to say that the design and layout of our flats is unique, certainly in Europe.

As you are aware, the hotel section was opened on May 14, 1929, just prior to the commencement of the year under review. The policy of the directors in making this section into an hotel has been fully justified. I am pleased, and if I may say so proud, to be able to tell you that during the season every room in the hotel was occupied.

I have previously referred to the fact that during the year under review considerable additions have been made to the hotel section, consisting mainly of 129 rooms. These were completed in May of this year and consequently contributed only for six weeks to the revenue of the year.

As you are aware, we have one of the best and most attractive ice-skating rinks in the world, and, in addition, we provide accommodation for the International Sportsmen's Club. This club has a swimming pool, four squash racquet courts, a gymnasium, Turkish baths, and, endeavouring as always to be thoroughly up to date, a miniature golf course is now in the process of being installed.

With regard to the prospects for the future, I think these can best be gauged by the very satisfactory results of the year under review, but in confirmation of these results I am in a position to be able to tell you that during July and August, the first two months of the current financial year, the income from every department has been greater than during the corresponding period of last year.

PIONEERS IN A MODERN IDEA

The great success we have so rapidly attained is no doubt largely due to the fact that we have been pioneers in a great modern idea of a new London, pioneers in the direction of providing high-class residential flats for our own people and giving facilities for the ever-growing influx of visitors from overseas to enjoy, at a moderate expense, luxury and comfort second to none in the capitals of the world.

I do not think that this country has in the past made sufficient organized efforts to attract to these shores the great and ever-increasing number of American visitors who come to the Continent of Europe. The magnitude and value of this traffic will be better realized when I mention that it is estimated that over 600,000 American visitors came to the Continent of Europe in 1929, and of this total about 25 per cent., i.e., 150,000, came to Great Britain, and, it is calculated, expended in this country over £11,000,000. During 1929 nearly 500,000 people in total visited Great Britain, and it is perhaps interesting to mention that of this number about 30 per cent. came from the United States of America, 15 per cent. from France, 11 per cent. from Germany, and the remainder from other countries. It will thus be seen that we have a large potential clientele to draw upon, and there is no reason, in my opinion, why Grosvenor House should not be able to obtain an increasing and larger measure of their support.

WORLD-WIDE REPUTATION

In conclusion, I feel justified in claiming that Grosvenor House is now firmly established, efficiently managed, and has a world-wide reputation. The efforts required to bring this important undertaking to its present stage have involved much hard and efficient work from all concerned, and I am glad to have this opportunity to thank the managers, heads of departments and all the members of the staff for their hearty cooperation and loyalty.

I now formally move that the directors' report and accounts for the year ended June 30, 1930, as printed and circulated, be approved and adopted, and I will call upon Major F. M. Hornsby to second the resolution.

MAJOR F. M. HORNSBY, C.B.E., seconded the resolution, which was carried unanimously.

The retiring director (Mr. F. W. Shelley) was re-elected, and Messrs. Price, Waterhouse and Co. and Messrs. Robert J. Ward and Co. having been reappointed auditors, a vote of thanks to the chairman, directors, and staff concluded the proceedings.

TOR INVESTMENT TRUST

INCREASED INCOME AND DIVIDEND

VALUE OF THE SECURITIES

The FOURTH ORDINARY GENERAL MEETING of the Tor Investment Trust, Limited, was held yesterday at Coleridge House, Swansea.

Mr. T. P. COOK, J.P. (chairman of the company) presided.

The notice convening the meeting and the auditors' report having been read by the secretary,

The CHAIRMAN said:—I presume it is your wish that as usual the report and accounts be taken as read. (Agreed.)

As compared with last year the investments at £285,471 12s. 7d. show a reduction of £31,258 7s. 4d. This is partly due to realizations made last autumn in anticipation of the collapse of values and partly to writing down book values in view of the present low prices on the Stock Exchanges. Funds for this writing down have been provided from gains made on realizations of investments and from the surplus of undivided revenue carried to contingent fund as referred to in the report.

STOCKHOLDERS' CAPITAL FULLY INTACT

Our valuation made at the end of July was taken at about the lowest point of the depression, when the majority of holdings stood at prices much below their intrinsic value, so that it is gratifying to be able to report the stockholders' capital as fully intact with a substantial surplus. This is the reward of conservative financial policy in the past. When the present disturbing factors throughout the world pass away there will be room for a considerable increase in the value of our investments in view of the low figure to which they have been written down.

The directors have this year included with the report a full list of the investments, but desire to impress on the stockholders that it must not be assumed that any particular holding would necessarily be suitable for private investors to purchase to-day. An investment trust often has favourable opportunities for buying and the list is also under constant revision, so that the published list merely shows the holdings on one particular date. For the trust's policy of investment attention should rather be directed to the analysis of investments, which varies very little from year to year, although the individual holdings are constantly changing.

INCOME FROM INVESTMENTS

The gross income from investments again shows an increase, and the net income, after paying tax, interest, and fees, is £5 15s. 5d. greater, in spite of the windfall of £2,055 (three years' income-tax rebate) in the previous year and of the increased rate of income-tax this year. After reviewing the prospective income for next year the directors are pleased to be able to recommend an increase of the dividend on the Ordinary stock to 8½ per cent. for the year, less income-tax. This leaves an undivided surplus of net income for the year of £4,134 4s. 1d. (added to contingent fund), which is equivalent to nearly 5½ per cent., less tax, making the total earnings of the Ordinary stock about 14 per cent.

I think that when comparing the results of this company with their other general investments the stockholders will have every reason to be satisfied with the investment trust principle, both as regards income and as to the safeguarding of capital.

I now move that "The directors' report and accounts for the year ended July 31, 1930, as presented to the meeting, be and are hereby approved and adopted, and that final dividends of 6 per cent. per annum on the Preference stock and 9 per cent. per annum on the Ordinary stock, both less income-tax, be declared payable on the 15th inst. to stockholders on the register at that date."

Mr. T. J. MATTHEWS seconded the resolution, which was carried unanimously.

The retiring director, Mr. I. A. Ambrose, was re-elected, and Messrs. Tribe, Clarke, Cawker, Owen and Co. having been reappointed auditors, the proceedings terminated.

COMPANY RESULTS

PLAISTOWE AND CO.

Company	Div.	Correspndg. div.	Date payable	Total for year	Prev. year
	%	%		%	%
Bombay Gas	Int. 3½	3½	Nov. 1	—	—
British Insulated Cables	Int. 5	5	—	—	—
Mason (Frank) and Co.	Int. 2½	2½	Oct. 1	—	—
St. James' Court Estate	Int. 3	3	Sept. 30	—	—

Price Brothers and Co (pulp and paper manufacturers).—Quarterly dividend of 50 cents per share on the Common stock, payable October 1 (the same).

Eastern Bank.—Interim dividend of 4s. a share (unchanged), less tax at 2s. 9.4d. in the £ after allowing for relief in respect of Indian taxation, payable October 1.

International Nickel Company of Canada.—Quarterley dividend on Preferred stock at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, payable November 1. The dividend is payable to stockholders on London register at the rate of 49¼d. per dollar.

PERMAS RUBBER COMPANY

The directors of the Permas Rubber Company announce a loss for the year to June 30 of £1,487 (against a profit of £2,188 for 1928-29). This loss has been deducted from the net amount brought in, leaving a credit of £5,275 to be carried forward. No dividend was paid last year, but £500 was placed to taxation reserve and £2,000 to reserve. Meeting, October 14.

SHEFFIELD FORGE AND ROLLING MILLS

A loss of £2,581 is shown by the accounts of the Sheffield Forge and Rolling Mills Company for the year ended June 30 (against a profit of £2,177 for 1928-29), which increases the debit balance to be carried forward to £63,284. No depreciation has been written off in arriving at the loss, but the report states that the plant has been added to and maintained in a highly efficient state in all departments. The prospects of improvement in trade in the earlier part of the year did not materialize. For the first few months satisfactory profits were made, but a setback took place shortly afterwards, and these profits disappeared. The company is suffering from a worldwide depression unprecedented in the steel industry, causing a serious decline in the output. Meeting, September 18.

YOKOHAMA SPECIE BANK

The London office of the Yokohama Specie Bank announces the receipt of a message from their principals stating that the meeting of the shareholders of the bank was held in Japan yesterday, and the statement and accounts for the half-year ended June 30 last were approved. The net profit for the half-year amounted to 7,121,819 yen, which compares with 9,074,298 yen for the first half of 1929. The reduction in profits is a reflection of the world-wide trade depression and the continued low interest rates obtaining in Japan, which permit only a very narrow margin of gain. The dividend for the period is maintained at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum, but the allocation to reserve is reduced from 3,000,000 yen for the first half of 1929 to 2,000,000 yen. The amount carried forward, at 6,353,667 yen, compares with 6,231,848 yen brought in and with 10,420,921 yen carried forward a year ago.

PLAISTOWE AND CO.

The accounts of Plaistowe and Co., preserve manufacturers, &c., show a profit for the year ended March 29 of £3,591, after charging interest on Debentures and loans and Debenture sinking fund instalment. For the preceding year there was a loss of £8,249, with no provision for Debenture sinking fund. As a result of the amalgamation proposals made by Crosse and Blackwell, Limited, since the date of the accounts (which were accepted by the Debenture stockholders and the Preference and Ordinary shareholders of the company) the unpaid arrears of Debenture interest are cancelled as from April 1 last. The effect of this is to convert the balance of profit and loss account from a debit of £22,152 to a credit of £318, and adding the profit for the year there is a total of £3,909, which it is proposed to carry forward. During the year £9,615 of the company's Six per Cent. Mortgage Debenture stock was purchased and cancelled, leaving £177,646 outstanding. The profit arising thereby, £3,917 and £186 interest on stock cancelled in advance of sinking fund requirements, have been transferred to a Debenture stock reserve. Meeting, September 18.

BROWNLAC

The first accounts of Brownlac, Limited, covering the period from February 22, 1929, to June 30, 1930, show a loss of £5,950, which has been transferred to development account. Certain payments amounting to £9,705, which are the subject of litigation between the company and the inventor, are included in the balance-sheet under the heading of "suspense account." The report states that since September last year tests have been carried on continuously with a view of manufacturing on a commercial scale the product which, in the laboratory stage, had satisfied all the requirements of independent experts as being equivalent to natural shellac. The results of the tests were various. Samples produced in January and June were considered satisfactory, but other tests were not, and the last one, made in July, 1930, was definitely unsatisfactory. The report states that having regard to the above results, the directors, acting on legal advice, have commenced proceedings against the vendor and the inventor. With a view of saving expense and pending the ascertainment of the wishes of the shareholders, the directors have closed down the factory. Meeting, September 15.

OFFICIAL RECORD OF DEALINGS

In the following statement are shown the prices at which business in officially quoted stocks was transacted yesterday as shown in the list issued by the Stock Exchange. Appended to each section will be found prices at which business was done in securities which, under the order of the Stock Exchange Committee, are included in the Supplementary List of unquoted securities. The sequence of marking is not necessarily that in which the bargains were done.

The meaning of the signs used is as follows:— ‡, Exceptional bargains, including those done free of stamp duty; Δ, bargains done with or between non-members; ††, bargains done during unofficial hours or on the previous day; A, the purchaser pays the accrued interest in addition to the price; ‡‡¹, income-tax free up to 6s. in the pound; ‡‡², income-tax free up to 1s. 2d. in the pound; ‡‡³, income-tax free up to 5s. in the pound.

GREEK DEBT SERVICE

The Council of Foreign Bondholders issues the following information, compiled from figures published by the International Financial Commission at Athens, with regard to the revenues assigned under the Law of Control for the service of the Greek debt from January 1 to July 31, 1930, compared with those for the same period of 1929:—

—	*Monopolies, Tobacco, Stamps, & Stamped Paper	Piræus Customs
	Drachmas	Drachmas
Gross receipts— July, 1930 ..	16,483,694	81,963,692
July, 1929 ..	21,036,682	79,228,319
Estimated receipts for seven months (law of control) ..	16,858,333	6,241,667
Actual receipts for seven months— 1930	113,987,779	524,753,815
1929	125,560,870	552,607,482
Increase over estimated and actual receipts for seven months— 1930	97,129,446	518,512,148
1929	108,702,536	546,365,816

* Exclusive of increases in duties and selling prices not subject to the system of plus-values.

Of the surplus over the estimated receipts from the monopolies, tobacco, stamps, and stamped paper, 49 1-5 per cent. is applied towards increasing the minimum rates of interest and sinking fund on the External gold loans of 1881 to 1893.

Maize.—Cargoes were in poor demand at prices very little changed from yesterday. La Plata, on passage, was obtainable at 24s. 9d., shipping-shipped at 24s. 6d., and Oct. 24s. 9d., while for Bessarabian, Oct., 24s. 3d. was asked, and 24s. for Dan/Gal/Fox. Oct.-Nov. Parcels were in quiet request at rather easier rates. La Plata, Aug.-Sept., sold from 24s. to 23s. 10½d.; to Liverpool, Euclid, afloat, sold at 24s. 1½d., and to Avonmouth, East Wales, shipping-shipped, at 24s. 4½d. (less ½ per cent.). The Continent paid 21s. 9d. for No. 2 white flat African, Oct.-Nov.

Oats were quiet and easier for La Plata, Sept. to Nov., at 13s. For mixed feed, Sept.-Oct., 11s. 6d. was asked.

At Mark-lane trade was quiet. Bread stuffs were again offered at lower prices, while feeders were fairly steady. For home-grown wheat 30s. to 31s. 6d. was asked per 504lb. Imported wheat was obtainable at 6d. to 1s. decline. No. 1 hard Manitoba, ex ship, 36s.; No. 1 Northern Manitoba, 35s. 9d.; No. 2, 35s.; No. 3, 34s.; No. 5 Manitoba, 32s.; No. 6, 26s. 9d.; No. 2 mixed durum, 31s. 6d.; No. 1 hard winter, 34s. 9d.; No. 2, 34s.; Baruso, 61½lb., 33s. 6d.; Australian, 34s.; and choice white Karachi, 33s. 3d. per 496lb. Flour quiet and occasionally easier. London straight run 31s. to 32s., and country straight run 25s. 6d. to 27s. per 280lb. Maize was quietly steady. LIVERPOOL, Sept. 10.—Wheat.—Shipment parcels were offered at 1½d. to 3d. decline, but Russian was not offered. There was a fair inquiry for Manitoba during the morning, but business did not develop. Sellers of No. 1 hard Manitoba, Sept., 33s. 4½d.; No. 1 Northern Manitoba, Sept., 33s.; No. 2, 32s. 4½d.; No. 3, 31s. 6d.; No. 6 Manitoba, Sept., 24s. 9d.; No. 1 hard winter, Gulf, Sept., 32s. 3d.; No. 2, 31s. 10½d.; No. 2 red winter, Sept., 32s.; choice white Karachi, afloat, 32s.; for shipment, 32s. 6d.; Australian, afloat, 33s.; white Western Pacific, Sept.-Oct., 31s. 9d. Business was restricted to No. 2 Northern Manitoba, afloat, at 32s., and Sept. at 32s. 1½d. Spot parcels were steady and ½d. per cental dearer. Graded wheat futures opened ¼d. to ⅜d. lower, the easiness of American markets being offset by a reported sale of Australian wheat to India. Values afterwards improved, owing to the withdrawal of Russian offers and a fair demand for actual wheat. Favourable crop reports from Canada and heavy movements in America later caused some easiness, but the market rallied again on higher oversea advices and closed irregular at ½d. advance to ¼d. decline. Sales were 500 loads.

MANCHESTER, Sept. 10.—The market was rather more cheerful. While inquiry for cloth was plentiful, difficulty was experienced in getting orders on to the books. Light bleaching and printing cloths were purchased by both Madras and Karachi, and the first-named outlet also made a certain amount of provision in grey shirtings and dhooties. Calcutta sent some offers for bleaching jaconets, which were rather nearer to manufacturers' quotations. Hong-kong took a few small lines of low poplins and fancies. South America inquired for dyeing and printing cloths and poplins, and the Continent made moderate purchases of plain cloths and fancies. The actual turnover in yarns was small, as spinners were showing a greater determination to reject low bids.

MARINE INSURANCE

BRITISH STEAMER ASHORE

News from Lloyd's agents at Cape Town yesterday showed that the British steamer Malmesbury, bound from Barry for Cape Town, was stranded on Jacob Reef, and that she had been abandoned. It was stated that the crew had been saved and taken to Cape Town. The Malmesbury, a vessel of 5,137 tons, managed by Capper, Alexander, and Co., was built in 1928. It is understood that she is valued for insurance at £64,000. Yesterday she was almost uninsurable.

The Norwegian steamer Spica, ashore on Cerberus Shoal, was regarded yesterday as uninsurable. It was stated that the crew and the salvors had abandoned the vessel. The Spica went ashore on August 29, after leaving Halifax on a voyage from the West Indies for Quebec with, it is understood, sugar. She is of 2,361 tons, owned by the Bergenske Dampskibsselskab, and built in 1923.

The rate on the Greek steamer Assimacos, ashore near Silleiro, was rather easier yesterday at 85 per cent., as compared with 90 per cent. on Tuesday. It was reported from Vigo that the position of the vessel was practically unchanged, and that the weather was fine. It was also added that the salvage steamer Geir had left Almeira for the scene of the casualty.

REINSURANCE RATES

Taitsu Maru	Vladivostock for Yawata. Ashore outside Urusan Harbour, Korea	50
Assimacos	Barry, Aug. 30, for Port Said. Ashore three miles south of Silleiro	85

FREIGHT MARKETS

On the Baltic Shipping Exchange yesterday a moderately large volume of chartering was arranged in the principal homeward trades, but some irregularity was discernible in freight rates. The Australian section was less steady on the acceptance of 33s. 9d. for Oct.-Nov. loading at Victoria, but maize from Durban to the U.K.-Cont. paid 17s. 3d., Oct. The River Plate was easier in tone for early shipments, as despite the comparative dearth of tonnage owners were pressing for employment on a market with few firm orders. Montreal displayed more interest in tonnage for Continental and Mediterranean ports, but rates were without improvement, spot carriers having accepted 9 cents for Antwerp or Rotterdam, with Sept.-Oct. at 9½c. The North Pacific was fully steady, with a large carrier fixed at 22s. basis Vancouver to Antwerp or Rotterdam. The dearth of ready steamers in the Black Sea resulted in a further advance in the freight rate for Russian grain at up to 11s. 9d. Continent, but the Danube was quieter at around recent figures.

Fixtures included:—Durban.—Pionier, 6,500 tons, 10 per cent., U.K.-Cont. 17s. 3d., maize, option part cargo sugar at 20s., Oct. Victoria.—Yngaren, 7,500 tons, 10 per cent., Mediterranean-U.K.-Continent basis 33s. 9d., Oct.-Nov. Danube.—Antonis, 4,500 tons, 10 per cent., Mediterranean 11s., Sept. Black Sea.—Dragon, 5,500 tons, 10 per cent., Continent 11s. 9d., Sept. Rotterdam.—Steamer, 7,000 tons, Rio de Janeiro 10s., Sept. Bahia Blanca.—Ruperra, 7,300 tons, 10 per cent., Antwerp or Rotterdam 16s., prompt. Cuba.—Steamer, 5,000 tons, 5 per cent., U.K.-Cont. 14s. 6d., Nov. Vancouver.—Steamer, 8,000 tons, 10 per cent., Antwerp or Rotterdam 22s., Oct. Montreal.—Stensby, 29,000qr., 10 per cent., Catania 12½ cents, Venice and Bari 14 cents, Sept.-Oct.; Seven Seas Trader, 23,000qr., 10 per cent., Antwerp or Rotterdam 9 cents, option West Italy 12 cents, spot. Mariupol.—Penolver, 5,700 tons max., Cape Hatteras-Halifax range 13s. 6d., coal, Sept.

THE PROGRAMMES

BRITISH COMPOSERS' CONCERT

Elgar's first Symphony is the chief work in the British Composers' concert to be relayed this evening from the Queen's Hall to the National station. Two composers will conduct their own works—Alan Bush his eighth Symphonic Impression, and Arthur Bliss his Concerto for two pianofortes, in which the players will be Victor Hely-Hutchinson and Ernest Lush. Delius will be represented by his "Song before Sunrise." Pieces by Herbert Howells and Percy Grainger are also included, and Trefor Jones will sing the two favourite songs from "The Immortal Hour," by Rutland Boughton. At 8 p.m. listeners to the Midland Regional programme will hear an organ recital by Dr. Harold Rhodes. He will play Stanford's Prelude in D minor; Bach's Trio in C minor; Pastorale and Finale, Symphony No. 1 in D, by Vierne; and Wolstenholme's Epilogue.
